Other transfers of teachers are being contemplated, according to Superintendent Charles Knowles, in order to match up the required number of teachers with the students.

Teacher transfers have been the board voted to transfer from made in the past, but this is the first time that a challenge to the law has been made.

According to Wayne Sumners, director of the Alabama Education Association's UniServ division, the law provides that tenured teachers may be transferred within the system if notified before July 1. Mrs. Williams was not asked to transfer until after school started, however, because the drop in Montevallo's enrollment was not known until then. She asked the AEA to intervene in her behalf.

Superintendent Charles Knowles says the board's attorneys think the transfer is legal.

Tag system revamped, but mail still best

The easiest way to get an automobile tag is by mail, according to Cecilia Ebert of the Shelby County tax assessor's office. The office started processing early mail-ins even before the October 1 opening day of tag

Mrs. Ebert told the Reporter Monday that long waits are avoided if auto owners mail in the full receipt they received recently, with a check in the correct amount. The amount due is shown on the last block on the lower right hand side of the receipt marked, "Total tag and tax if mailed."

Those who use the mail-in system will receive their decal and the top copy of the receipt by mail within a few days. However, mail-ins must be in the tax assessor's office before November 1, she said.

For the many others who prefer to come to the courthouse, the procedure is much like it was in former years. The first stop is the tax assessor's office; then the probate office and tax collector's "Bring your full tax receipt," is the first advice Mrs. Ebert gives to taxpayers. "Don't tear off any of the copies."

If a person arrives at the office without the receipt, or with an incomplete receipt, the office workers will have to go to the 'book' and rewrite it. This will make the wait longer, Mrs. Ebert

If a person did not buy a tag in Shelby County last year, he or she must bring a receipt from the other county. If the receipt is lost, "It gets a lot more involved, and we have to have a title," Mrs. Ebert says.

The best time to come to the courthouse is around 2 p.m. in the middle of the week, Mrs. Ebert adds. Usually the busiest hours are early in the morning, at lunchtime, and on Mondays and Fridays.

The tax that tag buyers pay will be for last year. The tag cost is for a partial period into next year. During 1981 the remainder of the tag will be due.

Tag buyers can check with the assessor to find out which month they will buy their tags in the future. The new system is alphabetical, based on the first letter of the last name. From 1981 on, with the staggered tag system, it should be easier for everyone, Mrs. Ebert says, with no long lines in October and November.

Students test scores vary from one school to next

by David Armstrong

Shelby County students seem to be more skilled in language and reading than in math, Alabama State Competency Tests indicate.

The tests were given state-wide to third, sixth and ninth grade students last spring.

Reading, language and math skills were tested. The percentage of questions answered correctly in those areas by students in each Shelby County school is listed next to this article.

George Dailey, coordinator of instruction for the Shelby County education system, said the tests were not developed to compare schools with each other.

According to Dailey, the tests will be used by teachers and administrators to see if each student is "competent" in the areas tested.

If a student is not "competent" in an area, Dailey said teachers will help the student overcome the deficiency.

student showing

"incompetency" in certain areas will likely be tested again this spring to see if he has progressed.

Dailey said students who answered less than 80 percent of the test questions correctly might be tested again. A student who correctly answers more than 80 percent of the questions is considered "competent" in that area by the board of education.

Dailey said the state board of education is considering using the tests as an "exit" test for highschool seniors. Seniors found not "competent" would not be allowed to graduate. 1983 might be the first year the test is used for this purpose.

The test can also be used to determine teaching weaknesses. If several students in a class are "incompetent" in an area, Dailey said teaching would be looked at.

Parents of students who took the tests last spring will be able to examine the test results of their child, Dailey. He suggested parents call school offices to make sure the results are available because some are not yet summarized.

Firemen at the Alabaster West the cap with an object such as a Station weren't taking any chances Wednesday when a damaged box of blasting caps was brought into the station.,

Placing a call to the Birm-twisted. ingham bomb squad, the firemen were told not to touch the box until technicians arrived.

When Sgt. Ed Cousins and officer Terry Metcalf reached the station and examined the devices used to set off dynamite, they determined there was no danger. However, the explosives experts cautioned extreme care in handling blasting caps that might be found.

It was pointed out that a youngster hitting the metal end of Cousins cautioned anyone finding caps to leave the wires

The name of the motorist who discovered the box of blasting caps in the road near the fire station wasn't available.

Fire Chief John Cochran said he thought the box had probably fallen off the back of a truck that was involved in construction work.

Anyone working with explosives, Cochran noted, is supposed to keep them in a tightly closed container.

Latest decision on health care center see-saws to Brookwood-SMH proposal

by David Armstrong

For the third time a different decision has been made on who should build a health care center in the Riverchase area.

The application from Shelby Memorial and Brookwood Hospitals was approved by the board of directors of the Birmingham Regional Health Systems Agency Tuesday night.

Last week the technical committee of the agency disapproved the Shelby-Brookwood application and approved the application from Baptist Medical by Dr. Stacy Childs, a physician on the staff of Shelby and Brookwood hospitals, that if the Brookwood-Shelby application was not approved, Shelby Memorial Hospital would encounter "financial disaster."

Childs told the board that they had approved a forty bed expansion project for Shelby and if the health center were given to Baptist those beds would not be used.

That might result in higher taxes for Shelby County residents and possibly the sale of the hospital he said.

At last week's meeting the BRHSA's directors were told tee after Dennis Hall, executive vice-president of Baptist Medical Centers, told the committee that his organization's center would be better. He said costs to patients would be less, more care would be given to persons who could not pay for health care and more services would be offered.

BRHSA's staff had recommended the Baptist application not be approved because both Shelby Memorial and Brookwood Hospitals would be by-passed to get to the Baptist Hospitals. Persons needing overnight care at a hospital would be staff's recommendations were transferred from the health reversed by the technical commit- centers, which are basically doc-

The staff also said the Baptist center's project cost was too high. Hall told the technical committee last week that a way had been found to reduce the cost of the project.

Another factor in the the board's decision Tuesday to reverse the technical committee's recommendation was care given to Medicaid and Medicare patients.

Hall told the technical committee last week that Baptist had provided free care to over 5,600 outpatients and more than 1,000

School board moves teacher

by Bert Seaman

After listening to the reasons Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles gave for recommending the transfer of a Montevallo High School social studies teacher, the Board of Education approved the move.

When the matter was brought up at Wednesday's board meeting, Knowles pointed out it was the first time a teacher in this system has ever been transferred.

But one of the deciding factors in the decision to move Jennifer Williams to Pelham, was the need for a social studies teacher there because of a significant increase in enrollment.

If the transfer hadn't been approved, the board would have had to hire another teacher.

Since enrollment at MHS had dropped off Knowles pointed out that Williams' services weren't needed at that location.

In explaining why Willams was the teacher chosen to make the move, the superintendent said that she had the least seniority.

Although it was reported Williams did not want to go to Pelham, Knowles said she had not refused to make the change.

Not all of the panel were in favor of the move, however.

Saying he thought the action might create more problems instead of solving any, Paul Sumners voted against the transfer.

And Barbara Whitman, who lives in Pelham, abstained when a vote was called for.

During the discussion, Whitman stressed the need for a "strong" English teacher at Pelham. But the vacancy Williams will fill includes only one class of English.

She will begin classes at her new assignment Oct. 6 which will be after the six week grading period.

Knowles told the panel that the board's attorneys had researched cases pertaining to the situation, and that they had found it was

The board's attorneys also made a recommendation to an out of court settlement with the Education Support Personnel Organization. Since the case only involved deducting organization dues from the paychecks of members, the board went along with that recommendation.

Their objection to doing it in the first place, had been because local schools pay individuals who work in that category.

But from now on, each principal will deduct the money and send it to the central office s that one check can be sent to AEA for both the county and local employees.

Bus safety stressed after two mishaps

But with two accidents already recorded in the first month of school, Assistant Transportation Superintendent Ellie Glasscox is taking measures to stress safety to both drivers and students.

Glasscox also mentioned films on bus safety that will be shown in all the county schools.

No one can say when Shelby County landowners will receive their ad valorem tax bill this year. This will be the second year in a row when they arrive later than the usual date of mid-September.

Tax assessor Bibbie Reynolds, is now going over the first computer run of the entire tax records, checking for errors.

After the editing is finished, the records will go to the county computer for the full abstract. Mrs. Reynolds told the county commission at a budget hearing Monday that it may be "next week or week after next" before her records are ready for the computer.

The abstract is supposed to be in the State Revenue offices in Montgomery by the second Monday in August, but the pressures of the reappraisal program are still being blaimed for delays. But delays cost the county much needed revenue, and the commission is anxious to get the bills in the mail so revenue can start coming in. The new fiscal year began October 1. The county had to borrow to get through September, and needs to repay several items from the first revenues it receives in the new

After the computer gets the abstract printed, it can go on to the printing of the some 35,000 separate tax bills that go to county landowners. These bills will then go to tax collector Fay Quick, whose office staff will stuff them all into envelopes and mail them.

Although the bond sale that was to have provided funds for building the Inverness school didn't go through, the board nevertheless approved the installation of a gas line to the location.

Parents in the Vincent area are persisting in their effort to get another kindergarten unit for their town.

After state legislators indicated to them Tuesday evening that funding might be acquired for an additional section, the Shelby County Board of Education was asked the next day for their approval.

But the panel remained firm in turning down the request a second time.

The board wondered where Senator Lister Hill Proctor and Representative Sonny Moore might secure any additional funds with pro-ration in effect and they also questioned whether the funding would be continuing.

Another suggestion was to hire aides so 30 children could be placed in a kindergarten unit instead of the 20 which is now the maximum number allowed in a class.

Board member Paul Sumners said he felt the way the state was handling the kindergarten program was illegal.

With limited funding, he said he thought the St. Clair plan was the best way to handle the problem of educating all five year olds.

Since there was no certainty that additional funds would be forthcoming from the legislature, board members didn't feel they could let Vincent have another unit.

But the entire panel seemed to agree with board member Barbara Whitman when she said, "Let's spend the next 11 months researching ways that will allow all five year olds the opportunity to go to kindergarten.'

A situation at Shelby School was discussed which might require another first grade unit. But the board held off on doing that until a survey can be made to detemine the number of children who will be starting school next

The bill to be discharged, introduced by Representative Millicent Fenwick of New Jersey, would give married couples the option of filing separate tax returns, using the rate schedule applied to single taxpayers. A majority of the House membership must sign the petition before discharge becomes effective.

'Don't use school bin'

Letter to the Editor:

Garbage, garbage everywhere! Picture this: A busy homemaker rushes to complete her cleaning. As she goes outside to deposit trash, she finds her large green cans filled to overflowing trash.....someone elses'. The staff of Thompson Elementary School has found itself in this same dilemma recently. More and more frequently, area citizens leave large amounts of paper and trash in the school's garbage disposal box. These persons probably do not realize what a problem this creates. Rental fees for the disposal of waste is paid by the school. The bins are not public property. The use of them by the general public prohibits their use by the school. It also causes a health hazard for the school's 1345 students. In addition, the debris blows over the grounds and distracts from the appearance of the school.

Monday mornings are a nightmare for school maintenance workers. Recep-. tacles are filled with boxes and paper from over the community. There is no space for the school's trash.! Evidence has even been found that some local merchants use the bin for disposal of their garbage.

School administrators ask that citizens of Alabaster and surrounding subdivisions refrain from using the school's bin for family and personal convenience. Several solutions to this problem have been tried unsuccessfully. Even phone calls to area residents have not helped.

Please use your own means of garbage disposal. Leave school bins open to accomodate the huge amounts of wastepaper from your local school.

Henderson Walker, Principal Reader prefers BMC health plan

Letter to the Editor:

It was a surprise reading the plan that the Medical Staff of the Shelby Memorial Hospital presented to B.R.H.S.A.

We hear so many complaints from people in the Medical field concerning high taxes, government controls, and socialized medicine, you would think that our doctors would have supported the Baptist Medical Center's plan.

They indicated that medical services would be available regardless of a person's ability to The BMC showed they were of indigent patients and give some relief to the tax payers. Instead, our conservative doctors chose to work with Brookwood - who would place the full burden of indigent patients upon the tax payers of Shelby County. We who believe in private enterprise, know that it is competition that keep prices down and services at their best. We have only to experience the long wait in the doctors' offices, look at our medical bills, and pay the cost of our Hospitalization Insurance, to realize that the medical profession has been limited - for too long. Studying the two plans -

BMC's facility would provide space for 12 new doctors. While the Brookwood - Shelby Memorial facility would allow space for only six, and then it would be staffed by the now existing Riverchase Clinic. If we did not know our good doctors, so well, we might think that the Brookwood - Shelby plan was an attempt to keep out anymore competition, in order to maintain the money and power in the hands of the now existing doctors. Whatever the reason behind this plan, it is obvious that an attempt was made to use our tax dollars against the people - rather than to help the tax payers of Shelby Co.

When the people voted for this tax, the politicians promised that two hospitals would be built - one more centrally located.

Since the west side has grown to the extent that two major hospitals are competing for a chance to locate here - perhaps it is time that the Shelby Memorial Hospital be sold to private enterprise, and this money be used to build a new hospital in an area where medical service is still sorely needed.

The railroad worker -- praised in American songs, short stories and folk tales -- has not been exterminated by machines.

Although machines do much of the heavy work like loading rails and crossties, men are still needed to wedge the rails into their steel plates and drive spikes.

Around 80 railroaders have been working in our county recently, replacing several miles of old rails with "ribbon rails" one-quarter of a mile long. The Seaboard Coastline track stretches through Childersburg, Vincent, Westover and Chelsea.

The workers are not extinct, but they're not the same as the railroaders we know from westerns and history books.

Instead of overalls, pocket watches, blue stripped engineer's caps and calloused hands, they now wear jeans, wrist-watches, hard-hats and leather gloves.

About three weeks ago the crew "laid" a side-track in Chelsea and their temporary, rolling home built in railroad cars parked for a few weeks stay. The men live all around the southeast and drive to their work site.

George, a railroader from Ashville, N.C., had this to say about his work:

"Yeah, I like it. We get to go all over the south, meet diff'rent people, see diff'rent places.

"I get to get away from my wife for two weeks, then I go home to see 'er and it's nice. The only thing wrong with go'in home for a week after bein' gone for so long is she's got a whole bunch'a work for me to do.

"They (the railroad company) take care of us pretty good. The cars they got for us to live in on the road are nice. They got TV's and radios. And the food is ok, too. We got eight cooks on this crew and we can get anything we want -- steak, chicken -- all we got to do is ask for it."

Still, the work seems to be difficult. There aren't any airconditioners, and few shade trees, along the tracks. And it still takes strong backs and biceps to drive spikes into crossties.

In Indian Hills

Around the corner lies a tropical paradise

by Bert Seaman

From the street, the neat looking brick home on Chippewa Lane is attractive, but it doesn't appear too much different from other homes in Indian Hills.

But anyone who wanders into the backyard may think they've stumbled into a tropical paradise.

Rounding the corner of the house, there is a profusion of exotic plants on every hand.

But the most unusual sight on the sloping hillside lot is a miniature waterfall, which flows from a mound of rocks into a pond where goldfish and Koi swim beneath a canopy of waterlilies.

Located near the patio, the pond and the lush foliage which surround it are visible through the sliding glass doors of the family room in the Win Holloway home.

So even though the weather may be hot and sticky, the couple and their son Steve can still enjoy the outdoor beauty spot from inside their home.

Before starting on the pond, the Holloways, who describe themselves as an "outdoor family," constructed a rock garden in order to grow flowers on their hilly land.

And since there were only a few houses in the subdivision in 1967 when they purchased their home, some of the rocks were brought from a nearby vacant

When the fishpond project was started in 1969, some of the rocks were unearthed from their yard and others were pried up and hauled from a wooded area behind the house.

Mrs. Holloway explained that her son engineered the project and the whole family pitched in to help with leveling the spot and getting rocks.

Since he had worked for a horticulturist while attending school, Steve's knowledge of plants was put to good use, his mother noted.

The pond is surrounded by ferns, and other shade plants such as bleeding heart, sultana,

After suffering a leg injury in college, the young man's gardening talents proved to be good therapy, Mrs. Holloway reported.

A greenhouse was put up on the upper level of the sloping lot, and Steve occupied his time making cuttings from plants and propogating them.

He exercised the leg by making trips up and down the hillside constructing another rock garden complete with stone steps.

The only mishap that could be recalled during all the years the family has worked on their backyard projects concerned the

If Steve's plans to attend the University of Israel are realized, the more ambitious gardening projects will be curtailed for awhile.

The Epsilon Rho chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority held a carnival last Saturday. The depot in Alabaster was alive with activity as six very busy clowns ran the duck pond, space bounce and several other exciting activities.

Toni Grossman, Pat Franklin, Toula Greenwood, Susan Bayne, Jeanette Lackey, and Sara Sides dressed as clowns to keep the carnival going from 9 til 4.

Mothers were quie thrilled to find that for a mere 50- their youngsters could have their very own clown face. The artists who painted these masterpieces were Gail Carroll and Bill Bayne.

Last year this sorority donated funds to Thompson High School, to the Alabaster Police Dept. and hosted a Mother-Father tea at Briarcliff Nursing Home. This year they plan to donate toward the Thompson Elementary School playground and the fence that surrounds it.

Foreign language opened a new world

Editor's note:

This story was written in the third person, by Matt Prichard, son of Mayor and Mrs. Carl Prichard of Calera. A graduate of the University of Georgia, he

The Board of Registrars will be in Inverness at the information center on Saturday, Oct. 11, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. to register new voters. This will be the only time to register in Beat 12 before the November election according to Doris Turner, chairman of the board.

is attending the National University of the South in Bahia Blanca, Argentina on a Rotary Club scholarship for international understanding.

Edited...

Matt Prichard poured hot water, into a small hole bored in the top of the gourd. A mixture of ground-up leaves, stems and foam rose quickly to the brim.

Taking the apple-sized gourd in hand, he took a long sip on the metal straw that extended from it. Then the gourd was handed to the next person.

Drinking yerba mate was only one of the adjustments Prichard said he had to make to life in South America.

"I suppose the first difference that comes to mind is the inversion of the seasons. By leaving the U.S. in March and returning in December, I'll have three winter times in a row," Matt

"Why Argentina? Well, many Americans think South America is just one big jungle. Actually, Argentina is one of the most developed countries in Latin America. The tradition of encouraging skilled European immigrants to settle here and the emphasis on education and culture has produced a country radically different from, say, Ecuador.

"The impact a country like this can have on the U.S. is obvious when you note that this country, one of the world's largest exporters of grain, made our embargo fail by selling wheat to Russia."

Matt said his interest in Latin America began with Spanish courses he took while attending the University of Georgia.

"Foreign languages open up a whole new world. They allow you to communicate with millions more people and understand their way of thinking," he said.

He severely criticizes the lack of emphasis on foreign languages in high schools.

"The Argentine girl I'm dating speaks Italian, English and some French in addition to her native language. On the other hand, I didn't have the opportunity to study a single foreign language in school," Matt said. He attended Calera High School from 1971-1975.

"After spending one summer in Mexico City and one in Valencia, Spain, on academic programs, I obtained a certain fluency in Spanish. Then I developed my journalistic interest by working on the university newspaper and spending reporting internships with The Atlanta Journal and The Del Rio (Texas) News-Herald.

Herald.

Working on the News-Herald

Matt often covered stories across the Rio Grande in Ciudad Acuna,

But Matt affirms that going to school in Argentina hasn't been boring.

"The funniest incidents arise out of the inflation problem here. The inflation rate was the highest in the world as recently as 1978, when it ran at 160 percent. Now it drags along at about five and a half percent monthly. As a result, they're continully lopping zeros off the bills. But people have trouble thinking in the new system. They'll tell you something costs 100 pesos when they mean 10,000 pesos. Or they'll casually tell you a 30,000 peso pair of shoes will run you three million pesos.

"I've developed somewhat of a radar system to guide me in the marketplace, but soon they plan to lop off two more zeros. I'm leaving before then, he affirms.

Matt says he has noticed that many Argentines have incorrect ideas about the United States.

"There are about ten Americans here in Bahia playing basketball professionally. So a friend once told me many of the folks here believe all Americans are giants. Sure enough, when I was walking down the street with one of these guys, he stopped at a candy shop and emerged with two fistfuls of chocolates.

"The poor little lady who owns the place, he informed me, gives him free candy all the time. I'm sure she's scared to death of him," he said.

Matt recently went on a bus trip to Paraguay and Brazil.

"Paraguay was a world into itself. I caught a bus from Puerto Stroessner to Asuncion, the capital. The aisles were piled so high with contraband merchandise that you couldn't leave your seat.

"I was surprised to find that the trains there are still pulled by steams engines that burn wood. But the people are incredibly friendly," he affirmed.

"Brazil was a lot of fun, despite my inability to understand Portugese. I stayed at a friend's house in Rio de Janeiro. One night we took a cable car to a restaurant on the top of a mountain

"About midnight they started the tropical beat of popular Brazilian music. Everyone, no matter where they were, started dancing. I think we could learn something from these folks. They enjoy life," he said.

Matt plans to look for work on a newspaper in a bilingual area, such as Miami or El Paso, after returning from Argentina. But he says he would eventually like to work in the State Department.

Thanks to the help and concern of the Shelby County Commission, we were able to have the generator repaired that provides the lights and air-conditioning that were absolutely needed during the long, hot summer. Senior citizens get hand

In the short time he's worked in and around the homes of older county residents, R.L. Dunaway has learned a valuable lesson.

Hired last week by the Senior Aide program to work as a handyman, the Shelby resident said he's discovered it's best to walk a fine line when the subject of politics comes up.

That way Dunaway doesn't get into any arguments and can complete his estimates on repair work without wasting time.

Instituted recently by the Program on Aging, the services provided by Dunaway are free to the elderly person who has no other way to get the work done. The only cost is for the materials.

After the necessary supplies are on hand, Dunaway does the best he can to please the customer.

Citing one example, he said a woman wanted a pathway left on the porch he was painting so she could walk in and out of the house.

He complied and also left the porch furniture in place as she requested, just lifting each corner to paint underneath.

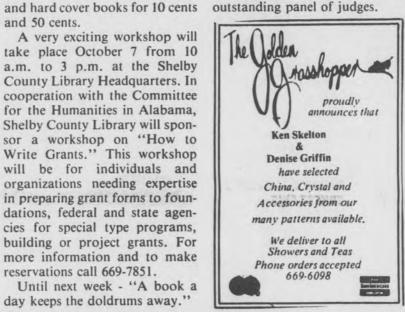

Before Siluria Textile Mills closed, Dunaway worked there, and he has also been in the construction business.

According to Lena Wright, who is in charge of the Senior

It'll probably go something like this:

Thompson Elementary School's Title I Reading program started the year off with a parents'meeting on September

Teachers and aides presented a workshop on "Parents Are Teachers, Too." Parents saw filmstrips and worked in small groups. The Title I program was explained and a question and answer session followed. Parents were encouraged to use machines, games and other programmed materials used exclusively in Title I labs.

After the program, parents met with teachers to discuss the program in more detail. Many volunteered to help prepare materials or work with children individually during the year. Teachers were pleased by the enthusiasm of parents during the meeting. Mrs. Mary Green is Parent Council Chairman.

She plans to work cooperatively with teachers in involving parents with Title I Activities during the coming school year.

Thompson drums Shelby County

If the Shelby County Wildcats were a drum, they'd just about be about due a trip to the shop after the beating Thompson gave them Friday night in Columbiana.

During the 42-0 drumming session, Thompson tried out some new drumsticks and learned another scoring tune entitled, "The Pass."

Afterwards, SCHS head coach Larry Molton made no excuses for the mismatch, saying only that his kids made a lot of little mistakes and that Thompson was a lot more physical.

"They're a whale of a football team," Molton said. "They beat us at every phase of the game. They did a real good job of ex-

The drumming started early in the first quarter when the Warriors took a punt at their own 40 and quickly moved to the SC 17. From there Chuck Woody hit Charley Griffin for the touchdown. (Of 16 TDs, it was Thompson's second score of the year from the air.) John Durrett booted the PAT.

Later in the first quarter THS mounted a 12-play drive with Arthur Johnson as drum major. Johnson gained most of the 65 yards, scoring from the one. Durrett kicked true on the PAT.

Demetrius Threat picked off a second quarter Wildcat pass at the 37 to set up a four play drive for paydirt. Again the TD came from the air, but the combination was reversed. This time Griffin hit Woody in the end zone. Durrett kept up the status quo in the PAT department.

Still in the first half Johnson returned a punt 25 yards to the ty's only kickoff of the night at SC 31. He bulled over from the 11 to score, and Durrett kicked the PAT. At the half it was 28-0, and all Thompson's.

Jeff Joiner took Shelby Coun-

the THS 40, and the Warriors scored six plays into the third quarter. This time it was the Woody- Joe Glass TD combo that gave Durrett some more toe exercise with another PAT.

The Warriors' final drum roll came early in the fourth when Teddy Hughes recovered a Shelby County fumble at midfield. Five plays later Randy Anderson blasted for a 36-yard touchdown run. Durrett lowered the flag with the PAT, making the final an Auburn nightmare of THS head coach Larry Simmons noted that Shelby County did a good job of "hanging in there" against Thompson. But the Warriors' real test will come in the next five weeks, he said.

"Defensively, I'm not convinced we're where we ought to be where I want and know they can be," Simmons commented. "I hope we're not where the players want to be either. I'm pleased to be 5-0, but we've got to improve or we're not going to be 5-0 in the second half.

The Thompson coach pointed out noseguard Billy Lawley as his most consistent man on defense this year. "Still," he continued, noting Thompson's second goose egg of the year, "you have to give credit where credit's due." He also said he was pleased his Warriors got three TD's off passes.

Simmons finished his interview by saying, "We're going to see what we've got not too far down the road."

"Down the road" this week means having a pack of hungry, 2-3 Pelham Panthers visit Alabaster for homecoming.

Larry Molton's young 1-3 Wildcats will also be hosting homecoming this week. They've invited some angry, 0-4 Chelsea Hornets to Columbiana for the occasion.

"We're not throwing in any towels," Molton stated. "We've got a task to do."

Both games should be teresting and physical.

Thompson's Chuck Woody (10) leaps for a Charley Griffin pass and makes the touchdown despite the rather close coverage.

The Bibb County Choctaws embarrassed the visiting Panthers by a score of 28-0 Friday night. Rivers described the loss as the worst that's been suffered by his team and staff in the 15 games he's coached at Pelham.

"It was all Bibb County. They whipped us from the start to the end.

"I got out-coached and we got out-played. I guess it was my fault. I didn't have the kids prepared and that was a big part of it it."

Bibb County gained momentum in the first quarter when they set up a wall and returned a punt, untouched, for 75 yards and a TD. They added one for the

But the real demoralizer for Pelham came when a good drive Rivers. The trouble is, all the of their own fizzled cold with fourth and a foot at the BC 14.

In the second quarter the Choctaws mounted a 60 yard drive, capped with a PAT. Again Pelham drove back, but at the end of the half suffered an interception in the end zone.

Bibb County drove for a TD in the third quarter and recovered a fumble at the eight to score in one play in the fourth. Things could have been a lot worse for Pelham . two other touchdown runs in the final period not been called back because of clipping and holding.

Rivers attributed some of Pelham's missed tackles to Bibb's speed, but said overall the defense was "lackadaisical."

He noted defensive back Todd Bass as the only standout of the night. Bass picked off two passes at the goal and made several individual tackles.

Rivers admitted that getting up to play at Thompson's homecoming this week was going to be a little tough. Still, he said, it's always a special game for his team and they always get up for THS better than anyone else.

"We'll find out what kind of folks we got this week," he said.

The big area game pits Pelham's 2-3 record against Thompson's 5-0. Not only would the Panthers love to spoil homecoming in Alabaster, but have been itching to beat the Warriors ever since they fielded their first team five years ago.

Norred pulls rabbit from hat, saves Rebs for their fourth win

The situation: Glenwood Academy sits on a 6-0 lead late in the fourth quarter. Coosa Valley, backed into a hole at their own nine, faces third and long.

The play: Quarterback Mike Norred rolls out to his right looking for an open receiver. The receivers are heavily covered like maybe it's midnight in the dead of winter and the furnace is broken. Norred sucks it up and runs.

What happens: The Rebel quarterback blows through the open line and secondary, and turns on the gas. Glenwood's last man threatens to catch him at midfield, but catches instead a block thrown by Victor Hardwick. It's all speedster Norred needs as he flies a total of 92 yards for the score.

The point after: Ty Williams kicks true for the go ahead point. Coosa Valley wins 7-6.

Not only did Norred reel off a 92-yard touchdown, but he totaled 136 yards in 10 carries last Friday. Furthermore, he seems to be developing a habit of breaking the big play. The week before, he dashed off a 70-yard keeper as CVA nipped Faith 6-0.

"He's a good kid," beams coach Mark Green.

The CVA head man goes on to describe Glenwood's visit to Harpersville as a "real knockdown, drag-out ballgame. They have a tremendous team in my opinion. But we came out on top."

Twice in the first half CVA moved to the 20, only to throw an interception and lose a fumble.

Too, Glenwood twice drove on CVA. But led by Mike Wheeler, Eric Davis, Troy Beavers, Greg Adair and Norred, the defense turned them away at the 15 and Again the defense withstood the pressure test after a bad snap on a punt attempt gave Glenwood the ball at the 20.

But a second bad punt snap in the fourth quarter proved too much to ask and Glenwood's wishbone scored on third down from the 15. Significantly, the PAT missed. After Norred's TD, with 4:30 left in the game, Glenwood once again drove and threatened. But again the defense held and the visitors ran first out of downs, then out of time.

The 7-6 win marks the first time CVA has ever beaten the 3-A team, which shipped 45-50 dressed players up from Phenix City for the occasion.

The win also ups Green's boys to a 4-1 record (4-0 in the district) and gives way to interesting possibilities on down the road.

But when asked about playoff action, Green says, "That's too far in the future. I don't want to hear of such."

This week the Rebels travel to Talladega where their hosts post a 3-1 record.

Stadium dedication

There is little doubt as to the role the late Ricky M. Cairns played in building a better tomorrow for the youth of Calera, both on and off the footall field. The stadium at Oliver Park where Cairns both played and coached, was dedicated to his memory in a special ceremony on Friday, September 26. Surrounded by Cairns' wife Barbara and daughter Kim (right) and daughter Stacy and Cairns' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cairns (left). Calera Councilman Bill Watts read a resolution passed by the city, formally naming the stadium. The crowd assembled for the occasion was reportedly the largest ever in Calera. (Photo

MHS throws wet blanket on homecoming as Chelsea hits the self-destruct button

Homecomings are not supposed to be spoiled. Then again, football teams aren't supposed to lose five fumbles and two interceptions either.

For Chelsea, both nightmares came true last Friday night, as, in the end, the self-destructive Hornets proved to be their own worst enemies.

The visiting Montevallo Bulldogs played wet blanket to Chelsea's gala homecoming festivities, capitalizing on four Hornet fumbles to put a 24-7 damper on the evening.

The only sure bet before the game was that one of the two area teams would finally walk away a winner. MHS picked up its first win in five outings, while Chelsea will have to wait until tomorrow for another try at checking out of Heartbreak Hotel with its 0-4 frustrations.

It didn't take Chelsea long to hit the self-destruct button Friday night. After taking the opening kick, they drove 47 yards in six promising plays, only to fumble at the fifteen.

J.J. Moore recovered for Montevallo and a few plays later the Bulldogs attempted their first of five half back passes. Receiver Carey Thompson was so alone he looked like he had gone to school on Saturday, but the ball was overthrown 5-10 yards.

On fourth down at the 44, the snap shot over the MHS punter's head like a skyrocket, setting up the Hornets at the 19 for their only score of the night. Kelly Cooper picked up 12 yards on the first run, then blasted over from the seven to score. Tim Rich booted the PAT and for a while it looked as though Chelsea's homecoming plans might stay on target.

The score fired up the defense, especially Chris Thomas and Michael Gardner, and MHS had to punt away their next possession from midfield. As play moved into the second stanza. Victor Smith exclaimed from the Hornets' excited sidelines, "We're going to take it to them this quarter!"

But it didn't happen that way. Defensive standout Lloyd Pickett recovered a Chelsea fumble at the 25. After overthrowing another halfback pass, Howard Gaddis made some amends with a tough run which dragged four Hornets down to the goal line. Three plays later Moore took it over for the TD, but the two point conversion failed.

Scott Studdard intercepted the Hornets after the kick, but Montevallo had to turn it over on downs at the Chelsea 25. One play later, however, the 'Dogs got it back when Sammy Nix fell on a Chelsea fumble at the 22.

Two plays later, behind a great block by Sammy Nix, Tim Jones flew in from the 22 to score.

Besides a 12-7 lead, Montevallo took a lot of momentum into halftime. One Bulldog running off the field was yelling, "We're going to spoil homecom-

In the third quarter Chelsea took the ball on downs at their own 41 and despite a holding penalty and a fumble which Hornet Gardner recovered, moved down to first and goal at Montevallo's eight. But tough defense by Wade Bice, Rex Wallace, Pickett and Nix blew Chelsea back to the 31 and MHS times without scoring. "When we took over.

Then it was self-destruct time again for Chelsea, and the 'Dogs hit fast.

After forcing Montevallo to punt, the Hornets fumbled and Wallace recovered for Montevallo at midfield. On the next play, Gaddis finally connected with Moore on a half back pass for 47 yards and the touchdown.

On the first play after the kickoff, Pickett stormed into the Hornets' backfield, causing and recovering a fumble at the nine.

From there it took four plays to score, but QB David Melsoni finally plunged over for the final TD of the game with 10:31 left on the clock.

After the 24-7 win, MHS Richard Gilliam called his players together and told them he was proud for three reasons. First off, they won. Secondly, they came from behind to do it. And thirdly, they delivered the big Savoring his feelings, Gilliam later told the Reporter, "We needed it (the win) bad. Oh, how we needed it! Oh, how I needed

He pointed out that Chelsea was the hardest team to move against the Bulldogs had faced. The key to the victory, Gilliam said, was that MHS capitalized on Chelsea's mistakes.

Chelsea head coach Daryl Burnham, commenting on all his team's turnovers, said, "I feel like Santa Claus. We could have overcome the penalties, but the fumbles killed us."

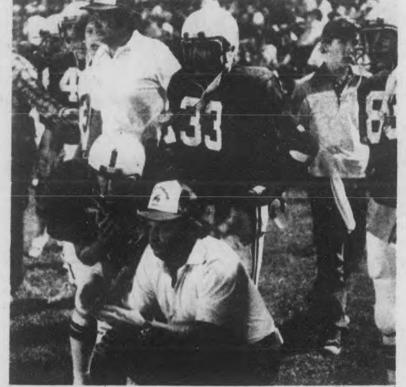

On the year, he noted, Chelsea has now been inside the 20 eleven reach the 20 it's like we go out in the wilderness and go blind. I think sometimes we want to put it in there so bad we get excited and forget our assignments. But we'll come back."

Both teams meet 3-A teams on the road this week. Chelsea tangles with Shelby County, while Montevallo faces tough Jemison.

If the faces on Chelsea head coach Daryl Burnham (kneeling), assistant coach Mike Sims (left) and Hornets Phil Blackerby (33) and Jock Efferson (83) don't look very pleased, it's probably because of the 24-7 wet blanket Montevallo is throwing on their homecoming.

If you think a lot of teams lost football games last Friday, take a look at the predictions my socalled "sports writers" conclave posted last week.

Richard Crosby, who found his crystal ball cracked after nearly a year in retirement, missed five picks out of seven. It was a record even for him. (Some would say Crosby's crystal was always a little cracked...)

Bill Plott posted the single respectable prediction of the week, missing only on Pelham and Calera. Mark Jones joined the 'three-strikes-and-you're-out'

David Armstrong and I were both blushing this weekend over our four misses. That was my karma for trying to say something funny about Chief Deputy James Jones and his pick-

While intruding on radio station personnel, we called on Dennis Cobb, Herman Watts and Lindsey Tennent, the spotters/commentators and sports caster who bring you 'BYE's game of the week Saturday morn-

Call it a whipping, a whopping, a clobber or goose egg. Call it whatever you want. The Shelby Academy Raiders recorded their third straight shutout last Friday as they laid Southern out cold 34

Coosa Valley was the last team to score against Shelby's Green Wall, and that touchdown came on a three-yard crash 12 and a half quarters ago.

Since then the Green Wall has effectively shut down the offenses of Cahawba (21-0), Demopolis (7-0) and now Southern Academy. On the way to their 3-1 record, the Raiders have outscored their opponents 71-12, a margin which equals about six to one.

Friday night at home against Southern, SA took a punt at their 35 and scored on their first possession. The big gainer in the seven play drive came behind the blocking of Terry Crabb when Clifton Garrett dashed off 27 yards to the ten. Two plays later it was Garrett outside to score. The PAT missed.

UM's coach Warren claims her 100th win

In the midst of a busy week that saw the Uiversity of Montevallo volleyball team play nine matches in six days, one event stood out like a beacon --Coach Beverly Warren's 100th win at Montevallo.

The big milestone came in the first match of a scheduled trimatch with Alabama A&M University and the University of Alabama in Birmingham at home on Sept. 23, and it was not without its share of controversy.

The Lady Falcons were set to play A&M at 6:30 p.m. in a threeout-of-five, as it was an AAIAW North District match. A&M, however, arrived a bit late and was unable to start on time, resulting in a subsequent decision by the state officials to declare the first game of the match a forfeit by A&M to Montevallo.

Naturally, this brought a vehement protest on the part of A&M , coach Betty Kelly, but apparently to no avail. When the remainder of the match was played, Montevallo erased all doubts about the outcome with a 15-7. 15-10 victory, giving Coach Warren her 100th win in her fourth season of directing the UM volleyball program.

In the second quarter Ken Ray jumped on a Southern fumble at the 38. Two plays later it was Garrett again, breaking outside and scoring behind Crabb and Brendon McClary. James Knowles kicked the PAT.

Near the end of the half Greg Young intercepted a Southern bomb and returned it to midfield. McClary scored from the 11 and Knowles kicked true again. At the half it was Southern 0, Green Garrett scored again after SA took the second half kick and drove from the 30 with the help of an 18-yard Dirk Carson - Alan Terrell pass. Garrett's third TD came on an 18 yard run and Knowles hit true on his toe trick.

All this time, even with subs in, the Green Wall defense held stout, denying Southern even the pleasure of a threat.

In the fourth quarter, with Marty Dobbs doing much of the running, the Raiders marched from their own 44 and Brian Russell scored from the six. Knowles' final kick made the score 34-0.

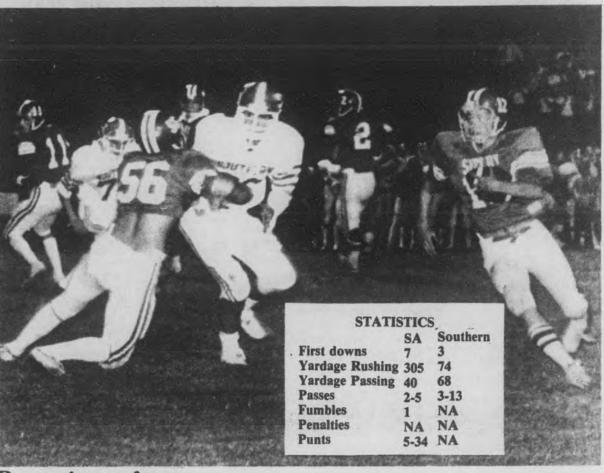

"We're playing real well on defense," commented Harry Rawlinson, now half way through his second season as SA head coach. "We pretty well got down what we need to do."

As for the Raider offense, Rawlinson said that they were finally beginning to prove what had been expected of them all along.

"We don't do anything special," admitted Rawlinson.

"We just try to play sound ball." put in a good showing. Besides the aforementioned This week the Green Wall sets players, the coach also noted that up at Minor Christian for a Scott Attaway and Matt Andrews scrappy game there.

Returning a favor

Raider Terry Crabb (12), usually does a lot of blocking for Shelby Academy. Sometimes, like against Southern, he gets to run, too. When he does, teammates like Greg Pickett (56) return the favor and throw blocks for him. (Photo by David

Jemison trounces on Calera

Had a couple Calera passes been not quite so long... Or a couple Calera receivers been a few inches taller...

But that's not the way things worked out Friday at the first game played in Oliver Park's newly dedicated Ricky M. Cairns Stadium. A strong, 3-A team from Jemison came to Calera and shut out the home boys 20-0.

"I'd have to say our boys practiced good all week and played with real enthusiam," commented head coach Danny Alverson on his now 3-2, 2-A Eagles. "But I'd also have to say we were a little out-classed and had to play over our heads."

Calera's 168 yards offense was their second best showing of the year. But whenever they got in- the third quarter, but didn't gain side the 20 the Jemison defense

Calera shut down an early

Jemison drive to the 20 but failed to move it on their possession. Jemison took the punt at the 38 and drove for the score. The TD came on a Casey Lowery pass to Ed Guy, and the PAT was good.

The Eagles made an effort at retaliation by taking the kick and moving to a first and goal on a 33-yard Ricky Winterbottom -Raymond King pass and two Winterbottom runs of 16 and eight. But with fourth down from the one, a quickie pass went high in the end zone, incomplete.

After an exchange of punts, Jemison scored on a 60-yard pass play from Lowery to Wayne Childress and hit the PAT to lead 14-0 at the half.

Calera didn't give up much in anything either.

Then in the final period the visitors intercepted Calera at the 32 and Barry Cleckler scored from the one six plays later. The PAT missed and the final score stood 20-0.

The Eagles now take a week's break to regroup before coming back October 10 for homecoming against their old rival, Verbena.

Alverson, however, wasn't that upset with the loss, saying, "We're pleased to be where we are (3-2) at this point of the season. We'll be putting together some things on offense this open week and maybe we can get something going down the line."

Lions lose game, learn lesson

It's not an everyday thing when team Lions ward off the score a coach can look at a loss and see something bright. But after his Briarwood Lions dropped a 20-15 decision to the Independent Methodist School Crusaders from Mobile, head coach Gary Fleming was still able to make one bright observation.

against Jemison with about 30 yards. The problem here is that 30 yards against the Panthers is like going grocery shopping with a

"When you get knocked down and stay down, that's defeat. When you get knocked down and get back up, that's a winner," he

After trailing 21-0 early in the O third quarter, the Lions rallied to score 15 points and might have scored more except for an untimely (aren't they all) interception in the fourth quarter.

"They (his Lions) didn't hang their heads and quit. They came back. That's growing up. We developed some character and that's what it's all about anyway," Fleming concluded.

IMS got on the board in the first quarter after a Lion kick to the 28. The six play scoring drive was capped by a pitchout good for 58 yards and six points. The PAT was true and Briarwood was quickly down 7-0.

A Briarwood drive into the second quarter fizzled out when the Crusaders held with fourth and short at their own 12.

IMS then drove inside Briarwood's 10, only to have the home and take possession. But then Briarwood threw an interception. Two plays later IMS connected for a 14 yard TD pass, and added the extra point.

The Crusaders scored the winning fare early in the third quarter with a 60-yard touchdown pass play. Scott Moorer was putting on the rush for Briarwood, and forced the quarterback to throw off balance, But the pass was completed anyway.

Briarwood struck right back, driving 54 yards in three plays. The TD came on a gutsy, 34-yard run by Mike Schor. Jeff Nelson connected with Clay Wheeler for IMS then drove to first and goal at the 10. But Briarwood got real stingy with the yardage and forced a field goal attempt from the four which missed.

In the final stanza Steven Lindsey made an interception for Briarwood at the IMS 41. From there Lindsey, Schor, Steve Key and Bric Baker ran to the two in seven plays. Lindsey put it over from the one and Nelson booted the PAT.

But 15 points weren't enough to win and Briarwood fell to 2-1 on the year.

Fleming said the game was lost on mental errors, but that Briarwood would grow from the loss and keep on going.

This week that "going" takes the Lions to Montgomery for a shot at avenging last years 14-8 loss to Trinty.

labaster promises open door

"I hope we can satisfy eveybody," exclaimed a new member of Alabaster's governing body at Monday evening's swearing-in ceremony.

The remark made by Glen Naish was applauded by the audience who gathered in the council chamber to see Judge Curt Payne install members of the new administration.

Telling citizens how he intends to operate his office, the city's new mayor, H.A. "Doc" Rubin said that "This will be a fulltime administration and the door to my office will always be open." In order to inform the public how their money is being spent, Rubin said that a treasury report would be given once a month.

To ensure citizens a chance to give their ideas for community improvement, the mayor announced there would be time allotted at each meeting for their suggestions.

Rubin listed a new arrangement of the departments which the council members supervise. The new groupings and those appointed to be in charge of them are as follows: Police and Fire -Roger Wheeler; Street and Sanitation - Glen Naish.

Health, Education, Public Relations - Cal McCune; Finance and Budget - L.O. Farris, who will be assisted by Adrian Busby: Park, Recreation and Utilities, Jack Reagin.

Board members were also appointed at the organizational meeting. They were: Water and Gas - Glen Naish, H.A. Rubin, Reid Long; Park, Recreation -

Buford Lee, Carl Davis, Planning - James L. Durrett,

Joseph Lewis; Medical - Phil Gamble; Adjustments - Mrs. Gladys Harper, Eddie Bentley.

Roger Wheeler was elected mayor pro-tem and the mayor reappointed city clerk Dot

After Councilman Farris jokingly said he was glad the city was getting a fulltime mayor at half price, Rubin replied that his service would be "an act of love."

"Just watch Alabaster grow," he declared, "we're not going to take a back seat to anybody.!"

Helena eyes new city hall

Mayor Charles "Sonny" Penhale has some big plans for Helena in the next four years and he revealed them after he and four councilmen took their oaths of office Monday night.

Topping the list is a new city hall complex which would house not only departmental offices and meeting chambers, but the utility board, jail and fire hall, too. Tentatively planned for the entrance road into Joe Tucker Park, Penhale said he thought the project could be financed through a bond sale.

"Look," he said to the 20 people crowded into his office and out into the hall, "we can't all get in here for a meeting. I'd like you to put (a new city hall) on the top of your priority list."

Penhale told the council that consideration needed to be given to the idea of moving the library into the old post office building which has now been vacated. The building could probably be rented from the postal department and grants could possibly be received for shelving and other modifications, he said.

On the topic of Liberty Heights, the mayor said zoning variances needed to be considered to allow citizens there to set up mobile homes. At Penhale's suggestion, councilman Billy Hinds moved that HUD applications be sought for financing sewers and street improvements in that area.

Work on the city's new ball park complex needs to continue so it will be ready for next year, Penhale pointed out.

Also put on the agenda for Helena's future is the hiring of a full time chief to head the town's volunteer fire department. Penhale said he didn't want to rush matters, but noted that it needed to be acted on quickly. The council decided to hold several closed meetings in the near future to interview applicants for the job.

Councilman Ron Erwin said one project he wanted to undertake was the removal of abandoned cars along Helena roads. Police Chief Gary Carter noted that at last count there were 43 such vehicles in town. Penhale said he would support Erwin's project and asked Carter to check Helena's parking ordinances.

Other matters acted on at the first meeting of the new council

* Bills for the past two months were paid.

* Frances Parrish was approved to continue as the city clerk for another four years.

* Sandy Tilly was hired as part time help for Mrs. Parrish. * CPA Zac Rodgers was approved to audit the municipal books.

* The resignation of police officer Steve Fancher was approved and he was subsequently hired as a temporary part time policeman.

* Chief Carter was directed to announce the auction of two old city cars.

* Another old city car was turned over for use by the utility

* Councilman Billy Harris, who heads the utility board, reminded everyone that the board meets on the fourth Monday night of the month.

* The meeting time of the council was moved up 30 minutes to 7 p.m. on the first and third Mondays of the month.

Councilman Jim Kwater, who was out of town, was absent from the meeting.

I'd never make it as a reporter on a New York City newspaper. That fact was brought home to me when I visited the "Big Apple" on my vacation last week. Not only would I not know what direction to turn when I hit the street, but I can't imagine what conveyance I would use to get there. The traffic is so bad that all the action would be over if I tried my luck in traveling by car.

So the only way I could get a story, I guess, would be to be on the scene when the action occurred.

And would you believe - that very thing happened as my sisterin-law took me on a guided tour of the city?

Too bad one of the metropolitan papers didn't have me on the staff because I would have had a scoop.

It all happened at the Fulton Fish Market. As my sister-in-law and I emerged from that building filled with fascinating shops and exotic eating places, police sirens could be heard coming from every direction.

Then patrol cars with their lights flashing came into sight, zig-zagging through traffic as startled motorists tried to get out of their way.

Realizing he'd gone too far, the driver of one of the police cars screeched to a halt and proceeded to do a speedy back-up.

Another car we observed, mistakenly turned the wrong way on a one way street. But it didn't bother the driver - he just kept

Two handcuffed men were being put in a paddy wagon as we approached. And supposing that New York City's finest wouldn't be about to tell a Shelby County reporter what was going on, I buttonholed a man who had been watching the capture.

He told me the men were suspected of being involved in a shooting a few blocks away.

So there I was, on the scene of the action when it didn't count. But you know, even if I was writing for a New York daily and got the story, I probably wouldn't ever have found my way back to the office.

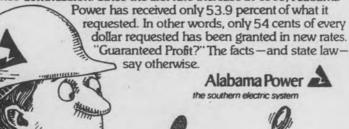

That little incident made me realize just how lucky I am to be working in a rural area. I may get lost, and I may be late, but sooner or later I'll get to where I'm going.

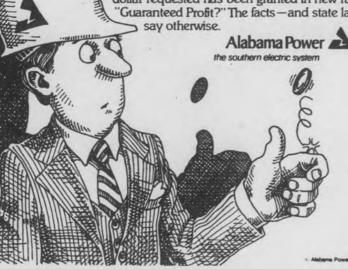

Most of the time anyway.

Charges mount against Pelham man

Jewelry, a large amount of cash, and several weapons were found Friday in the car trunk of Pelham resident Morris O. Davis.

Federal agents, Pelham police and a Shelby County Sheriff's department investigator had stopped Davis to serve a warrant on federal drug and firearm violations.

After he was arrested by agents from the department of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, the lawmen discovered a concealed pistol in the car.

A search warrant was obtained by Sgt. John Pratt from the Sheriff's department and the contraband was found in the trunk.

According to Pelham Police Department Investigator, Capt. Alan Wade, the loot consisted of jewelry, some silver objects, approximately $29,000 in cash, two pistols and two shotguns.

Davis and his wife were arrested last spring after drugs and firearms were found in their possession.

The couple operate Tobacco World at the intersection of Highways 31 and 261 in Pelham.

Wade reported that federal agents transported Davis to the U.S. Marshal's office Friday where he made bond.

On Monday, Wade said, the tobacco store owner surrendered himself at the Shelby County jail on the charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

He made bond again, and was released.

Columbiana tackle plays for Bear, mom

A former player for the Shelby County High School Wildcats is now helping the Crimson Tide of Alabama win games. But his dedication to winning isn't just for the Tuscaloosa school and Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant.

The sophomore defensive tackle who graduated from Shelby County High School in 1978 says he wants to succeed because of his mom.

"I have a mother that has given me more love than any set of parents has ever given anybody," Shinn told a Tuscaloosa News sport's writer

He related that his father had left the family when he was only a year old and that his mother and relatives in Calera had been responsible for rearing him and his two brothers.

But Shinn's mother wasn't among the crowd of parents who recently attended a players' dinner at Paul Bryant Hall.

Mrs. Shinn has a brain tumor and is confined to Briarcliff Nursing Home in Alabaster.

Before her illness, Mrs. Shinn was attending college and studying to be a dietician.

When her family was growing up, she helped support them by working as a cashier in a grocery

"I've lived a lifelong dream by coming to Alabama," Shinn said, but he related that his mother had only been able to see him play once - that was in a junior varsity game.

An now, because of the tumor, Mrs. Shinn has lost most of her eyesight.

But even though she won't be able to watch him, Shinn declared that he wants to play his best to please his mother.

"She worked so hard for so long," he pointed out, "so I could make something out of myself, so that's what I've got to do for her."

The county libraries are coming up with a solution by starting up their winter story hours for all pre-school children. Each story hour will have the usual story to read, plus films, games, crafts, activities and special events particulary around holidays. It will be fun for all, helping children meet new playmates and cheering up some lonely hours during the long winter.

Check camouflage suit; bowhunting time's here

by Sylvester Shaw

Bowhunter's opening day is Oct. 15, and that means back to the woods. I know a lot of people who like to sit down at a table with a big plate of biscuits and a deer roast with potatoes, carrots, onions and pepper all over it. It makes me want to go before I'm ready.

By the way, are you ready? Here are a few things to think

Does my treestand need a new camouflage paint job? Do my arrows need new feathers? Are my broadheads still sharp from last

Do I need a new string for my bow? Is my compound in tune? Will my quiver still hold my hunting arrows? Do I have any buck scent? Do I need a cable guard on my bow? Do I need brush buttons and string silencers? Does my bow need a new camouflage paint job?

Will my camouflage suit fit me this year?

Bowhunting archery is just now starting to really grow in the

It's a great family sport, so carry your boy hunting so you won't be hunting your boy.

Now is the time to get out in the woods and do your scouting. The acorns are falling and so are the leaves. The deer are making their winter trails from the bedding area to their feeding grounds. Look for fresh trails and new droppings, not summer trails. Look for watering areas; they may stay the same winter and summer.

Planning your hunt will pay off in the long run. Make sure you have all the licenses required by law to hunt.

Make sure you have all your permits and respect the landowners land. Don't leave any trash and close all gates. Tell the landowner that you are hunting with a bow and arrow. This might help you to get a permit.

Make sure you have all your equipment before leaving home: matches, flashlight, rain gear, drag, rope, ice chest, food, cooking equipment, just to name a few.

Just like a Boy Scout always be prepared!

Good luck! I hope you take the world's record with your bow and arrow.

"IS IT TRUE?"

SOME PEOPLE ASK, "How does it make you feel?" "Will it work?" This seems to be a popular view THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION is heartfelt, and Bible heart is the intellect, the will and the emotions. Feeling right, however, does not make us right. There is a way that seems right, but is wrong. (Proverbs 14:12). Serving God acceptably is more than emotionalism.

SUBJECTIVISM IS the theory that individual feeling is the ultimate criterion of what is right and good; however, God says that "the way of man is not in himself; it is not in many who walks to direct his steps." (Jeremiah 10:23).

TRUTH AND DISCIPLESHIP. Jesus says, "If you continue in my word, then you are my disciples indeed; and you shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." (John 8:31,32). We must ask, "Is it true?" God's word is truth. (John 17:17).

Warriors down Pelham to go 6-0

One day the Pelham Panthers will beat the Thompson Warriors in a football game. The date will be entered in a big green history book and folks in Alabaster won't hear the end of it all year. One day...

But October 3, 1980 was a Redletter date. Thompson beat Pelham 24-13.

It was a sweet homecoming victory for the Warriors who kept their winning streak alive, climbing to an enviable 6-0 record.

But Pelham gave it a good shot last Friday. They opened the game with a stunning bomb from Steve Rye to Tracey Swinney good for 40 yards. From Thompson's 26, Panther Brian Bolton did most of the running, scoring six plays later from the seven. He kicked the PAT to give the Panthers an early 7-0 edge.

The THS fans were stunned as the vistors across the way exploded with cheering. The explosion didn't even have time to die. Moments later Arthur Johnson fumbled into Jud Halcomb's hands at the THS 29.

But during the next four plays, Johnson hit Pelham for a two yard loss, almost intercepted a pass, (the referee said it hit the ground; this reporter saw differently) and Joe Glass sacked Rye for minus 13. Instead of a 14-0 lead, Pelham had to turn it over on downs.

With the aid of a key pass from Chuck Woody to Glass, Thompson then drove 56 yards in 11 plays. Johnson dove for the TD from the one and John Durrett kicked the extra point to tie the

After the kick, Pelham drove from their 29 to Thompson's 12, with Rye and Barry Faulkner picking up most of yardage. But Thompson toughened and the Panthers were forced to try a 27-yard field goal, which fizzled.

From the 20, Thompson mounted a nine-play scoring drive, including a 17-yard Woody to Glass pass. The TD came on a 58-yard pass play from Woody to Charlie Griffin, who beat his man long for clear sailing to the end zone. Durrett booted the

As his players lined up for the kick, Pelham head coach Steve Rivers clapped his hands and hollered from the sidelines, "I don't want to see any heads drop!'

The Panthers kept their heads up, but their yardage was another story. Lead by Billy Lawley, the THS defense forced Pelham to punt with fourth and 24. Then a Thompson fumble recovered by Matt Mace moments later gave Pelham position at the 35. But four plays later they were still at the 35 and Thompson took over again.

Bill Greene and Chuck Hughes made good defensive plays for Pelham, but the last few minutes of the half showed how badly the officials let the rivalry get out of hand as one THS player was booted from the game.

Thompson took the second half kick and, mostly behind some of Johnson's hardest running of the year, drove 42 yards in eight plays.

Then, on what Rivers later marked as the turning point of the game, flanker Griffin pulled some razzle-dazzle and hit Todd Harris for a 25-yard TD pass play. Johnson ran it in for two and Thompson was on top 22-7.

The contact for the remainder of the game was intense, especially when Thompson runners Woody and Johnson plowed into stubborn Pelham defenders.

Late in the third quarter Pelham stopped a drive when Scott Beauregard tackled Johnson on fourth down, short of a first at the 10. But the Panthers were unable to get out of the hole and when they went to punt from the end zone, the snap sailed over the punter's head for

In the fourth THS drove as close as the five, but Pelham and penalties stopped another TD.

Panther Todd Bass picked up a Thompson fumble late in the game and coupled with a face mask call, gave Pelham the ball at the seven. Three plays later Bolton scored from the one. The two-point conversion failed, making the score 24-13.

After a fumble recovery by Mike Couch, Halcomb ran 28 yards to the 10, where Pelham was left sitting as time ran out.

After the game THS head coach Larry Simmons noted he wants to develop some better disipline and "eliminate our mistakes."

"I believe there was more effort on defense this week, but we still had some breakdowns," he

"I still believe Pelham has a good football team. I'm glad the game's over. But our next four in a row (Childersburg, Sylacauga, B.B. Comer and Pell City) are going to be real tough," Simmons pointed out.

After dropping three straight games and falling to 2-4, Rivers said he's glad Pelham has an open date this week.

As for Thompson, Rivers commented, "We're disappointed. We went over there to win.

"Thompson has a good team. I think Thompson has a good shot at winning the whole thing. I hope they do."

Aditional standouts in the game were Warriors Rick Long, Jeff Bentley, Tom Puckett, Mark Barnett and Pelham's Chris Cutcliff.

The Wildcats tried to take the lead with a two point conversion, but Hornets Charlie Jones, Chris Thomas and Shaw denied them.

Chelsea made one serious drive in the third quarter, but the tough Wildcat defense stopped them on fourth down at the 33.

Defense continued to be the name of the game up until Benton connected with Sims at 5:36 in the fourth for the go ahead

"Chelsea was ready for the ballgame and in the first half they physically whipped all over the field," commented SCHS head coach Larry Molton. "I was not pleased with our first half effort, but we came out in the second half and played better football.

"Our kids decided they wanted to play."

Now 2-3 on the year, the young Wildcats face a nightmare schedule of five strong 3-A opponents, starting with Pell City next week at home. Molton adds, however, that he does "see some good sparks here and there. Hopefully in the future we'll start absorbing more knowledge of the game and get better."

Chelsea, on the other hand, slips to 0-5, and faces a tough trip to Winterboro next week, an area team that no doubt is developing a bad taste for Shelby County opponents, after losing to Calera and Vincent.

"It'll take a real gut effort to stay with Winterboro," commented Chelsea's first year head coach Daryl Burnham. "This is a good football area. Playing tough people takes its toll.

"I'd say Shelby County was the first time we played a total game this year. We hung in there and fought for 48 minutes real good. But we're just going to have to work that much harder. It speaks highly of the type of kids these are that they come back every Monday ready to go."

Burnham finished up saying, 'We're getting some character and pride. Now, if we'd get a win..."

The race is on in Region Four

Q. What does 3-A, Region decided by a tournament among Four, Area 8, and 2-A, Region the eight regional champions. Four, Area 7 mean?

A. Shelby county high school football action that's what!

But what's a 3-A? A Region Four? An Area 7? Chances are, you've always heard these terms, but never quite understood how these classifications work.

The system was set up by the Alabama High School Athletic Associaiton in Montgomery to classify the whole scope of high school athletics from golf, track and tennis to baseball, basketball and football.

The first thing the classification system does is break down schools according to their net enrollment in grades 10, 11 and

A 1-A school is any high shool with less than 159 students in its top three grades. Until last year, Calera was Shelby County's only 1-A school.

This year Calera has moved into the 2-A bracket with an enrollment of 161. The other 2-A schools in the county are Chelsea, with 208 students in the top three grades, Vincent with 234, and Montevallo with 262.

AHSAA categorizes schools enrolling 160-299 students as 2-A, and recognizes 108 schools in that category.

A 3-A schools has a net enrollment of 300-699 students and there are 115 such schools in the state. Shelby County's 3-A "club" includes SCHS, with 346 students, Pelham, with 550 and Thompson, with 573.

4-A schools enroll from 700 students up, and 79 schools compete in that category.

With the exception of the 4-A institutions, high schools in the state are divided into regions numbered one through eight. Each region is divided into two areas, numbered one through 16.

In football, the road to a state championship for a given classification requires a team first to win their area championship, which is done by recording the best win-loss record against all the other schools in the area. The two area champions in a given region then play each other for the regional championship. The state championship is then

In the 3-A Area 8, SCHS, Thompson and Pelham compete against Childersburg, B.B. Comer, Pell City and Sylacauga. The winner of that area will compete for the regional title against the winner of Area 7, either Lanett, Stanhope Elmore, Tallahassee, Valley, Wetumpka or LaFayette.

In the 2-A Area 7, Calera, Chelsea, Vincent and Montevallo compete with Talladega County Training School (TCTS) and Winterboro. That area champion will then face the 2-A champ from Area 8, either Ashville, Munford, Ohatchee, Piedmont or Talladega County (Lincoln).

Basketball championships work in a similar manner except that the area champ is determined by an area tournament, as opposed to win-loss records.

4-A schools are not divided into areas, but instead 12 regions. The state football championship is determined by playoffs between the 12 regional champs and four wild card teams choosen by a point system.

But whatever the classification, area or region, all a team has to do to make it to the top is simply keep winning.

Yellow Jackets keep record perfect

Vincent slides past Winterboro 7-0

It might have been just another cool, quiet autumn night in Vincent. It might have been. Instead, it was Friday and the unbeaten Vincent Yellow Jackets were playing host to the Winterboro Bulldogs.

It was anything but cool and quiet.

In the end Vincent won the area match 7-0, boosting their perfect record to 5-0. But it didn't come easy.

The Winterboro defense did an excellent job of containing the explosive Sidney Yowe and Vincent's entire running attack. And three times the tough Bulldogs threatened.

As Vincent head coach Harold Garrett put it, "It was a hotly contested ballgame. It wasn't classic, but it was pretty exciting.'

No doubt the large rowdy crowd on hand would agree.

Winterboro took the opening kick and marched right at the Yellow Jackets, controlling the ball for 10 minutes and driving as close as the 18. However, the Jacket defense rose to the occasion, led by Bobby Howard, Maurice Kelley and Brian Hartsfield, and stopped Winterboro on fourth and three.

Vincent's winning touchdown was set up by a second quarter interception by David Peterson to the Bulldog 20. One of the many flying yellow flags that night backed the ball back to the 35.

Then, on third and five QB James Oden kept the ball on a bootleg play, rounded his left end, and behind blocks by Dennis Datcher and Tim Smith, ran it in for the score. Amid the wild cheering that broke the quiet autumn night, Rodney Driggers booted the PAT.

In the third quarter Winterboro again moved on Vincent, coming within field goal range. But a 30-yard attempt for three sailed wide to the right.

At the end of the third quarter a quick moving Bulldog swiped a handoff from Oden at the 30. One play later they had a first and goal at the six, but again the Yellow Jacket defense refused to die and denied the score.

An unfortunate disturbance in the fourth quarter got one Vincent player ejected from the game and nearly incited a brawl. Of that incident, Garrett said he was extremely proud of his boys for not losing their composure.

Garrett's fifth win since taking the Vincent helm was witnessed by his brother, Gary, who was in town and (of course) coundn't resist the temptation to watch the team he led last year to an 8-2 record and the title of the Reporter's Team of Year.

Harold Garrett, noting that Calera beat Winterboro 18-0, said he was a bit concerned overwhat might happen when the Jackets have to tangle with the Eagles on Halloween. Even more on Garrett's mind was the game in Montevallo this week.

Said Garrett, "I don't like to play coach (Richard) Gilliam. He does a good job. He does as good a job, or even better, than anybody we play on a regular basis.

"They'll run no telling what at us," Garrett continued. "You have to be on your toes and have your people conditioned to play intelligently."

Garrett's main regret about the Winterboro game was not being able to play more of his boys. But after the game he said they all talked about it and decided that there was enough glory in the win for them all to be proud.

Green Wall zips fourth victim

Last week the headlines proclaimed that Shelby Academy KO'ed Southern for their third straight shutout. This week Minor Christian caught the knockout punch as the Raiders upped their shutout record to four straight.

The hosting team is called the Stars, and after the Raiders pounded them 40-0, that's probably just what they were seeing stars. It's a good thing the game didn't last 15 rounds.

SA wasted no time in going for the knockout. After the Green Wall defense forced Minor to punt, the offense scored on its first play from scrimmage.

Quarterback Dirk Carson turned a keeper up field, picked up blocks from Brendan McClary, James Knowles and Ken Ray, and dashed off a 61-yard TD run. Knowles booted the PAT and for all practical purposes, the game could have ended with about 9:00 left in the first quarter.

But it didn't.

After Minor's next punt SA took over at midfield. Following a 29-yard pass play from Carson to Allen Terrell, Marty Dobbs scored from the 10. The PAT missed.

Again the Green Wall forced the punt. On second down Carson, calling an audible at the line, ran a QB sneak for a 60-yard score. The PAT missed, but by the end of round one the score was 19-0, with SA driving again.

The next punch came at 11:54 in the second quarter when Dobbs capped a 66-yard drive with a nine-yard outside scoot to score. Knowles hit the PAT.

Scott Attaway recovered a fumble at Minor's 30 to set up a 14-yard TD run by Brian Russell four plays later. Knowles kicked the PAT.

With 1:09 left in the half, Minor's center sent a snap sailing over the punter's head for a safety, giving SA a 34-0 lead.

Minor's only serious threat of the game came during the second quarter when they drove to the nine with the help of missed assignments by Shelby. A fumble ended the threat.

Clifton Garrett returned the second half kick to the SA 49, then helped McClary move the ball down the nine. From there Russell punched out the final points of the game. Except for a few breakdowns on their pass coverage, head coach Harry Rawlinson said the defense played sound ball. "I've got confidence in it. The kids have confidence in it."

Still, Rawlinson added, "We need work. We need work every day."

One reason they need work is that 5-1 Talladega Academy, who beat CVA last week 34-21, comes to Shelby for homecoming Friday. Last year they put the clamps on the Raiders 36-0.

As Shelby Academy climbs to 4-1 on the season, the possibility rises of another shot at CVA in post season play.

Briarwood wakes up, rallies to beat Trinity

Nobody heard the alarm clock go off, but something woke up the Briarwood Lions before the end of the first half. Maybe it was Trinity's two second quarter touchdowns, one of which came on a 57-yard run.

At any rate, it took the Lions a while to get going Friday night at home. Once they did, however, they played pretty good ball good enough to beat Trinity Down 14-0 in the second stanza, Briarwood crawled out of bed to put together a 68-yard scoring drive. On the 17th play of the drive Steve Lindsey ran it over from the three and Jeff Nelson passed to Clay Wheeler for the conversion.

Briarwood took the second half kick on their 39 and ate a big chunk out of the clock as they controlled the ball for 11 plays. After good gainers by Bric Baker and Mike Schor, Mike McCrary ran 14 yards for the tying TD. The two-point attempt failed.

Trinity came back pushing hard, but couldn't push Briarwood's defense any farther than the Lions' 19.

Taking over on downs, Lions Baker and McCrary moved Briarwood down to the 33 and from there Steve Key rambled in for the winning score. The PAT missed, making the final 20-14.

Briarwood threatened again in the fourth quarter but fumbled the ball away at Trinity's 35. And in the closing minutes of the game Nelson made an interception at the Lions' 40 to end a threatening Trinity drive.

"We were fortunate to come out alive," commented Lion head man Gary Fleming. "We went to sleep for most of the first half."

Although Fleming said he didn't know exactly what woke up his boys, he did say he felt they had been lacking in confidence since their 20-15 loss the week before to Independent Methodist School.

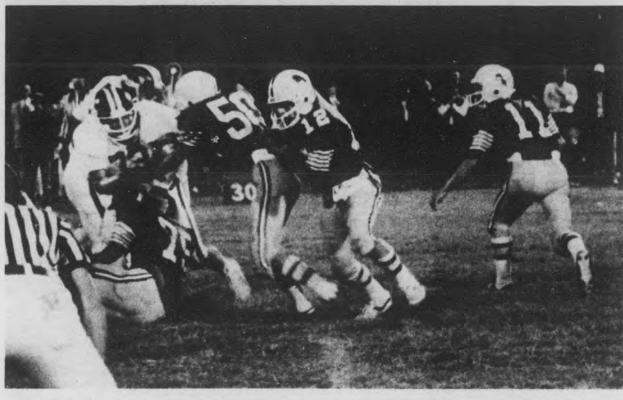

This week against Lyman Ward, however, the coach said his team should be ready to take on that school's two fast backs.

Will Briarwood beat Lyman Ward? "Yes, sir!" Fleming asserted.

Schor was leading rusher against Trinity with 101 yards in 13 carries. McCrary picked up 79 yards in 15 hauls, while Baker and Lindsey went 10 for 61 and 16 for 42, respectively.

Now 3-1 overall, Briarwood stands 2-1 in ACAC play. And, depending on just how the chips fall, they might get another shot

Montevallo falls but cherry picker works

"It was the quickest I've ever Jemison recovered at the four. been down 14-0 in 12 years of coaching."

Montevallo head coach Richard Gilliam wasn't crying. He wasn't exactly laughing, either. But at least it was funnier than it was sad.

And it could have been worse. The Bulldogs' cherry picker could have bombed out. As it turned out, though, the cherry picker worked and the score was (only) 28-6, Jemison over Montevallo.

Jemison took the opening kick and drove 63 yards in five quick plays. "We were only slowing them down," Gilliam said. Casey Lowery scored on a sneak and Allen Wilson kicked the first of Montevallo bumbled a pitch on its first play from scrimmage and On the next play Panther Barry Cleckler scored and the PAT was

It took 3:48 seconds for MHS to fall 14 points behind.

Twice Montevallo drove to the 19 only to turn the ball over on downs due to fumbles and penalties.

In the second quarter MHS played some of their best defense of the year, holding Jemison to only two first downs. (After going 1-5, Gilliam good-naturedly explained that he has learned to seek out and record such bright spots.)

Two more times in the game Montevallo drove inside the 25, losing the ball once to a fumble, once to Jemison's tough defense.

At the end of the third quarter Jemison mounted an 11-play, 69-yard drive and again Lowery scored and the PAT hit true.

In the fourth quarter Curtis Childs led the Bulldog pack on a 74-yard chase and scored Jemison's final TD with Scott Studdard nipping at his heels. The PAT made it 28-0.

Then, as Gilliam had promised Jemison coach Ron Swan before the game, MHS ran the cherry picker for the third time this year, and for the third time they scored a TD from it.

The score was set up by a 31-yard pass from Howard Gaddis to Studdard. Then Gaddis dropped back, ala Statue of Liberty. Tim Jones, who rushed for 100 yards in 15 carries that evening, picked the ball from his hands and dashed off the 37-yard

This week MHS hosts area powerhouse Vincent. It'll be a tough game, but Gilliam's not counting out his boys and neither is VHS coach Harold Garrett.

"You know," Gilliam says, (always looking for light,) "I haven't given up the feeling that we can tie for the area even if we don't deserve it. Maybe I'm a trifle optimistic, but it's better than being gloomy."

Momentum deserts Rebs at TA

Coosa Valley Academy lost a razzle dazzle road game to Talladega Academy Friday by a score of 34-21. When the seesaw finally came to rest the score had been tied twice and the lead changed hands three times.

'That momentum is a funny thing..." commented CVA head coach Mark Green after the game.

Here's why Green said that: Talladega scored first, taking the opening kick and "ramming it down our throats," as Green described the drive. The PAT missed, but TA had picked up the momentum.

But momentum can be fickle, and after Talladega had to punt twice, it changed sides in the seand quarter and joined the Rebels who had field position at their own 45.

From there CVA drove in short hard runs to the five where Jim Haney crashed over for the score. Ty Williams booted the PAT as momentum decided to sit for a while on the visitor's sidelines.

The CVA defense held and after a bad punt the offense went to work again at midfield. The scoring drive was capped when OB Mike Norred ran it over from the eight. Williams kicked the extra point to give the Rebels a 14-6 lead.

But momentum was getting itchy and changed sides again after a punt exchange which gave TA the ball at Coosa Valley's 40. Talladega threw two passes and scored with :05 left in the half. After a two point conversion, momentum followed TA into the locker room at halftime.

On the second play of the third quarter momentum reminded CVA that it was still on the other side. A Talladega player picked off a Norred pass, broke a couple tackles and returned it 40 yards to score. The extra point was good.

Fighting both TA and the momentum, CVA lashed back with a 70-yard drive that saw Norred score from the five. Williams PAT tied the score at

But the home boys would have none of that and put together a 70-yard drive of their own to go ahead 28-21.

A bad punt in the fourth quarter gave TA the ball at CVA's 35, and with a minute and a half left, Talladega scored again, making the final 34-21.

"I thought we were ready to play, but apparently we weren't," commented Green. "We must have left our defense at Coosa Valley.

"They out hit us, out hustled us, out coached us - they deserved to win. They out played us."

Even talking over the phone you could almost see Green shake his head when he said momentum is a funny thing.

Though still 3-0 in their area, CVA now falls to 4-2 on the season. This week they play a team called "IDLE" before returning to host area competitor Central of Montgomery on October 17.

Machinery dwarfs visitors

Families of the 250 employees at Martin Marietta were conducted on a tour of the plant Saturday, and some of them saw the facility for the first time. Family day initiated

"I never dreamed it was so big," declared one of the guests who toured the Martin Marietta plant Saturday.

Even though her husband has worked for 15 years at the industry located between Calera and Montevallo, the woman said that she had never been through the facility.

And that was one of the main reasons why plant manager Charles Miller decided to initiate a Family Day - so spouses and children of the plant's 250 employees could see where their relative worked.

The affair included a tour, arbecue luncheon and door

Guests began boarding vans around 10 a.m. for a drive through the quarry 300 feet below ground level. And then they were guided through the various buildings and shown the equipment and told how it was operated.

Miller reported that the lime plant produces 900 tons of lime per day and the cement plant produces 1,800 tons of clinker on a daily basis.

Visitors were told that there is only one other ball mill in the United States like the one at Southern Cement, which grinds an average of 250 tons of cement an hour.

Complying with environmental safety standards, the plant has several million dollars worth of air pollution control equipment.

And according to Miller, employees have also done their part toward plant safety.

There hasn't been a lost time accident for 414 days, he announced Saturday.

As an incentive to keep that record intact, $50 gift certificates on groceries are drawn for by hourly employees, each month that's accident free.

Bi-annual inspections of both the cement and lime plants also helps in maintaining safety awareness, Miller said.

County approves 6.7 million budget

A budget described as "realistic" by commissioner Harold Davenport, was adopted Monday by the county's governing body.

"I feel as though we've been conservative," Davenport remarked as he revealed the $6,703,442.64 figure on which the county expects to operate this

He noted that it had been difficult to draw up a budget because the amount of revenue expected from the reappraisal program is still unknown.

This year's budget reflects an increase of $797,118.81 over last year's figure, Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden said.

The $991,508.78 allotted to the sheriff's department makes it possible for four more road deputies to be employed and an additional five patrol cars to be purchased.

A $35 bi-weekly raise for county employees included in this year's budget contributes to the increase.

However, a savings of approximately $60,000 is expected by the discontinuance of the beer stamp program.

The commission authorized Snowden to go to Washington next month to help assure the passage of the revenue sharing

Expressing his approval of the trip, Davenport said, "That means nearly a half million bucks to us and it's already in the budget."

Other anticipated revenue to fund county departments and programs, includes $969,536 from the one cent sales tax passed in May, and $600,000 from the new four cent gasoline tax.

Commissioners expressed displeasure over paying a $279.26 bill for paint and plaster which was used to spruce up the third floor tax reappraisal office in the courthouse.

Since there was confusion in the minutes about whether the expenditure had ever been approved, the panel agreed to pay for the supplies.

But Commissioner Jake Morris was adamant in saying there should be a crack down on paying bills unless prior approval was given.

"We could have done the job cheaper ourselves," Davenport noted.

In other business, the commission approved a resolution presented by Highway Director Gary Ray.

The document will allow the highway department to do blading, patching and other work on more of the county's 900 miles of roads.

According to Ray, stipulations are that a road must be at least 100 feet in length, have been in existence prior to March 8, 1971 and serve two or more families who are not related.

Dr. Wissing said Bradford told them he had been advised by his attorney not to comment further on the matter. After the staff meeting the doctors met seperately as the Shelby County Medical Society and drafted two resolutions which are being fowarded to SMH board director Ben Grubbs. Dr. Wissing, who is president of the society, said the first resolution was in support of Sherer as an asset to the hospital because of her recognized ability. The second resolution stated that contrary to Bradford's claim, the medical staff had not been informed of Sherer's dismissal, nor did it give approval to Bradford's action. "We're very concerned about it. It seems unusual. I think the physicians want reasons and are concerned why (Sherer was fired)," Dr. Wissing said.

He added that a joint conference committee to discuss the problem might be called before the hospital board meets again on October 28.

Medical staff member Dr. Frank Abernathy said he was quite surprised at Sherer's dismissal. Just last Wednesday he had stopped her in the hall of the hospital and complimented her on the quality of nursing service at Shelby Memorial, he said.

Dr. Abernathy stated that he was concerned that Bradford had claimed to have the approval of the medical staff. "I think Betty Sherer is a fine and excellent director of nursing services. I was sorry to see her terminated--especially in the manner in which it was done," he told the Reporter. Sherer, who lives with her wasn't in when Shelco's suit charging voting irregularities was heard Wednesday, the plantiff's attorney Bill Justice says his investigation should be completed this week. The July 8 election to establish Shelco as a fire district lost by just 10 votes. And Shelco Chief Doug Ballard and the fire and rescue unit's board of trustees believe that ineligible people voted in that election. Justice said his clients hope to find that at least 11 voters were ineligible to cast ballots so the election can be overturned.

Witnesses in the two hour trial in Judge Robert Armstrong's courtroom also testified to other procedures they thought questionable that took place at the polling place. Ballard and Forrest Crim, secretary of Shelco's board of trustees, filed the suit against Probate Judge Tommy Snowden in order for a new election to be called. Because each name on the polling list is being checked in the tax assessor's office, County attorney Frank Ellis and Justice were still not sure at the time of the trial, how many voters didn't actually reside within the district.

Justice said at the trial, that six voters had been found whose land had been assessed outside the district. However, he admitted that a mistake might have been made in the assessment or that they might rent property within the district.

Seven witnesses, including Justice, testified in behalf of Shelco. Poll workers claimed that chief inspector Pat Smith went into the booth to assist eight or more voters without the necessary forms being filled out.

It was also contended that one poll worker made adverse remarks to voters concerning the district before they entered the voting booth. G.E. McGraw, who lived umbiana city hall, wasn't registered at the time of the election, related that he was stopped at the door and told that he couldn't vote. He said he thought the person who spoke to him was a poil watcher.

The plantiff's attorney pointed out that such instructions shouldn't have been given by a poll watcher. But when she took the stand, the chief inspector, Pat Smith, said that it was she who told McGraw he couldn't vote.

And while she admitted helping several people in the voting booth without filling out the required forms, Smith said she only explained what was on the machine.

She also denied that any campaigning had gone on while the polls were open.

Three poll workers took the stand for the defense which was represented by attorney Frank Ellis.

The smaller of the two courtrooms at the Shelby County Courthouse was filled to capacity during the trial.

But the audience, which consisted of backers and opponents of the fire district, sat quietly during the trial.

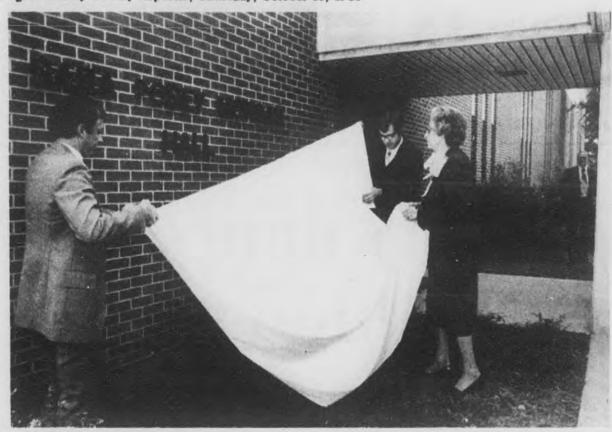

Witnesses for the plantiff were: Poll workers Mary Russell, Mary Thompson and Sylvia Byrd and voters John A. Ballard, Jim Epperson and G.E. McGraw.

Poll workers taking the stand for the defense were: Bertha Wyatt, Bob Draper and Carol Jones.

Candidates weren't asked any questions while they were seated on the stage at Chelsea School Monday night.

Chelsea Principal Brad Stephens moderated the program which allowed candidates for county and national office a maximum of five minutes to speak.

While incumbents pointed to their accomplishments in office, and those seeking to unseat them expressed a need for change, the importance of voting was stressed by several of the speakers.

Lollipop drive helps lick cancer

Lollipops are entering the "Help Lick Cancer" campaign.

During this month and November local American Cancer Society volunteers will be asking county residents to make a $1 donation in exchange for a lollipop that measures 5 inches in diameter and weights 5 ounces.

Ken Williams, president of the county chapter, said the kickoff of the program begins in the midst of a flurry of good news stories about encouraging results from a variety of new cancer treatments.

The good news about cancer is not a major breakthrough; it's an accumulation of small gains by researchers working on many fronts. But this is the way the war against cancer must be fought. Already enough progress has been made to save the lives of at least 1 of the 4 Americans who will be diagnosed as having cancer in 1980.

"The fight against cancer must be financed in the same way-by an army of contributors working on many fronts," said Williams. "Cancer will hit one in four of us someday; if it has not already it will inevitably hit close to everyone of us. And everyone of us should be contributing to the fight against it," said Williams. "You can Help Lick Cancer and also play a role in the battle against cancer."

Safety Center studies smashups

Traffic accidents in three Alabama counties are the subject of a new three-year national traffic accident study which began Wednesday.

Conductd by the University of Montevallo's Alabama Traffic Safety Center, the study will concentrate on accidents in Shelby, St. Clair and Tuscaloosa Counties. It will be one of 50 such studies conducted around the nation by the U.S. Department of Transportation, according to J.C. Draper, UM center director.

The National Accident Study System (NASS) seven-man survey team will work with local law enforcement officers and medical facility staffs to gather the data.

Clair Counties have already been under the scrutiny of a Montevallo-based NASS team since 1977, when UM landed one of the 10 NASS pilot project contracts in traffic accident data col-

The two counties had been selected because of high accident rates and because both counties combined rural and suburban conditions. Tuscaloosa County was selected because it is an example of a relatively small urban area, Draper said.

Value of county farm crops drops

The market value of agricultural products sold by the 505 farms in Shelby County amounted to $11.8 million for 1978 or an average of $23,267 each, down from $12.2 million in 1974, according to a preliminary report of the 1978 Census of Agriculture released today by the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce.

A breakdown of the county's total agricultural sales for 1978 followed by that for 1974, is as follows: Crops, $3 million compared with $2 million; livestock and livestock products, $6.5 and $5 million; poultry and poultry products, $2.2 and $5 million.

Expenditures for fertilizer for Some 92 percent of the operators 1978 were $675,000 compared to $572,000; costs of gasoline, diesel and other petroleum products were $594,000 compared to $304,000. Farm energy costs of all types totaled $766,000 for 1978. The estimated market value of machinery and equipment per farm increased from $12,419 to $28,061.

Of the total farms in the county, 72 had gross sales of $40,000 or more and 358 had sales of under $10,000. Farms operated by individuals or families represented 91 percent of the total; farms operated by corporations accounted for 3 percent. owned all or part of the land they operated.

In 1978 the average age of farm operator was 52 years. Since 1974 the proportion of operators listing farming as their principal occupation changed from 33 percent to 32 percent.

Other results of the census show the 505 farms counted in 1978 had an average size of 186 acres. For 1974, 526 farms were counted with an average size of 181 acres. The land in farms totaled 94,034 acres in 1978 and 95,398 acres in 1974. Crops were harvested from 22,640 acres in 1978 and 18,029 acres in 1974.

The inventory of cattle and claves changed from 24,993 in 1974 to 16,523 in 1978; the number of hogs and pigs changed from 4,240 to 4,714. Broiler production decreased from 3.2. million to 252,869.

Acreages of crops harvested for 1978 was 116,800 bushels compared to 97,600 bushels in

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

I still don't believe it happened. It couldn't have. Not again. But it did.

First I went to Peter Jones' house. He had a turnip patch like you read about in seed catalogues.

"Do you have curly mustard?" I asked him.

He ran his fingers over a turnip leaf. "I got five dollars worth of seed," he said. "But not a dime's worth of mustard. It's all turnips."

The last time we ate plain turnip greens at our house we didn't digest 'em for a whole week.

"Thank's anyhow," I said, "but we can't eat 'em."

Then I went to Murphy Stinson's patch. He has another patch like you'd find in a seed catalogue. He and J.C. Armstrong. They have two patches. The first patch reaches almost a mile, heading straight for Four Mile Church. They didn't think it was enough, so they planted another one about half as big.

Murphy wasn't home so I went down the field where J.C. was pulling peanuts off the vines. Later on, maybe that night, he'd have boiled peanuts.

I asked him about his turnip greens and he went with me to the first patch.

"Do you have mustard?" I asked him.

He waited a minute before he answered. "I planted mustard," he said, "but it didn't come up."

"We can't eat plain turnip greens at my house. They won't go down. Get about two inches below the adam's apple and homestead."

We talked about his bird dogs then. And about how hard it was to hunt now, with arthritis in his joints.

"But I'm gonna hunt," he said. "If I have to take my dogs in the truck and turn 'em out."

I thanked him again and got in my truck and started off. Two weeks ago, if you remember, I mentioned the fact that I had been grazing in Hubert Kirkland's mustard patch for

And, though I didn't know it until today, he's got another mustard patch. He and Son Mason on the old Tom Mason place in the Kingdom.

I got there about 10:30. After Lucile Howell told me where he

I never saw a prettier mustard patch. And I never saw a guy happier to see one.

And there I was, the same as all those other years, grazing in Hubert Kirkland's mustard patch.

Just like it belonged to me!

Get social security lined up, if retiring

The reduction amounts to 20 percent at age 62, 13 1/3 percent at age 63, and 6 2/3 percent at 64. Future cost of living benefit increases will also be reduced by the same amount.

Other factors can influence a person's decision to retire, he said. Availability of a company pension could be a factor. So could the person's ability to continue working.

Story on testing

draws comments

Letter to editor: You did a fine job of presenting competency tests scores to your readers, however you misquoted me in an area which I feel I must bring to your attention.

Teacher emphasis is not teacher weakness. I am assuming that the example which I gave of one history teacher putting more emphasis on dates and another teacher putting more emphasis on events, and then the question on the test seeks a date. The child in the classroom where events were stressed might not get the answer correct. This is not a sign of weakness, neither is the sample profile of which you have a copy.

was a subject of discussion during this week's meeting of the Montevallo City Council.

Rev. Albert Jones served as spokesman for a group from Almont and the Dogwood Road community, asking prepared questions about bringing their areas into the Montevallo city limits.

At the conclusion of the question and answer session City Clerk Don Hughes and Mayor Ralph Sears agreed to meet with the group to explore additional questions. The time and place of the meeting will be determined by Rev. Jones.

Several other areas have expressed interest in being annexed to Montevallo, including certain sections of the Dry Valley community, property owners adjaMontevallo and Moore's Cross Roads and other property owners whose homes are between Montevallo and Calera.

The subject of annexation is being discussed because Montevallo's city council voted to restrict certain services to the city limits, beginning February 1, Mayor Sears pointed out to the group from Almont, Monday night, that the city council is not recruiting new citizens, or land areas. He stated that the decision to restrict fire, police and rescue services to the city limits is based on the city's ability to provide the services. With dwindling resources and an increasing demand for services, Sears noted that the restriction of services is a logical answer to the dillema.

that parents had called him in concern about the hazards at the school, Bearden replied he hadn't received a single call.

Pelham High School is in Bearden's district. And noting that he had always been willing to help the school, the commissioner reminded the trustees that he had donated the land for the school's ballfields. He also mentioned his support for the commission constructing them.

Miffed by remarks that the commission had done little to support the one cent sales tax, half of which was earmarked for education, Lowe and Bearden both stressed their interest in the school system.

"I served ten years on the board of education," Lowe declared and I'm just as interested in our schools now! We got that tax passed together," he said.

Mentioning his 12 years of service to education, Bearden said "We always kept up the schools when I was on the board.".

After the meeting, highway director Gary Ray was asked to check out the matter with county attorney Frank Ellis. Ray was referred to sections 16-13-37 and 16-13-38 of the Alabama Code.

The first deals with county sales and use tax funds for general educational purposes. It states that money earmarked for construction and maintenance of public schools can be used for general educational purposes.

Old flair in new room gives home character

Family gatherings at the Herman Brasher home out from Columbiana resemble a scene from out of the past.

When the couple's children and grandchildren assemble for special occasions, they eat at a handmade trestle table which can comfortably seat 14, and food for the meal is prepared on a wood burning stove.

The room with the old fashioned flavor, which Bertha Brasher calls her second kitchen, is located behind her home on County Road 5.

Her husband, Herman, built it, she explains, to be a utility room. "But then I got the notion," she laughed, "to get a wood burning stove."

So the function of the room changed and became an inviting place for the family to gather.

The had to do a lot of scouting around when they tried to find the stove a year ago, Mrs. Brasher noted.

But the search was worth the effort, she remarked. "My husband thinks food has a better taste when it's cooked on that stove," the homemaker declared.

Since she had used that type of stove when her children were young, Mrs. Brasher said she fell back into that method of cooking with ease.

And the stove also puts out enough heat to make the room comfortable even in the coldest weather.

Fuel for the stove is easily obtained since the home the Brashers have occuppied for six years is located in a wooded area.

The couple's daughter and her family live right next door. And Mrs. Brasher explained with pride, that it was her son-in-law who made the handsome trestle table from mahogany wood.

"He also gave us a huge chopping block which came from a butcher shop," Mrs. Brasher reported.

Other equipment in the functional room is a sink and giant size freezer. So Mrs. Brasher uses the area to prepare vegetables from the garden for the freezer.

The family's next project, Mrs. Brasher reported, will be to add a porch on the structure where she can sit and work on the vegetables.

Mr. Brasher is retired from TCI and the couple celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary

They have two daughters, a son and four grandchildren.

Taste of the past

Mrs. Herman Brasher displays the butter churn she keeps in her second kitchen. The wood burning stove in the corner inspired Mrs. Brasher to use the room for family gatherings.

Caler'a Water Board held its first meeting with members of the new council last week.

Chairman J.C. Rowe and members Gary Watts and Horace Bright welcomed Mayor Carl Prichard and councilman Bob Loftin to the board.

After lengthy discussion the new members became aware of the growing pains the department is experiencing. Maintenance Superintendent Neal Harkins, clerk Lemoyne Payton, and councilman Doug LeSueur also participated in the discussion that made evident the need for the board to become self-sufficient.

Calera's Water Board is an independent corporation of the town. It has its own budget and in part its own equipment and personnel. According to the board the major obstacle keeping the corporation from properly maintaining and servicing the system that provides water for 1400 customers, is its equipment and personnel ties with the town.

The Water Board currently shares all its service equipment, maintenance men and construction personnel with the other city services of gas, sewer and street maintenance. The board noted that because of the present set up the system was working at a less than satisfactory level.

At present Calera's water services cover approximately 45 square miles. There are hundreds and hundreds of miles of water lines. To properly maintain these lines and continue expansion of the system the board recommended several changes to the present

In a proposal that will be presented before the entire council for approval at the next council meeting on October 21, the board moved to set the groundwork for seperation of the Water Board from the other city utilities with a cost-accounting program.

Chariman J.C. Rowe said the accountability of expenditures of the Water Baord is presently impossible since all departments shared in the finances of using personnel and equipment. He also noted the lack of consistent maintenance under the present set up by reporting the nonoperation of at least sixty-two water meters. Rowe said the meter situation had existed for at least three months.

Included in the proposal is a motion to halt all joint ownership purchases of equipment with the other city utilities. Secondly, the board recommended the appointment of one overseer and two laborers, one of whom would serve as a meter reader. There was also a motion to transfer some of the equipment between the Water Board and other departments to begin the separation process.

In making these motions the board made it clear that the Water Board had become large enough to operate and maintain its own crew but that the separation process should be carefully implemented to make a smooth and effective transition.

After the meeting Rowe said, "We made great strides in the direction the Water Board should go to eliminate lost motion and liabilities. It sould improve the operation of the Water Board." Rowe summed up the gathering by saying, "It's the best meeting we've had in the eighteen years I've been associated with the

Montevallo PTA holds meet

The 1981-82 budget review timetable and procedures adopted Friday by the Alabama Commission on Higher Education incorporate most of the 10-18 and to the full Commission changes University of Montevallo officials have been urging, UM President James F. Vickrey Jr.,

"The major change, that the 1981-82 ACHE recommendations to the Legislature be based on actual funding needs and not arbitrarily limited by formula calculations is the one we've been most concerned about," Dr. Vickrey said, "and I am delighted that it has been made."

"After all, that's what the law requires and what many Commission members have long desired."

Vickrey said the "proof of this pudding" is the extent to which the ACHE staff will take seriously the change and "listen to our case for funding. On that point, I am now more hopeful than I have been at any point in the past because people such as (ACHE member) John Harbert spoke so forcefully in support of a true needs assessment."

Last Sunday the preacher asked a group of children to think of something that was very important. As several children wrinkled their faces up and put on their thinking caps there was one that was quick to answer. 'I know, I know, he said. The preachr said 'Fine, Jack what is it?' Jack eagerly answered 'Last week Mother forgot to get Dad some britches!"

As everyone chuckled and Jack's parents turned bright red I held my breath. Who knows what Jenny and Janie might say? Luckily the preacher quickly got a suitable answer and shuffled the kids off to childrens church.

As Jack walked by, his expres-

WANDA VICK

Music student fiddles

And picks, and writes, and . . .

There aren't too many Dobro players around these days.

But Wanda Vick, an 18-yearold University of Montevallo student, plays the Dobro, a brand name acoustic steel guitar, as well as the banjo, guitar, fiddle and mandolin. And she frequently wins bluegrass contests in all five, while making straight A's majoring in music composition at a university noted for its classical music studies.

Miss Vick has won more than 100 prizes in regional and national bluegrass festivals over the last four years, and more than 40 have been first-place trophies or plaques. "I guess I've averaged almost 10 top prizes in each instrument," she said.

Today, she's as likely to be studying the music of Beethoven and Mozart or avant garde jazz violin styles in music theory class, "my favorite class," she said.

Two weeks ago, she won first prize in fiddle and made the top five in guitar in a national contest -- the National Flat-picking Championship in Winfield, Kan., a contest bluegrass fanciers say is of the

The prize-winning picker and fiddler began playing the Dobro with her father, Sidney Vick, and her sister, Teresa, when she was 12. As her father and mother, Joan, began to recognize her talent, they encouraged her to enter the contests and drove her to the bluegrass festivals around the South.

Although Miss Vick is an honor student majoring in music, she and her parents still go to the picking and fiddling contests.

"I go to about one contest each month," Miss Vick said. "And I enter as many as possible."

Last week, she was the only UM junior tapped into the unviersity's most prestigious academic honor society, Phi Kappa Phi, and she was also tapped into Omicron Delta Kappa, UM's highest leadership honor society.

The same week, she won first prize in guitar in the Tennessee Valley Old Time Fiddler's Convention in Athens and performed for a segment on a new CBS-TV series, "That's My Line," with veteran game show host Bob Barker. The show should be televised later this fall.

"I may be on 'Real People,' too," she said. A filming crew from the series taped the Grand Masters Fiddling Contest in Nashville last June. The show is also scheduled for this fall.

Miss Vick has already played some recording studio sessions in Nashville with top bluegrass sidemen Buddy Emmons, Buddy Spicher and Benny Martin. She also recorded an album with the three recently.

Nashville's Opryland has offered her full-time work, but Wanda turned the offer down deciding to concentrate on her studies at Montevallo.

Studying classical and contemporary composers, she said, has broadened her appreciation of other musical styles. "I used to be rather narrow in my musical tastes." she said. "I've always liked bluegrass and jazz, but now I like all types of music." Unlike some bluegrass musicians. Miss Vick learned to read music. She played saxophone at Shelby Academy, a private school near Montevallo. At UM, she plays jazz violin and electric guitar in the UM Jazz Ensemble and plays clarinet in the UM Wind Ensemble, the university's concert band. She also mixes her favorite musical styles, too, adding progressive jazz sounds to traditional bluegrass songs. "I like a style that's a cross between bluegrass and jazz." The UM honor student is busy with her college life -- with her studies, her extracurricular activities and her friends, she said. And it's the friends she has made in her trips to the bluegrass festivals that keep her going back for more competition, she said.

With the prizes come some money, she added. "But it's the friends you make and see again and again. I've got friends all over the country."

"I write them and keep in touch, too," she added.

But now while Nashville is calling, so to speak, she's still Wanda Vick honor student, beginning her junior year at Montevallo and thinking about the immediate future -- getting her bachelor's degree, starting work on a master's degree and, of course, entering more bluegrass festivals.

Verbena falls 17-15 to King's foot

Calera wins on last second field goal

Raymond King is a hero in Calera.

He kicked a 41-yard field goal in the last three seconds of the game to give Calera a 17-15 homecoming win over the Verbena Red Devils.

King was carried off the field on the shoulders of his teammates while a throng of excited fans cheered wildly. The scene was one of sheer pandemonium.

"He deserved for it to be good just for kicking it that far," beamed coach Danny Alverson a few minutes later. It was the first field goal King had ever attempted, and the smile on Alverson's face stretched wider than a set of sideline chains.

But until the game was over Alverson didn't smile much last Friday night. Verbena gave him and his Eagles a close scare.

Calera opened the game with a 22-yard pass play from Ricky

Winterbottom to Eric Lacey, and from midfield drove to the 18 in six more plays. Tim Loftin scored from the 18 only to have the touchdown nullified by a motion penalty.

Moments later the Red Devils nearly broke an interception for a touchdown, returning the ball to Calera's 34. Verbena moved to a first and goal at the seven, but the Eagles held for three downs and a 23-yard field goal attempt miss-

In the second quarter Calera drove 75 yards for a touchdown in 11 plays. Richard "Sleepy" Russell carried on five of the plays for 50 yards, including a five-yard touchdown run on which he bowled over two Verbena players at the goal.

Winterbottom salvaged a messed up extra point attempt, passing to King far in the end zone to give Calera an 8-0 lead.

Late in the half Verbena started a drive. But led by John call. Protesting the call to the Killingsworth, Kirk Ross, Lacey and Loftin, the Eagles forced a turnover on downs at their own

After Alverson gave his team an emotional halftime "chat," the Eagles went into the third quarter highly fired up. Killingsworth collared the kick returner and Cliff Smith sacked Verbena for a four-yard loss on the first play.

Then, on what appeared to be questionable call, Verbena picked up 15 yards on a penalty, and on the next play, broke a 60-yard touchdown ramble. The Red Devils tied the game with a twopoint pass and suddenly the momentum left Calera like water down a drain.

Four plays later Calera lost a fumble at their 22 and then Verbena picked up a first down at the nine on a pass interference referees, the Calera coaches got slapped with two more penalties which moved the ball to the two.

Verbena scored on the next play, kicked the PAT and led 15-8 halfway through the third quarter.

Verbena was driving again when Loftin made a key interception at Calera's 34 and returned it five yards.

With the help of two major distance penalties, Calera drove to first and goal at the two. Three plays later Winterbottom scored from three inches out. King's PAT attempt missed and at the top of the fourth quarter Calera was down 15-14.

The defense stopped Verbena's next two possessions, but offensively was unable to get cranked

Finally, with 1:40 left to play, Calera started at their own 26 and moved out to midfield as the clock ticked down to :45. A 15-yard penalty against the Red Devils and a clutch 11-yard run by Russell, out of bounds at the 25, set up King's field goal.

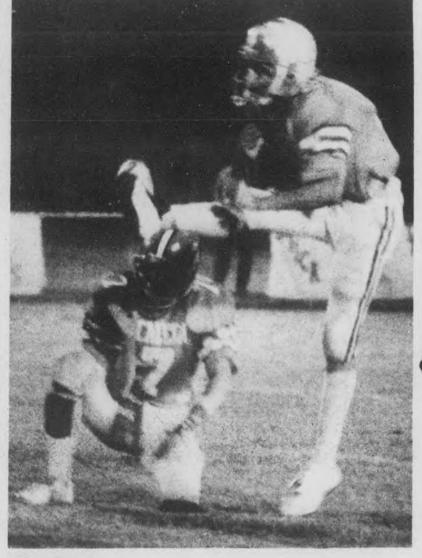

With :03 on the clock, Ross made the snap, Winterbottom placed the ball and King kicked the winning three points. The sound of the buzzer was never heard as the homecoming crowd exploded into wild cheering.

"We lost our poise," Alverson said while accepting congratulations and shaking many hands as he walked off the field. "But the big play won it for us."

He later added that it was the most exciting game Calera has played since they ruined Thorsby's homecoming in 1976 with a long touchdown pass in the final nine seconds.

Alverson also noted that Calera generated more offense against Verbena than in any other game this year.

A few minutes before the game started, King jokingly told this reporter that he was so fired up

The kick

Down 15-14 with but three seconds left to play, Calera's Raymond King kicked this 41-yard field goal to beat Verbena. Holding on the kick is Ricky Winterbottom. The game and the kick will both probably go down in the annals as classics. (Photos by David Moore) for homecoming, "I probably won't remember tonight if we win."

Judging from spectator comments after the game, even if Raymond King doesn't remember kicking his first field goal, a lot of fans in Calera won't forget it for a long time.

This week Calera hosts Talladega County Trade School.

Thompson loses Johnson, Woody, game

Thompson lost last week. In more ways than one.

The first loss occured Monday when starting quarterback Chuck Woody fell at practice and fractured his left elbow. Woody, also a standout on Thompson's defensive secondary, was sidelined for Friday's area match with Childer-

Things got even worse for Thompson on their third play from scrimage during the Childersburg game. Sophomore whiz kid Arthur Johnson, who racked up 926 yards in his first six games, was taken out with a possible shoulder separation.

Thompson head coach Larry Simmons told the reporter Sunday that the full extent of Johnson's injury wouldn't be known until an orthopedic specialist examined Johnson Monday. But Simmons did not sound optimistic and indicated that both Johnson and Woody might be unable to finish the season.

Furthermore, defensive stalwart Billy Lawley, still recovering from a bruised kidney he got against Pelham, could not play against Childersburg. And during that game Tommy Gillis, Jeff Bentley and Mark Barnett all came out with injuries.

The Childersburg Tigers completed the bleak picture for Thompson by upending them 26-14, spoiling the Warrior's previously perfect 6-0 record.

Before the game was far into the second quarter, Childersburg had hammered in three touchdowns to lead 20-0.

The first score came on a 73-yard drive, capped by a 13-yard touchdown run. Again in the first quarter, the Tigers drove to score, this time 59 yards in 11 plays. Early in the second quarter Childersburg scored from the two after going 43 yards in three plays. The third PAT attempt failed. Thompson got on the board with 2 minutes left in the half after Charlie Griffin hit Rod McDade for 35 yards. Griffin scored on a bootleg from the nine and John Durrett kicked the PAT.

In the third quarter Thompson tried to fight back, driving once to the 10, only to get stopped. But the Warrior defense, led by Rick Long, didn't allow any points that period either.

McDade set up a touchdown early in the fourth when he returned a Childersburg punt to the 28. One play later Griffin hit McDade for a 28-yard touchdown play. Durrett kicked

But the Tigers took the ensuing kick off and drove it 72 yards in a 20-play drive, scoring the final Continued on page 14

Shelby Academy settles grudge, wins 24-6

True, Shelby Academy finally got scored on last Friday by Talladega Academy. Prior to the third quarter, the Raiders had shutout their opponents for the past eighteen and half quarters of football.

Talladega's one But touchdown against the Green Wall defense was amended on the last play of the game when Shelby Academy scored to make the final 24-6.

Raider head coach Harry Rawlinson explains: "Last year they humiliated us 34-0 and tried to score again with a long bomb the last second of the game. So this year I promised the kids if we got a chance to score on the last play, we would."

The grudge touchdown was set up when QB-punter Dirk Carson was roughed while punting from midfield late in the game. Runs by Carson and Clifton Garrett, who went for 110 yards on the night, moved the Raiders to the 19 with :01 left on the clock. As the buzzer sounded, Carson hit

Terry Crabb in the end zone for a touchdown. James Knowles kicked the PAT, giving Shelby Academy their 24-6 homecoming Shelby got its first touchdown of the game right off the bat when Garrett took the opening kick and ran it 97 yards up the middle for a TD. James Knowles kicked the PAT.

After an exchange of punts, Knowles again kicked, this time 22 yards for a field goal.

Knowles attempted two more field goals (40 and 43 yards) in the second quarter, but they were just short.

Dirk Carson, however, was right on target when he hit Alan Terrell 30 yards down field on the run. Terrell bobbled the ball for 10-15 yards before gaining control and scoring on the 69 yard play. Knowles' PAT was good, putting the Raiders out front 17-0 at intermission. Offensively, penalties hurt Shelby in the third quarter. But Continued on page 13

Gang tackle

Montevallo's Tim Smith (center) picked up 24 yards on this run to Vincent's 31 late in the fourth quarter. But when the Jackets finally got to him, they got there in force, as evidenced by Gregg Gann (71), Jesse Allen (62), Gary Slaughter (74), Eddie Weldon (40), Rod Reynolds (83) and Tony Bradford (31). Vincent downs Bulldogs

He doesn't want to cause a jinx, so Vincent head coach Harold Garrett says he's keeping

But people from Vandiver to Harpersville are starting to talk. The Vincent Yellow Jackets upped their perfect record to 6-0 (3-0 in area action), and it gave their fans a good whiff of playoff possibilities.

Vincent notched its sixth victory with a 28-14 area win over the Bulldogs Friday night in Montevallo.

The Jackets started out with a fumble on the second play. Rex Wallace recovered it at Vincent's 31, setting up Montevallo's first score.

The 'Dogs drove to the two in 11 plays, including a 23-yard fourth down pass from Howard Gaddis to Scott Studdard, and another fourth down play which Tim Jones converted with an eight-yard run to the two. From there, David Melsoni hit Studdard to score, and passed to him again for the two-point conver-

At the end of the first quarter Vincent's Robert Maske broke up a statue of liberty play, causing a fumble which he recovered at Montevallo's 20. Four plays later OB James Oden rolled out on a keeper, got a block from Bobby Howard and scored from the ten. The PAT failed.

The Bulldogs fumbled again on their next possession and Brian Hartsfield recovered for Vincent. On the first snap, Oden saved a broken play by dashing off 31 yards for a touchdown. Rodney Driggers scored two points on a reverse to make the score 14-8.

After exchanging punts, Montevallo drove 40 yards to Vincent's 24. But when Melsoni tried to hit Carey Thompson for the score, Oden made an interception at the two.

Defense was the name of game for most of the third quarter until Vincent took to the air on a nine play drive good for 62 yards and six points. Oden, passing for 3-3 on the drive, hit Tim Smith for 20 yards, Sidney Yowe for 24, and Driggers, who made a diving third down catch, for 12 at the 11. Yowe rushed for 10 yards and then one to score. Driggers' PAT made it 21-8.

In the fourth quarter Vincent moved from the 20 out to its 45, and on second and short, Oden hit Driggers on the run for a 55-yard touchdown. Driggers added another PAT to give Vincent a 28-8 lead.

Garrett later said he was surprised his team was able to score so much against Montevallo; but he wasn't complaining.

Late in the game Montevallo put together a 97-yard drive to make the final score 28-14. J.J. Moore gained 24 yards on a trap play and Tim Jones had a 28-yard run to the 31. From there, Wade Bice broke loose for a touchdown. The two-point conversion failed.

Montevallo coach Richard Gilliam noted that Garrett has done a good job of maximizing the use of his players' talents. Still, he added, "Except for containing the big play, we stopped them pretty good.'

Now falling to 1-6 on the year, Montevallo faces Winterboro at home this week for what Gilliam calls a "tall order."

Vincent tangles with Pelham to see how their 6-0 record holds up to homecoming at the 3-A

Garrett said Vincent is capable of leaving Pelham with its record still intact. But to do so, he adds, will take a good week of practice, a good frame of mind, and a little

So far this year, that combination has given the Yellow Jacket fans a lot to talk about.

Snoozing Lions still win

Maybe a tsetse fly is loose in the Briarwood locker room. Or maybe the players are staying up late (to study?). Maybe they never recovered from their off week.

At least they're still winning, but head coach Gary Fleming can't figure out why his Lions have slept through the first halves of their last two games.

Last week at Lyman Ward the Rangers went ahead 6-0 before Briarwood woke up and came back to win 26-6. The week before Briarwood fell behind two touchdowns before coming back to down Trinity.

"I've never seen anything to beat this in my life," said Fleming. "They just don't wake up til the second half. But when we do we're a different team.

The Lions missed an early chance to score when they lost a fumble into the Lyman Ward's end zone in the first quarter.

In the second quarter the Rangers put together a 36-yard drive for their homecoming crowd and scored their only points of the night from the one.

Mike Schor returned the ensuing kick 25 yards to rouse Briarwood from bed at the 45. The Lions drove eight plays to score, including a 32-yard screen pass from Bric Baker to Schor and a 13-yard run by Baker. Steve Key picked up seven to the three and Schor scored from there. Randy Cox kicked the PAT.

In the third quarter the Lions rolled up an 11-play 90-yard scoring drive with the help of a 15-yard penalty. Mike McCrary scored from the six and the PAT missed.

Going into the fourth quarter Jeff Nelson set up Briarwood's next TD with an interception at midfield. Key made a 25-yard run and McCrary scored from the two. Cox hit the PAT to make the score 20-6.

At the end of the fourth quarter the Lions scored on an 11-play, 59-yard drive. Jim Bradford made one run of 15 yards before taking it for the final score from the one.

Some of the credit for the win goes to the Lion defense who effectively shut down Lyman Ward's two big, fast backs, one of which rushed the week before for 220 yards. And as the buzzer sounded, McCrary made a 60-yard interception return, only to be dropped at the goal.

Fleming spent this past week trying to wake his Lions in time to play for homecoming Friday against Cathedral.

"If there's anybody we'd rather beat, it's Cathedral," said Fleming, pointing out a 21-8 grudge he and the Lions have left from last year. It'll be a key area game for Briarwood who now climbs to 4-1. Cathedral is 2-3-1 on the year, but has won its last two area games.

Take it to the limits

Just about all the muscles in the body will be tested in a triathlon at Oak Mountain Park on October 18.

The athletes who sign up for the event will have to swim a mile, ride a bicycle 50 miles and then run 13.1 miles.

The grueling contest will be sponsored by the Metro East Track Club and Liberty National Life Insurance Company.

The actual course for the events will be centered around the Oak Mountain State Park beginning at 8 a.m. in the morning.

The entries will first swim the mile around Double Oak Lake, then ride their bikes on a course that takes them down near Columbiana and return to the park. The last segment -- the halfmarathon run -- will begin at the lake, go some seven miles outside the park and then return to the lake site.

All entries will receive a bicycling cap and finishers will receive special t-shirts commemorating the fact. Those completing the course under six hours will also receive additional awards.

The top five male and female winners will receive trophies. More information and entry forms can be received from the Communication Department of Liberty National in Birmingham. Pre-Triathlon entry is $4, day of

UM golfers place second

Going for their third championship in as many tries this fall, the University of Montevallo instead fell just three strokes short in the Nashboro Village golf Tournament Oct. 9-10 in Nashville, Tenn.

The Falcon golfers, winners of the Graf Hart-Cullman County Invitational and the North Alabama Classic, carded a twoday score of 625 to finish second behind Christian Brothers college's 622 in the College Division.

In the University Division, Tennessee-Chattanooga won with a 608, followed by Western Kentucky at 610.

Scores were unusually high, but as UM coach Dr. Leon Davis pinted out, "That's one tough golf course up there, plus they had the pin placements in some very difficult locations, considering the way all the teams scored, I'm sure we did all right, although I think we're a better golf team than we showed.

"Still, we've played three tournaments, and got three trophies to show, so I'd say we're doing fine."

"All in all, Childersburg just whipped us. They whipped the dog out of us. At the half we looked like we were about to quit. But at least we didn't do that. I was proud of them for that," he said.

Simmons said he was glad his Warriors have an open date this week so they can "pick up the pieces and forget about this mess."

"I guess we'll just have to do a better job coaching. We get a chance now to see who really wants to play. I hope (my team) doesn't like losing," Simmons noted. "I always thought the first step towards winning was to hate to lose"

Thompson's loss throws the area lead back to Childersburg with Sylacauga in second. But if Thompson can return on October 24 and beat Sylacauga, the race could go into a tie. The Warriors now fall to 6-1.

Pell City licks 'Cats

Shelby County High School took some tough lumps last Friday night as Pell City blew into Columbiana and demolished the Wildcats 20-6.

Playing the first half without the strong running of Wildcat Daron Burns, SCHS got stuck for a minus 26 yards rushing in two quarters. Burns, injured last week in practice, played the second half and picked up 60 yards in eight carries, little more than enough to lift Shelby County out of the negative rushing column.

The Wildcat defense played good football the first quarter and kept the visitors out of the end zone. But in the second period Pell City got on the board with a three yard run that capped a 65-yard drive. The PAT failed.

In the meantime, Pell City's defense was making a sport of sacking Shelby quarterback Ronald Benton and the other Wildcat runners.

Later in the same quarter, Pell City broke a 57-yard run and added a two point conversion to take a 14-0 halftime lead.

The Shelby County Touchdown came in the third quarter and was set up after the Wildcats took the ball on PC's 33 and picked up 15 yards on a penalty. Burns scored on a 16-vard run after two plays. The two-point conversion attempt failed.

Pell City's final touchdown came after an eight yard pass when it rammed home from the one. Pat Wallace and Timothy Smith blocked the PAT attempt for SCHS.

The Wildcats nearly scored again in the fourth quarter after Benton connected with 23 and 30-yard passes to Thomas Simon and Ervin Tidwell, respectively. But with first and goal at the two, the Pell City defense blasted the Wildcats backwards to the 38-yardline.

Although the game left both teams with 2-4 records, both Pell City's wins have been against area opponents (Pelham and SCHS).

This week Shelby County takes a trip to area powerhouse Sylacauga.

Winterboro slips past Chelsea

Chelsea coach wonders about record

"It makes you wonder ... " commented coach Daryl Burnham as he sorted through his Chelsea Hornets' latest loss in an 0-6 season. Chelsea got edged out 10-7 last Friday in Winterboro.

"We know it's a losing record, but we don't look on ourselves as losers," Burnham continued. "The attitude and character of this year's club is not indicative of 0-6.

"Winterboro was the best team we've played so far. It was a good, old fashioned, hard nosed game - some of the best hitting I've seen two teams do. They didn't kick us out of there, they just got it in. We still feel good," said Burnham. "We feel we can have a lot to say about who wins the area."

Although the Hornets didn't generate any fast points against Winterboro, the defense wasted no time in making its presence known. They backed the Bulldogs into a hole and kept them there.

The first quarter ended with Winterboro at the six and two plays later they faced third and 12. Then Jack Shaw jumped on a fumble at the eight and Chelsea was in shape, first and goal.

On the first snap Kelly Cooper scored behind blocking by Jeff Champion, Michael Gardner and Tommy White. Tim Rich kicked the PAT and Chelsea led 7-0.

Winterboro came back with a 36-yard pass on third and 14 which moved them to Chelsea's 24. But after three plays got them only one yard more, Winterboro settled for field goal from the 38 to trail by four at the half.

In the third quarter popping pads was the name of the game as both teams managed only three first downs.

Chelsea had a chance to win it in the fourth quarter after Shaw blocked a punt and Victor Smith fourth down from the 11, Randy Kennedy passed to Keith Mc-Cullers, only to have a defender deflect the ball at the last second.

Winterboro set up its go ahead touchdown with a 40-yard pop pass that carried to the 20. From first and goal at the eight, they moved to the one in three plays. On fourth and the game, Chelsea stood up the Winterboro runner at the goal, but he rolled and fell into the end zone.

This week Chelsea takes to the recovered at Winterboro's 25. On road again for a homecoming game at St. Clair County (1-5).

"I hope the Good Lord let s us win," Burnham said. "We think we can win if we don't make critical mistakes."

Lady Falcons win nine, lose one

Posting seven straight wins during the week, the University of Montevallo Lady Falcons stretched their volleyball winning streak to nine before it was snapped last Saturday.

Jacksonville State University ended the UM skein in the biggest match of the week -- the finals of the Columbus College Tournament in Columbus, Ga., on Saturday.

The 7-1 week left the Lady Falcons with a 19-7 season record, but the loss was a rather bitter pill to swallow, considering Montevallo had already beaten JSU earlier in the year in regularseason play.

"They (JSU) just plain put it to us," acknowledged a disappointed UM coach Beverly War-

In the Saturday afternoon singleelimination portion, UM downed Florida Jr. College 16-14, 15-10, to reach the finals.

Montevallo's Sandra Sims, a sophomore setter-hitter from Birmingham, was named to the All-Tournament Team, joining Kathy O'Hearn and Ana Recurt of Jacksonville State, Karen Baker of West Georgia, Tara Baird of North Georgia, and Kathy Owens of Florida Jr. College.

In the Lady Falcons' first match of the week, on Tuesday, they downed North Alabama, improving their record in the AAIAW North District to 4-1.

Pickers get surprised

by David Moore

The Thompson Warriors weren't the only ones surprised by their loss to Childersburg. So were the Reporter's football pickers. All of us.

Except for Thompson, county tax collector Fay Quick only missed on picking Lyman Ward, and district judge Patti Smith only missed on Shelby County.

Fanny Hinds apparently did a good job teaching VHS coach Harold Garrett in the first grade, but she didn't do too hot on picking Shelby County or Lyman Ward. Counting Thompson, she missed three of seven.

And Laura Roberts, who knows all about selling houses, now has a basement to move into. It's one she dug herself by Chelsea and Shelby County. Oh well, back to the old coin flipping method ...

All I can say for myself is that if Thompson coach Larry Simmons had his way about things, I would have had another perfect week of game pickin'. As it is, I move up to 36-13 for a .735 pickin' average.

I was afraid of surprises last week, but this week has the potential of even more upsets. On five of my picks I really had to do some thinking--well, I'm not sure you'd call it thinking, but I did have to sit and stare at my notes for a long time.

Three of my guest pickers this week are firemen, which is just the way things turned out. I'm picking Montevallo, Thompson, not even going to say anything about "hot" picks...

Don King is with the Chelsea Volunteer Fire Department, drives a county school bus and works at Harpersville Ambulance Service.

Brian Cleveland and Joey Lovelady are both firefighters in Pelham. Cleveland, who moved from Indiana several years back, graduated from Pelham High. Lovelady, who grew up in Montevallo, went to school at Shelby Academy.

The last picker, Tom Carter, used to play 4-A ball at both Vestavia and Berry High Schools. (In junior high school he had a coach named Mark Bradley) Carter now lives in Alabaster and works as a patrolman in Colum-

Council discusses police matters

Calera's new mayor and council was held last week. A major portion of the council's discussion centered around the police department.

The salaries of new police chief Harry Deal and of now patrolman Cecil Harris were discussed at length. On a four to one vote Harris' salary was reduced from chief's pay to that of a top patrolman's. Councilman W.B. Watts objected to the move saying he found it difficult to reduce the pay of a man who had served the town for twenty-three years. Mayor Carl Prichard responded, saying, "The town cannot afford to pay two police chiefs."

Chief Deal's salary was set at

The first rgular meeting of $18,553.08 per year. The figure is a twelve percent increase of the former chief's pay. Councilman Watts again objectd saying he could not agree in cutting Harris' pay to increase the new chief's. Watts was outvoted on the matter, four to one.

> A full time radio dispatcherclerk was hired for the police department after applications for the position were reviewed by the council and police chief Harry Deal. Deal said that the efficiency of the department would be improved with the addition of the clerk. Previously, the department had no daytime receptionist. This created problems because there was no one to receive personal complaints and requests from the load of an employee in the clerk's office. Watts objected to the hiring because he thought the issue needed more review before passage. The councilman wanted assurance that the salary of the employee in the clerk's office would not be cut as a result of the move. Other members of the counci said that that issue would be evaluated at the town's budget hearings beginning October 21.

Other action by the council included a commendation to the town's fire, rescue and ambulance service. The council complimented the fast and professional service of the squads.

Rescue Squad Chief Mike Chandler gave a report of the emergency calls the squad answered in September. Seventeen calls were received and answered by the squad (ten accident, five heart attack and two

The council unanimously passed a motion that endorses the legislative efforts of state senator Lister Hill Proctor to allow members of volunteer fire and rescue squads to receive one free vehicle tag per member. The council plans to send a letter of endorsement for the bill which will be introduced by Proctor in the state legislature.

Applications for off premise wine licenses by Dixie Super Store and Majik market were tabled until more information on the matter could be obtained from state authorities. State ABC stores have recently stopped handling the beverage. Wine licensing in Calera will be discussed at the November 7 meeting of What's my name?

Ownership of this coon hound was the subject of a case in district court last week. Judge Patti Smith, attorneys Rodney Nolen and John Ferree, and witnesses treked out to the courthouse parking lot to see the dog whose present owner, Wesley Hatcher, calls Joe. But dog trainer, Dick Lovelady, claims the hound is Dumbo, a valuable hunting dog he lost last year.

Horses rustled at local stables

by Bert Seaman

A horse rustler who has an eye for the best stock, has been at work in Shelby County during the past few weeks.

The latest theft occured sometime during the night on Thursday when the rustler made off with three horses from Way Hi Stables on Hwy. 119 and county road 14.

Livestock theft investigators from the Department of Agriculture are working on the case.

Morris Cousins and Robert Jamison say that there are similarities in that theft and others that have taken place in Shelby and neighboring counties during the past few months.

According to Cousins, approximately 25 horses have been stolen. "He always gets the best ones," the investigator noted.

Mentioning that it was hard to catch the rustler in the act, Cousins said that the thief had even led the two horses he stole in St. Clair County, right underneath the window of an occupied bedroom.

That theft, Cousin said, took place the same night the rustler hit Wav-Hi.

Several other horses were taken from another Shelby County farm a few weeks ago. Those animals belonged to John Fay who lives on Bear Creek Road off Hwy. 280 near Chelsea.

In August, the investigators reported, a horse was stolen in Argo and two weeks ago another horse was taken from Trussville.

Even though Cousins and Jamison believe they know who the rustler is, they haven't been able to locate him.

They urge horse owners to keep a close watch on their animals. And they also stress the importance of owners and the general public being observant.

Trucks have been heard and seen in the vicinity of the thefts, Cousins reported, but he added that no one could give a description of the vehicle.

Helena hires fire chief

by Marcia M. Sears

Doug Sprouse was named the new fire chief of Helena by the city council Monday night.

Sprouse now lives in the state of Maine, but was at one time a member of the Riverchase Fire department. Council stipulated he must live in Helena and must take paramedic school or pass a test equivalent. His salary will be $585 bi-weekly.

Other appointments were:

Bill Harris was elected by councilmen to be mayor pro tem. Addie Deviner was reappointed to a one year term on the city library board. Keith Campbell was nominated as the city's choice for membership on the county board of equalization. The final choice will be made by the state commissioner of revenue. Police Chief Gary Carter recommended Jesse Charles Payne be hired as a police officer to fill a recent vacancy. Payne was at one time on the Montevallo police department. He also asked the council to name Douglas Wright of Alabaster and Ronald Wayne Jones of Hoover to be reserve police officers. All were approv-

Mayor Charles Penhale asked the council to allow the volunteer fire department to set up a private bank account for money the volunteers have raised on their own. Councilman Jim Kwater questioned if such action was legal, and if the city would be liable. Councilman Harris moved that the action be allowed if the city attorney approved it. The motion passed unanimously. Mayor Penhale said the zoning board is considering reducing the property requirements in residential lots from 20,000 square feet per lot to 15,000 square feet where there is sewage. He noted that Alabaster allows lots to be only 10,000 square feet.

A request from Johnny Deviner for lights on Cunningham Drive and on Lolly Street in Liberty Heights was given favorable consideration. Kwater agreed to tour the sites with Deviner.

The Urban League was given permission to hold its meetings in the old jail as long as Deviner is responsible for the meetings.

Plans were made to go ahead with an ordinance relative to abandoned cars on eny road-

Councilman Ron Erwin mentioned two private swimming pools in Sunnybrook are not fenced although a city ordinance requires fences. The police chief was asked to look into it.

Several members of the audience posed questions to the mayor and council at the end of the meeting. One question involved the budget for the fiscal year which began October 1. Mayor Penhale replied that he would get the budget made "as soon as I have time." He added that the law does not require cities to have budgets, and that Irondale has never had one.

Another question about the city audit brought the response that the auditor has not yet completed

Bud Henderson asked if the city has a discrimination suit against it, and Mayor Penhale replied that it did not. After a further question, Penhale said that the department of Housing and Urban Development has made a complaint against the city which mentions discrimination in the matters of sewage, fire plugs and street lights, but there is no law suit.

Bands play thru rain

When H.A. "Doc" Rubin was elected mayor of Alabaster, he didn't know all the duties the job

Saturday he was called upon to hold his ground on the Thompson High School football field.

Standing on a soggy turf handing out trophies, the new mayor was the target of exuberant winners in the school's marching band contest.

Several times Rubin staggered backwards as excited band members hurled themselves at him for a quick embrace before accepting their award.

Nineteen bands performed at the second annual affair which THS Band Director Elson Hood called "much more successful than last year's event."

Plaques of appreciation for participating were handed out to all the bands by Alabster Chamber of Commerce member Rod Hughes.

Band Booster president Hershel Hale coordinated the event and he and the club's vice president Barbara Shipp assisted with the awards presentation.

Three county bands performed for the judges and the host band gave an exhibition at the conclusion of the program.

The scoring for local bands was as follows: Chelsea - drum major, 1; majorettes, 2; color guard, 1; band, 2.

Vincent - drum line, 3; drum major, 2; majorettes, 2; color guard, 1; band, 3.

Calera - drum line, 3; drum major, 1; majorettes, 1; color guard, 2; band, 3.

Master of ceremonies at the event was Ward Hines, a former THS drum major.

Bullock escaped with $175 after taping the hands of Kiddie Kaboose owner Phyllis Tinsley and employee Cecilia Clem. That tape and the roll found in Bullock's possession from which it came, was part of the evidence presented by Hill and the deputy DA during the two day trial.

A sawed off shotgun and shells were also shown to the jury.

When Cecil Matthews, who was Bullock's court appointed attorney, made the point that there was no evidence to prove the gun was loaded during the robbery, Williams demonstrated it made no difference to the victims.

Turning his back on the jury, the deputy DA picked up the weapon and a shell and then faced the panel.

"You don't know if this gun is loaded or not," Williams said. "But if I were pointing it at you during a robbery, you would assume it was."

73 apply for 4 jobs

The test given at Chelsea High School Saturday wasn't connected with any subject taught at the school.

It was an entrance exam for the 73 applicants seeking deputy's positions with the Shelby County Sheriff's department.

Since the county commission has approved the sheriff's budget, which calls for four new deputies to be hired, the Law Enforcement Personnel Board arranged for the testing of applicants.

The examination was drawn up and administered by Joe Curtin, Chairman of the Jefferson County Personnel Board.

Curtin also operates Southeastern Management Consulting Group, which does this type of work.

The panel had contracted with Curtin's firm to do the testing for the various categories of employees within the sheriff's department and the advancements in rank.

At their meeting Thursday, board members agreed that the ten individuals with the highest test scores would be interviewed.

Factors that will be taken into account in coming up with a list of six names, will be experience in law enforcement, education and

The board decided to present the sheriff with three names for each position with the remaining two names being "put back in the pot" after each selection.

No action was taken on a matter that had been brought up at the previous meeting involving continuous time for deputies who left the department and then returned.

Chief Deputy James Jones had broached the subject, saying that State Troopers had a policy which allowed prior time to be

Alabaster tightens policies

Only a few seats in the audience were filled when the Alabaster Council meeting was called to order Monday night.

And those were mostly occupied by members of city departments.

But even though citizens were not present to offer input in improving the city, the council had several suggestions of their own.

Councilman Jack Reagin called for enforcing the city ordinance limiting the types of signs put up and their placement.

Agreeing with Reagin that the ordinance should be complied with, the council decided that the city's building inspector should be the person to make sure that it

Reagin also called attention to the lax policy in dispensing gasoline at the pump outside city

He noted that accurate records weren't kept of who was filling up and because of the high cost of the fuel, Reagin said he thought it would be a good idea to keep the pump locked.

The council and Police Chief C.E. Carter backed the idea and Carter said he would get a lock Prominent businessman W. Rux Carter dies

William Rux Carter, a prominent Shelby County businessman and civic leader, died at Shelby Memorial Hospital on October 20. He was 65 years of age.

Born in Columbiana on March 11, 1915, he was a lifelong member of the Columbiana United Methodist Church.

He was former owner of the Rux Carter Insurance Agency with offices in Alabaster and Columbiana and was a founding board member and secretary of the Shelby County Savings and Loan Association (now United Federal).

He was also a founding board member and secretary of Shelby Memorial Hospital, and was the first president of the Columbiana Kiwanis Club.

He is survived by his wife, Jane Fowler Carter; four daughters, Judy Roberts, Gulf Shores; Carolyn Carter, Nena Bentley and Kathy Carter, all of Columbiana; a sister, Sara Ozley, Columbiana, and five grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the Columbiana United Methodist Church on October on the pump immediately.

There was also some discussion on keeping a tighter control on city vehicles and determining the operational expense of each one.

Mayor H. A. Rubin appointed Reagin, Cal McCune and Roger Wheeler to be on a special committee to study the situation.

When Reagin urged the panel to move the traffic light on Hwy. 119 and 11th Ave. to the elementary school, the mayor asked him to consult with Siluria residents before the council acted. It was pointed out that the light had expensive features that would be more useful in controlling traffic at the school (County road 264).

Using equipment that the city already has, Chief Carter said another type of light could probably be rigged up at 11th Ave.

However, the matter was tabled until the next meeting.

The Shelby County Board of Equalization goes into session next Tuesday to meet with taxpayers who want to protest the value assigned to their property.

The board is composed of Leonard Wyatt, Jr. of Harpersville, who is chairman, and Starling Baker of Montevallo. A third member is still to be named by the state commissioner of revenue. The third member will represent the municipalities of the county, according to Tax Assessor Bobbie Reynolds.

Mrs. Reynolds said her office has been making appointments with persons who want an audience with the board of equalization. The first two weeks are already filled, she indicated. Letters went out from the board last week to many persons whose property values have been chang-

The hearings will probably not be held in the courthouse, because there are no extra rooms, Mrs. Reynolds said. She has asked Probate Judge Tommy Snowden for space for the hearings. Good Morning by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Some people quit having birthdays in their fifties. And some in their forties. And a few, here and there, by the time they get old enough to vote.

And one guy I know, a little guy with a part in his hair four inches wide, decided he wouldn't stop, even though he was skipping along through the seventies, hitting on all six.

I think it had something to do with presents. And two old friends who remembered.

A box of chocolates from Marie Atchison and a package of home-made rolls from Annette

So if you think ol' Skillet is gonna quit having birthdays, you got another thought coming.

Anyhow, a little past seventy ain't like a hundred and two. And I knew a guy once who, at 102, danced until one o'clock in the morning and then walked his girl home, half a mile up a dark and dusty road.

When I was between six and sixteen and living on the hill with Granny, a nice ol' lady named Marsha Neeley could make pear preserves that'd take a boy's

But you didn't really know her unless you had a chance to eat her pear preserves with hot biscuits on a cold winter morning, with a wind whistling outside and the temperature between ten and 20 above.

I ate 'em all through grammar school and halfway through high school before Aunt Marsha got too tired to keep making 'em and lay down one night and didn't

So, for years I did without pear preserves. Aunt Marsha's kind of pear preserves. I tried a lot of folks, and they tried hard, but somehow they didn't taste the same. There was Pinkie Thomas and Harriett Owen and Zula Perry and Mattie Shultz, all good friends, who, like Aunt Marsha, got too tired to keep making 'em and laid down and didn't wake

So what happened? Inside of one week I found two ladies who could make pear preserves like Aunt Marsha used to make 'em. Lera Naylor who lives just past the high school on the Ferry Road, and Earline Buie who lives three miles down the Shelby Road

Just some sort of freak of nature, I guess.

Anyhow, I was among the unfortunate folks who got wet over the weekend.

But it was even worse for the poor girls who were chosen as homecoming queens and their attendants.

And I'm afraid I didn't help the situation any at the game I went to.

I have a new flash, and the little light that gives me the signal that everything is A-okay to shoot is supposed to blink red and green.

There was only five minutes: left in the game. So with the light on my flash still holding steady: on green. I waded out to the gridiron, crossing my fingers that the darn thing would work.

Since marching bands were to be in competition the following: day, it naturally rained again.

But I'm happy to report that during the time I watched the young musicians perform, the only thing I got wet was my feet.

But darkness had fallen along with the rain by the time I arrived. And unfortunately, I hadn't remembered to check the batteries in my flash.

So once again I wondered if that little green glow meant I, could go ahead and shoot or if. was telling me something else.

If you don't find some homecoming pictures you expected to be in the paper and some missing band pictures, now you'll know the reason.

However, I hope you'll be pleasantly surprised.

Yet, in spite of all of this, the percentage of qualified voters going to the polls and voting is pitifully low. The vote is a privilege that has been earned and protected for us. If we truly value this privilege, we must accept the responsibility to exercise it. The next opportunity comes November 4, 1980.

In moving about the county, I see a few "pull the lever" signs and I'm reminded of the "yellow dog Democrats" that I used to hear about. tion of the Commission's enrollment-driven formula which sould be considered only a "benchmark." In a personal letter delivered to ACHE members at the meeting, Lt. Governor George Mcmillan agreed. By formal action, the Commission adopted both of those policy positions, which were inherent in the "1981-82 Timetable and Procedures" document distributed at the meeting. Second, I opposed, but less aggressively, by letter and orally the proposed changes in the mechanics of the formula that would (a) require tuition increases at several State universities and (b) tie our annual budget requests to the previous year's appropriations in neighboring states. (I did not oppose, as reported, the Commission's decision to treat offcampus programs different from on-campus ones.) ACHE adopted my position, shared by the other Presidents, on (a) and voted, unfortunately and unwisely, in my judgment, to embrace the Staff recommendation on (b), although almost half of the University presidents had recently expressed serious reservations about it (and three of us voted against it as ill-advised).

Thus it is that, on the whole, I am personally pleased with the outcome of the meeting and want to, and hereby do publicly, commend the Commission for its decisions on three of the four matters noted above.

Alabaster adds police slot

If the Alabaster Personnel Board hires Roy Smitherman, the city will have its first black policeman.

The reserve officer was present at Monday night's council meeting when the panel authorized the board to hire an additional policeman.

Police Chief C.E. "Bull" Carter recommended Smitherman, saying he would be a "big assest to the department because of his knowledge of the work and the area."

When he pointed out the need for another policeman, Councilman Roger Wheeler said that Smitherman would be a good choice for the position.

He related that in addition to having police academy training, Smitherman had been with the auxiliary police for two years and had filled in for officers on vacation during the summer.

The need for another fireman was also brought to the council's attention, but since a budget hasn't been approved yet, Mayor H. A. Rubin asked that the matter be tabled until the next meeting.

Telling the council he needed their signatures on a letter that will be presented to the county commission, Street Commissioner Glen Naish said there was a good chance to get two streets paved.

The panel agreed to ask the county to pave Simmsville Road and 1st Ave. to the top of the mountain.

A unanimous vote was also registered in rezoning a 17 acre tract of land from A-1 to M-1.

The property owned by Ralph Gentry borders the railroad off County Road 11 and will be used for an industrial park.

A representative of the development group Gentry is selling the property to was present at the meeting.

While the city's governing body approved issuing off premises wine licenses to eight stores, they voted 3-2 against giving a retail liquor license to the Village Pub, Inc.

The lounge, which is located in the new Alabaster shopping plaza, is not yet open for business.

Roger Wheeler, Jack Reagin and Glen Naish said they would like to know a little more about the business before approving the license.

So Chief Carter said he would have the owners attend the next meeting to answer questions.

Following a new policy he instituted, Mayor Rubin asked the city's finance chairman for a report.

L.O. Farris said September revenue amounted to $67,258.49 while expenditures came to $92,525.40, leaving a balance in the bank of $73,457.38.

Shelby County library beat

by Phil Clark

Did you know that the Shelby County Library has a monthly selection of 16 mm films available to the public? We belong to the Alabama Cooperative Film Circuit where each month we receive a shipment of 25 films.

These films cover the interest of all ages and groups including the educational, recreational and informational needs of the public. We had great success this past year with 110,397 persons viewing 1,044 different films. Most of the films were used by teachers, but a large number of clubs and recreational groups used the films for programs. Maybe we have the right film for your upcoming program?

This service keeps the library staff busy throughout the year scheduling films, checking for damage, preparing the films for circulation, and general administration. We feel it is well worth the effort to provide the community with well-rounded library service.

Our new film catalogs are here listing the monthly selections for the coming year. Just ask to see the catalog at your community library. If you want a catalog for your own use, they are $1.00. To obtain a copy of the catalog and to make film reservations, call 669-7851 and ask for Mrs. Ruby Cagle.

Pelham Library is in an interesting project with the North Shelby Junior Women's Club. For each baby born to members of the club, the club donates a book to the children's collection at the library.

New arrivals at the library are: "A Bird Can Fly", "Honest Andrew", "Five Fat Raccoons". and "All in a Woodland Early." The North Shelby Junior Women's Club is on the right track by thinking of the library at such a great occasion. What about your club?

Remember the journey of life begins by opening a book!

GOD CALLS

THERE IS MUCH careless talk about God calling people to this, that or the other. This seems strange, because, according to God's revealed word, God has only one way to call us and only one call.

REFERRING TO SALVATION which the baptized believer attains in Christ (in his church) - "To this he called you through the gospel to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ." (2 Thess. 1:1; 2:14). GOD DOES NOT CALL us to be janitors, presidents, merchants, brick masons, unemployed, or ministers. He calls us, by the gospel, to the obedience that pleases him. We choose our careers, our occupations, orperhaps just take whatever we can find. This is not something God does for us.

WHEN WE ANSWER the call of God (obey the gospel), we can continue in whatever occupation (legal, honorable) in which the gospel call may find us. (1 Cor. 7:20). BE NOT DECEIVED by mistaken claims.

Pelham beats Vincent with last minute rally

The Pelham Panthers did what

Down 3-0 after Vincent kicked a field goal late in the game, the Panthers rallied for a 62-yard rain-drenched scoring drive. Quarterback Steve Rye crashed over from the three to win Pelham's homecoming by a score of 6-3.

The touchdown came with a scant 37 seconds left in the game.

The Panther victory put an end to Vincent's streak of ten wins, which dated back to last year. Until the Jackets came to Pelham they had flown a 6-0 banner on the 1980 season, good enough in the eyes of the Alabama Sports Writers Poll to earn them a number four state ranking in 2-A

Furthermore, Pelham became the first Shelby County team to upend the powerhouse Yellow Jackets since 1977 when they fell to Montevallo.

For 45 minutes and 18 seconds of scoreless football, the name of the game was defense. And the Panthers gave it their best effort of the year. Time and time again, Pelham's front men, Tim Bailey, Ron Domian, Bart Pierce, Tommy Roy and Chuck Hughes, stopped the normally explosive quickness of Vincent for short or no gains, or pushed them back

Also instrumental in containing the Jackets were Rye, with two interceptions, Hughes with a fumble recovery, Todd Bass, Chris Cutcliff, David Fowler, and Brandy Stephens.

Vincent only gained 40 yards offensive in the first quarter. But the game was far from being lopsided, as the Jacket defense also stuck it to the Panthers, allowing them only 78 yards in the first half while coming up with three

In the third quarter Vincent got a bad break when their quarterback, and one of their big play breakers, James Oden, was sidelined with a hyper-extended left knee for the rest of the game.

On the same drive, Rye broke up a pass from Driggers, Vincent's reserve quarterback, to Tim Smith at the ten. Driggers then attempted a field goal from the 40 which sailed true but fell

In the fourth quarter, following a 55-yard punt by Driggers, Pelham iumbled at the 25. Sidney Yowe and Spradley then set up Vincent inside the 10. This time, from the 15, Driggers kicked true for the field goal.

With 2:42 on the clock, and the layer of water on the field getting deeper, Vincent's three points loomed large on the scoreboard.

But the Panthers then did something they had never done in the 17 games Steve Rivers has coached at Pelham: they came from behind to win.

With fourth and 11 from their own 37, the Panthers ran a play they had learned just that week. On a wingback reverse, Todd Bass romped 24 yards to keep Pelham alive.

Then, with a minute left to play, Rye hit Tracey Swinney with a pass that carried for 37 yards to the two.

Brian Bolton, Pelham's top

rusher with 110 yards in 21 carries, got hit for minus one on the next play by Maurice Kelley. Then Rye passed out of bounds to stop the clock at 00:42.

On third and goal, Pelham faked a plunge and Rye looked for a receiver over the middle. The man was covered so Rye dashed for paydirt, colliding hard with Driggers at the goal, but forcing his way over for the win. The two point conversion failed.

Said Rivers after the game, "This is something the whole school needed. Besides being a big win, we beat a fine football team. It's called believing in yourself, and I think this is evidence that we're starting to do

"No one dropped any heads when we went down 3-0," he proudly pointed out.

"We've got a chance for a 6-4 season, now. That would be the best we've ever had and that's what we're working towards." Rivers said.

Pointing out how well fought the game had been, he added that two referees told him they had seen a lot of good sportsmanship on both sides.

VHS head man Harold Garrett said, "Pelham took the game to us. Steve (Rivers) had a good plan for us. Give the credit where the credit's due. If you put the blame anywhere, put it on me.

"I told our kids to remember just how bad it feels to lose. But I told them when they came out of the locker room to hold their heads high. It hurt them real bad, but I think they'll learn a lot from this." Garrett explained.

Pelham, now 3-4, goes to Rivers' home town of Sylacauga to play B.B. Comer this week. The 6-1 Jackets, still very much alive in the area race, have invited + the Shelby County Wildcats to Vincent for homecoming Friday

Lions win it in overtime

Last Friday the Briarwood Lions added a new twist to their sport of scaring head coach Gary Fleming. After sleeping through the first halves of several games before playing winning football, this time they waited until overtime before capping a 14-6 homecoming victory over Cathedral Christian.

For senior workhorse Mike Schor, it turned out to be quite a night, as he scored a 24-yard, first quarter touchdown, and the go ahead TD on the first overtime play. Schor completed his tour de force with a two-point conver-

The Lions started their first possession at their own 35, and with the help of a face mask call, moved to Cathedral's 29. After a gain of five, Schor then dashed off 24 yards for the score. The PAT fell victim to a bad snap. Briarwood's Stephen Lindsey, the 33 with a sliding interception.

At the end of the half, Lindsey picked off another aerial at midfield.

The visitors dominated the third quarter, keeping the very wet ball for 25 of 29 plays. Fifteen of those plays came during an 80-yard drive, topped by a touchdown dive from the one. Significantly, the PAT sailed wide to knot the score at six all.

Cathedral was driving again at the end of the quarter when Randy Cox recovered a fumble near midfield for the Lions.

Briarwood quarterback Bric Baker got off a good run to Cathedral's 12, but was hit there and fumbled. The Lions were driving again near the end of regulation time when they lost the ball at Cathedral's 37.

The visitors ran out the clock, apparently putting all their eggs in an overtime basket.

Schor jolted that basket from their grasp on the first play in overtime when he ran the ten playing after no practice for two yards for a touchdown and added weeks due to a broken thumb, a two point conversion. Both stopped one Cathedral drive at plays ran through holes blown out by guard Scott Moorer and tackle Randy Cox.

The Lion defense, led by Mitch Wolfe at nose guard, yielded nothing to Cathedral in three overtime stabs from the ten, and a last play pass was caught, but out of the end zone.

Fleming said Cathedral "gave us all we wanted," and credited the win to his Lions' good conditioning and great desire. "In the last few minutes we just had more zip," he said.

As for the game winning hero, Fleming commented, "I just can't say enough about Schor."

Friday the Lions host Moody. It's a must game, since it will count in the Alabama Christian Athletic Conference standings.

Now 3-1 in the ACAC, Briarwood climbs to 5-1 on season.

Early tie raises Raider dander last Friday night. Lately, Shelby Academy has rolled over opponents left and right, but against the Autauga Rebels they were actually tied 7-7 in the second quarter. They rallied, however, and downed the upstarts 27-7.

Before Matt Andrews stopped the kickoff return man at the SA 13, it looked as if the Raiders might actually fall behind, a place they haven't been since losing their opener to Coosa Valley. But the defense held the Rebs to four yards in as many plays, thus saving some embarassment to a team that's developed a lot of pride this year.

Shelby scored late in the first

The Raiders had to work for it quarter after Clifton Garrett, good for 111 yards on the night, dashed off a 43-yard run to the eight. Two plays later Brendan McClary, who led the rushing with 192 yards in 15 carries, scored from the two and James Knowles booted the PAT.

> Autauga then took to the air, completing passes of 50, 17 and three-yards to retaliate with a second quarter TD. The PAT tied the score.

And that got some Raider dander up.

Shelby hammered out a 64-yard drive of their own, with Garrett scoring from the four. Knowles' PAT returned the lead on the scoreboard to the visitors'

In the third quarter, Shelby

"got a little more organized and got things rolling," as head man Harry Rawlinson put it.

Quarterback Dirk Carson, who gained 85 yards rushing on the night, led the Raiders on a 75-yard drive, taking them first inside, then outside. And when Autauga was least expecting it, Carson hit Alan Terrell for a 28-yard touchdown pass. The PAT missed, but there was little question as to who had control.

On defense, Knowles plugged the middle and McClary led behind the line. Matt Andrews also played his regular good game, and Autauga's guns were held silent.

Volleyball season ends in county

Door to area title slammed shut

Girl's volleyball in the county's 3-A schools slammed, banged and spiked its way to the close of another season with the area volleyball tournament last Thursday.

The Childersburg Tigers won the area title by defeating runnerup Thompson in a thrilling finals match. The Lady Warriors won the first game 15-12, but the Tigers fought back with wins of 15-10 and 15-11 to grab top tourney and the Shelby County 4-2 in tourney action, also posted Wildcat women came in fourth. Pelham, B.B. Comer and Pell City also played in the event.

Pelham, coached by Betty Shivers, fell to Comer in round one (15-13, 15-10), then lost again to Pell City (15-9, 15-6).

The Wildcats, coached by Deanne Vansant, lost to Thompson (11-15, 15-1, 15-12), but came back to down Comer (15-3, 15-7). Later, they lost again to Thompson (15-7, 15-5).

wins over Pell City (15-7, 15-3) and Sylacauga (15-6,15-5). Too, they lost a second round match to Childersburg (12-15, 15-10, 15-6).

Despite the state athletic association's shortening the volleyball season by a couple of weeks this year, the Lady Warriors, coached by Lynn Rushing, still played 49 matches this year, and won 33 of them.

Losing the finals to Childersburg taught her team "the agony of defeat," commented coach Rushing, "But we've got some 10th graders who are learning volleyball and will be tough next year."

Of her Lady Wildcats and their 3-8 season, coach Vansant noted "I think we're going to have a pretty good team next year. We played a lot better than our record indicated this year and we'll only lose three players."

Coach Shivers pointed out that her 8-9 Lady Panthers had only two players with any experience this year, and were forced to play the tourney with two starters missing due to injuries. "We'll do better next year," she said.

County players who made the All-Area team were Angie Harris, Cynthia Cunningham and Donna Oden, all of Thompson; Michelle Reed from SCHS, and Tamara Brown and Sherry Goodwin of Pelham.

The full day tournament was hosted by Thompson High

The Thompson Youth Cowboys 85-pound team nipped Trussville by a score of 6-0 last

The big win marked the second week in a row the Cowboys have pulled a close game out of the fire. The week before they beat a good Leeds team, 7-0. That win came in double overtime when Jonathan Mashburn took a handoff from QB Brady Thames and dove it over. Allen Barefoot booted the PAT to clinch it. Last Saturday the Cowboys set up their first quarter score with a 30-yard pass play from Thames to end Gerry Geeslin. Bobby Knight ran 25 yards on a reverse to score.

This Saturday is homecoming for Thompson youth football teams and the games will be the last of their scheduled season. The public is invited and games against the tough Crestwood teams will be played all day.

Late in the second quarter, with a rain starting up, Richard "Sleepy" Russell recovered another fumble for Calera, this one at the Tiger 31. Russell, who led Calera's rushing with 74 yards in 17 carries, scored six plays later with a run from the two. A bad snap led to a missed PAT.

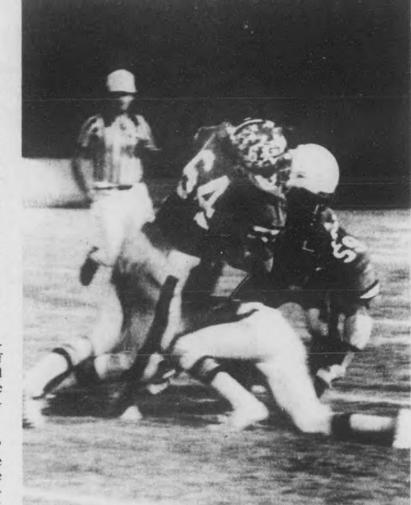

Missing the extra point almost came back to haunt Calera when TCTS recovered a third quarter fumble at the Eagle eight. It took them four plays, but TCTS finally scored on a pass from the three, William Garrett to Ronald Garrett. That made the score 13-12.

On the decisive two-point conversion attempt, Eagles Cliff Smith and Larry Johnson turned on the rush and pressured the rolling quarterback who overthrew his target.

"It was a big area win for us," said Alverson, admitting the score was a bit close. "They were extremely fast. The wet field probably helped us some. I think we're still improving, but under the adverse conditions, it was hard to tell."

Alverson, pointing out that five wins had been his original goal for this year's Eagles, added, "We're extremely pleased, but we hope to do even better."

They get their chance to improve this week in an important area game against Chelsea. Disregarding their 0-7 record, Alverson notes, "Chelsea always gets fired up when they play Calera. We have all the respect in the world for Chelsea. They always play us a good game. We'll stand in there and see what they've got."

After Central's first punt of the third quarter, CVA set up at the 33 and moved it out to midfield. From there Norred hit Ricky Earnest with a 40-yard bomb and Earnest ran the last eight yards for the touchdown. Williams' PAT made it 36-0.

With the younger Rebels playing most of the second half, Central managed to get on the board twice in the fourth quarter.

CVA set up a final 60-yard scoring drive with a 20-yard pass play from Norred to Earnest. Davis scored from the one. Williams missed the PAT, for on-

Montevallo loses game and quarterback

Coach Richard Gilliam says game there Friday night.

Even with Melsoni, Montevallo has taken a lot of hard lumps this year. And Winterboro didn't help their record 1-6 a bit. The Bulldogs from across the Coosa River shutout the Bulldogs from Montevallo 14-0.

The first quarter was a battle for field position, with neither team gaining a first down. Melsoni picked off an interception, but Winterboro finally got the edge when their third punt rolled for 57 yards.

After partially blocking a quick-kick, Winterboro moved from Montevallo's 40 to first down at the 11. But Montevallo stiffened and held at the goal.

Then, on third and 11, Melsoni picked up eight yards before getting slung down on what Gilliam noted as a clean tackle. Melsoni's not so clean, and the three-sport athlete dislocated his hip as he hit the ground.

Gaddis was intercepted at the 14. The third quarter proved to be a scoreless mudslide. made the score 14-0.

After an exchange of fumbles late in the quarter, Gaddis, from his own seven, connected with Scott Studdard for a 67-yard play to Winterboro's 23. Time was eaten up by another exchange of fumbles and from the 25, MHS threw four incomplete passes before the clock ran out.

Now faced with a 1-7 record, Gilliam said, "We'll have to totally regroup since we'll be operating without David (Melsoni). We'll miss him on offense and defense, but especially

"We'll have to spend a lot of time working. We've got a lot pieces to pick up."

On the Wildcats' next possession, Aggie Jon Hand (6'7", 280 pounds), who caused a lot of thunder all night, broke up the option and recovered a fumble at the 20. Again the SCHS defense held off for five plays, but on the sixth, Sylacauga scored.

The Wildcat defense stopped the Aggies on their first possession of the second half. But when the Aggies punted, Shelby County fumbled the kick on their three and two plays and a PAT later, the scorfe was 28-0.

By the time it started raining, the Aggie storm was lifting a little. Sylacauga didn't score again until the fourth quarter, and that came on a drive of 55 yards.

Another bad Wildcat punt snap was chased down in the end zone by Hugh Sims who fell on it to trade off a safety for a touchdown. The score stood at

"We'd better get physical or they'll put our breeches out to dry. But if we cut out our mistakes, we'll play Vincent a real good football game," Molton said.

Chelsea packs a punch but St. Clair wins the game

Chelsea racked up 390 yards offense against St. Clair County. more yardage than they amassed in several games put together.

And the 21 points the Hornets rang up on the scoreboard doubled the number of points they earned all year.

"It was a great game," said Chelsea coach Daryl Burnham, adding dryly, "for St. Clair County, that is."

Chelsea lost a 22-21 squeaker to homecoming host St. Clair, keeping their record something less-than-perfect, at a perfect 0-7.

It was more of the same heartbreak the Hornets have endured all year in a season in which their by less than a touchdown.

"For 48 minutes we played sound offense," Burnham noted. "This time our defense went slack. The big plays did it. We didn't have the speed to stop

The first of the "big plays" came on the first play of the game. St. Clair connected on a 65-yard bomb play that carried for a touchdown. The PAT was

Now running a veer attack, Chelsea answered back with 15 plays that carried them 70 yards to paydirt. Keith McCullers, new opponents have outscored them at the quarterback slot, picked up 99-42. Four of those losses came 28 of those yards, eight of which came on the score. Tim Rich booted the PAT to tie the score.

And again Chelsea drove, this time 60 yards in 11 plays, with running by Kelly Cooper, Jack Shaw and McCullers. Cooper scored from the six and Rich kicked a PAT.

Significantly, Chelsea was called for a procedure penalty. Kicked again from five yards back, the PAT missed.

As a heavy, ominous rain set in, Chelsea's defense got called for pass interference and off sides, and St. Clair moved to the 25. With: 03 left in the half, they scored on a double reverse, kicked the PAT and took a 14-13 halftime lead.

Chelsea scored again on a drive of 62-yards, including a 12-yard touchdown pass from McCullers to Jock Efferson. McCullers hit Cooper with a pass for two to take a 21-14 lead.

Recovered loot

Shelby County Sheriff Buddy Glasgow and investigators Bill Davenport and John Pratt examine some of the loot recovered from burglaries that occurred over a six month period in north Shelby County. The valuables totalled approximately $30,000. Stolen items include firearms, a TV set, binoculars, a telescope, jewelry, radios, cameras and an antique silver pitcher.

Dry Valley residents ask city annexation

A petition with signatures of 95 land owners was presented to Montevallo's City Council Monday night.

A letter accompanying the petition states, "We the concerned citizens of Dry Valley hereby petition the City of Montevallo to annex the area adjacent and contiguous to Highways 25 and Maps and legal descriptions of each piece of property were also presented.

The 95 signatures represent approximately 75 plots of property within the proposed area.

The letter to the city council indicates, "We have more than the necessary 60 percent of the land mass and we feel we will have the necessary votes to be annexed to the city as an agriculture-one (A-1) zone..."

The documents were presented to council members by Pauline Williams, secretary of an organization called the Concerned Citizens of Dry Valley for Annexation.

Also present was a group of some 15 property owners in the Dry Valley area who are opposed to annexation. When a map of the area proposed to be annexed was passed throughout the council chambers it was noted that most of the property owners opposed to annexation were not included in the annexation area.

William Lawler, Jr., presented a list of some 200 names of persons opposed to annexation. Upon examination of the list it was revealed that few if any live in the area proposed to be annex-

Mayor Ralph Sears accepted the petitions, maps and other documents and told the group that City Clerk Don Hughes will prepare a study of property values and potential income from the area proposed to be annexed and balance it against the cost of providing municipal services to the area. The council will then study the documents and make a decision on accepting or rejecting the petition. Sears said he hoped this information would be available by the next meeting of the City Council.

Hughes reported to council members that he had met, recently, with a group of property owners who live between Montevallo and Moore's Cross Roads. The meeting was initiated by those who wish this area to be annexed to Montevallo. The group is in the process of preparing a petition of annexation.

Other citizens appearing before Monday night's council meeting included Dr. John A. Rude, a professor at the University of Montevallo. Rude presented a written outline of plans for a proposed lounge he hopes to establish. To be called "R Retreat" the proposed business would be located in the Whaley Shopping Center in a building formerly occupied by the Alabama Power Company.

Rude left an application for an on-premises liquor license. No action was taken by the council.

Another application, this one for an off-premises wine license, was presented by Naomi N. Beane, operator of Nell's Grocery and Service Station. Action on this application was postponed.

In other action, Montevallo Police Chief Troy Kirkland was asked to canvass downtown merchants to determine their wishes regarding enforcement of a twohour parking ordinance for the downtown area. Kirkland will present the results of his canvass at the council's next meeting.

Burglaries solved in North Shelby

by Bert Seaman

Guns, jewelry, cameras and knives were some of the stolen items Shelby County Sheriff's Department investigators found in a wooded area of Riverchase two weeks ago.

And other loot which had been stolen from Shelby County homes during the past six months was found earlier in the day in a Vestavia apartment.

Sheriff Buddy Glasgow reported that the most recent recovery of stolen goods means that 95% of the burglaries in north Shelby County have now been solved.

Looking over the stolen possessions assembled in a secure room of the Sheriff's department, Sgt. John Pratt estimated their total value to be around $30,000.

Two men have been charged with the burglaries which involved break-ins of homes in Indian Springs, Indian Valley, Riverchase, Indian Crest and some in Jefferson County.

They are 20 year old Chris Wells of Hoover and Zane DeShazo, also 20.

Executing a search warrant at the Vestavia apartment and finding a number of stolen items, Pratt and a fellow investigator, Bill Davenport, then learned of the hiding place in the woods.

Other property that had been taken from north Shelby homes was found in two garbage bags in a wooded area of Riverchase on the Jefferson County side of the boundary line.

According to Pratt, the investigation of the burglaries intensified two months ago after guns and a quantity of drugs were found at the Little Mountain Chateau apartments in Pelham.

Because of the increase of burglaries in the north end of the county, Pratt related that the sheriff had assigned extra men to the area and he said that unmarked cars had been used for surveillance.

Pelham investigators Capt. Alan Wade and Tommy Thomas were also instrumental, Pratt said, in locating part of the stolen

Several of the shotguns that were found in the Pelham apartment had been sawed off as if they were intended to be used for robbery purposes, the Sheriff's department investigator related.

During the last few weeks, Pratt reported that his department had also been assisted in the stepped up investigation by Jefferson County detectives and Vestavia and Hoover police of-

Columbiana council delays police action

The new administration in Columbiana waded into city business Thursday evening, but they hardly got their feet wet.

Decision making was put off on most of the matters brought up until more information could be obtained.

The city's new mayor, Buck Falkner, asked members of the various committees he had appointed at the organizational meeting, to look into situations that came under their area of responsibility. A petition that was presented to the panel near the end of the meeting might have led them into some deep water. But it was also put aside until the next meeting.

The document which was signed by 115 people in the downtown area, asked that the council not abolish the position of assistant police chief.

It had been reported that the council was planning to take such action which would reduce assistant chief Myron Bradley's pay to that of a patrolman.

Members of the department were present to support Bradley, but Mayor Buck Falkner said no action would be taken until the full council was present.

The mayor had announced earlier in the meeting that Councilman Frank Owen was absent because of job obligations.

Two mothers involved with the Pee Wee sports' program, asked for the councils' support.

Ruby Cardwell reported that it had cost $5,600 to purchase equipment. She said she had heard that other towns helped sponsor such programs and wondered if an amount couldn't be put in the budget for that pur-

The mayor replied that he, and the other two members of the Park and Recreation committee would meet with the leaders of the program to see if something couldn't be worked out.

In order to bring more revenue into city coffers, finance committee member Jessie Jones asked that two ordinances be reviewed.

The first one concerned auto tax sales on which the city is being shortchanged.

Mayor Falkner noted that several thousand dollars is slipping through the city's fingers because a number of residents do not admit living within the city limits when they purchase their

When the auto tag fee of city residents is collected by the tax assessor, a certain percentage of that amount is given to the city.

Jones mentioned that the other ordinance that needed to be checked, concerned the collection

Hospital board quizzed on firing of head nurse

by Marcia M. Sears

Nineteen people crowded into the Shelby Memorial Hospital board meeting Tuesday night to protest the firing of Betty Sherer. The former director of nurses and administrative assistant was dismissed by hospital administrator Roland Bradford, two weeks ago.

Board chairman Ben Grubbs and Bradford told the group that lawyers on both sides were handling the matter and they would have no comment.

Grubbs said the personnel committee knew the reasons. Board member Bull Carter, who is not on that committee, received applause from the spectators when he said that he as a board member ought to know why she was dismissed. Carter said, "How do we know they (the personnel committee) won't run everybody off?"

He added that staff morale is very low.

Earl Cunningham moved that the entire board be named as a committee of one to investigate. The motion passed.

Grubbs promised to make the findings public if the lawyers

Members of the personnel committee include board members Russell Seay, Cunningham, and Herman Moore.

Among the citizens who questioned the board Tuesday night were Gladys Harper, Ruby Hoobler, Sammy Kelly, and former night supervisor Evelyn Moates.

Calera studies budget

A budget for 1980-81 for the town of Calera is currently in the discussion stage. Preliminary reports indicate it will be approximately $631,000.

The budget and how to spend revenue sharing funds will be the topic of discussions this week. A final review of the proposed budget is scheduled for the middle of this week.

Other money matters coming before the Calera City Council's most recent meeting included the transfer of $45,000 from the city's park and recreation board... to an interest earning investment. The money has been held in reserve in the event additional property adjacent to Oliver Park became available. According to a spokesman the present 13 acre park is "heavily congested in the Figures show county's growth

Ron Stutts gave the County Commission some figures Monday that show graphic proof of the county's growth in the past 10

Stutts is acting director of the Shelby County Health Department, and it is that department that has had the responsibility of approving septic tank construction, among many other things.

Stutts' figures show, that in the vears between 1970 and 1980, there were 263 subdivisions approved with the peak years being 1977-78 with 54 and 49 respectively. The low year was 1970 with 9. This represents 8,592 building lots.

During this same period some 10,646 approved septic tanks were installed to serve new or restored dwellings and businesses. Using 85% as new dwellings, this represents 9,049 new dwellings.

Records show that there were 22 food establishments and approved meat markets in 1970 and today there are 117, a 533% increase. Public schools have increased from 16 to 19 with an additional food facility being opened at an existing school. Five large completely new shopping centers have opened and virtually all others have expanded. Four city halls have been built new or remodeled and expanded and a new county jail constructed.

Chelsea pupils 'build' onto their education

Chelsea fourth graders might not choose to live in a log cabin, but at least they know how to build one now.

While studying about the pioneers in their social studies class, the students were asked to construct models of a cabin or covered wagon.

And their teacher, Margaret Mayweather, said that an impressive variety of cabins and covered wagons were turned in as a result of the project.

Family members were allowed to lend a hand with the construction of the models, Mayweather related, since the project was to be done at home.

While her fourth graders were studying about the problems faced by Alabama pioneer families, Mayweather, who also teaches art, decided on the project combining the two subjects. "The students were really excited about making the models, and it was a good learning experience," Mayweather declared.

Montevallo's Assistant Fire Chief Joe McGaughy reported that his department sprayed light water on escaping gasoline. He said that police and firemen directed traffic onto County Road 155 until after the danger of fire was over. It took approximately an hour and a half to clean up the highway and make it safe for travel, McGaughy said. Smitherman was transported to Shelby Memorial Hospital and transferred to University Hospital.

At presstime Tuesday he was reported in fair condition. He reportedly suffered a fractured neck, fractured pelvis and enclosed skull fracture.

State Trooper T.J. Jackson investigated the accident but he could not be reached to see if he had determined the cause.

by Marcia M. Sears

What is the best grain to use for making gasohol?

Interest in the subject is high in east Shelby County and in posed ethanol plant getting underway in Childersburg.

Tom Corley, vice president of Auburn University, told this newspaper recently that Auburn is testing 25 varieties of sorghum to get the answer.

He said the results are not yet in, but he expects soon to be able to advise farmers on which of the sorghums would be the best to raise, if corn is not the best in a given locale.

Corley said the Auburn studies are taking place at 8 agricultural experimental stations throughout the state. Scientists are studying Corley said it is surprising how well some of the varieties stood Talladega County with the pro- the hot dry summer, adding that sorghums stood the drought better than corn.

The men who are starting Coosa Energy Enterprises for the production of ethanol and gasohol at Childersburg, have indicated they would need large quantities of grains. Area leaders see this as a boon for farmers in the entire Coosa Valley.

Little Jody Arnold has just completed his part in the relaying of the cornerstone at the Montevallo United Methodist Church. Mr. and Mrs. Bill Carpenter and Rev. The cornerstone was opened last September but the historic information the congregation had hoped to find had disintegrated.

If anyone thought the time change would catch me napping, they were wrong.

But I must admit, it was close. I almost did forget.

Just as I was drifting off to the land of nod Saturday evening, with the TV still on, I heard an announcer warning viewers not to forget to set their clocks back.

So sleepily I reached over and grasped the knob on my digital clock and started to turn.

And I turned, and turned and turned.

Why, I wonder, don't I have a regular old wind up clock where one small flip would let you gain or lose an hour?

Anyhow, I finally had the numbers correct, and I drifted off, secure in the knowlege the time change was not going to throw a money wrench in my time schedule the next day.

Next morning I was up at the regular hour. And as I made coffee, it dawned on me that I'd have a whole extra hour to get ready for Sunday School.

"I'll be there so early today," I thought, "I'll just stun everybody!"

With so much time, there was no reason to rush, so I just poked along. But I began to get increasingly nervous.

The TV programs didn't seem to be coming on at their accustomed times. And I began to wonder if, in my groggy state the night before, I might have set the clock to the wrong hour.

So I hastily called the number to get the correct time, but the

I guess a few other folks were trying to reassure themselves.

Anyhow, on my third try I was getting pretty frustrated. Reaching for the phone, I knocked over a full cup of coffee which had been sitting on the cord.

The hot, brown liquid managed to splatter on desk, bed, rug, magazines and newspapers. I didn't realize until much later that a goodly part of the brew must have gone into the phone.

After I mopped up the mess, I heard this strange little gurggling sound and I finally realized it was the phone trying to ring.

It turned out to be a caller who had a lot to say.

When I finally managed to extract myself from the conversation I called the time number again and found out I had the right hour which meant that I was now running late.

So I rushed over to my closet and reached for the dress I planned to wear.

But that was my next dilemma. I came up empty handed.

Someone had apparently reached for it earlier.

With a little scrounging around, I came up with something suitable, but by then I should have been in my class.

So I was late again - I guess there's just no way for me to win.

My only consolation was the fact that the teacher arrived even

The county offices of the Extension Service have a deserted look now that three staff members have left.

The remaining staffers at the county Extension Service office are juggling schedules in an effort to keep up with the most important programs of the service.

Shelby County was hard hit by the freeze on hiring that Governor Fob James has ordered at Auburn University that extends throughout the statewide Extension Service, as well as the two

Auburn campuses. There are three vacancies on the Staff at present, with no immediate hope of their being filled. The vacancies occurred when Luther Davis resigned last spring to take a job in another county. Then Marian Cotney's retirement left a major space to fill. And recently, Erline Mayhew, the chief secretary, resigned to join the staff in Tax Collector Fay Quick's office.

The cutback in funds at Auburn was required by proration and a shortfall of tax revenues, according to Auburn sources. John Parrott, with Auburn's Extension Service, told the Reporter last week that the service is 37 extension agents short throughout the state and there are numerous clerical positions vacant.

The freeze on hiring will continue, apparently, until the economic situation in the state improves.

In the meantime, Shelby County residents who need information or services that are normally supplied by the Extension Service should expect to wait longer for their telephone calls to be answered. There may also be some programs suspended or discontinued.

The Shelby County Commission voted to appropriate $3,000 to Birmingham Regional Emergency Medical Services for fiscal year 1981 at its meeting Monday.

The sum will cover telephone costs at the two radio-telephone switching stations. One tower and station is located on Double Oak Mountain; the other is in

If anyone thought the time change would catch me napping, they were wrong.

But I must admit, it was close. I almost did forget.

Just as I was drifting off to the land of nod Saturday evening, with the TV still on, I heard an announcer warning viewers not to forget to set their clocks back.

So sleepily I reached over and grasped the knob on my digital clock and started to turn.

And I turned, and turned and

Why, I wonder, don't I have a regular old wind up clock where one small flip would let you gain or lose an hour?

Anyhow, I finally had the numbers correct, and I drifted off, secure in the knowlege the time change was not going to throw a money wrench in my time schedule the next day.

Next morning I was up at the regular hour. And as I made coffee, it dawned on me that I'd have a whole extra hour to get ready for Sunday School.

"I'll be there so early today," I thought, "I'll just stun everybody!"

With so much time, there was no reason to rush, so I just poked along. But I began to get increasingly nervous.

The TV programs didn't seem to be coming on at their accustomed times. And I began to wonder if, in my groggy state the night before, I might have set the clock to the wrong hour.

So I hastily called the number to get the correct time, but the

I guess a few other folks were trying to reassure themselves.

Anyhow, on my third try I was getting pretty frustrated. Reaching for the phone, I knocked over a full cup of coffee which had been sitting on the cord. The hot, brown liquid managed to splatter on desk, bed, rug, magazines and newspapers. I didn't realize until much later that a goodly part of the brew must have gone into the phone.

After I mopped up the mess, I heard this strange little gurggling sound and I finally realized it was the phone trying to ring.

It turned out to be a caller who had a lot to say.

When I finally managed to extract myself from the conversation I called the time number again and found out I had the right hour which meant that I was now running late.

So I rushed over to my closet and reached for the dress I planned to wear.

But that was my next dilemma. I came up empty handed.

Someone had apparently reached for it earlier.

With a little scrounging around, I came up with something suitable, but by then I should have been in my class.

So I was late again - I guess there's just no way for me to win.

My only consolation was the fact that the teacher arrived even

The county offices of the Extension Service have a deserted look now that three staff members have left.

The remaining staffers at the county Extension Service office are juggling schedules in an effort to keep up with the most important programs of the service.

Shelby County was hard hit by the freeze on hiring that Governor Fob James has ordered at Auburn University that extends throughout the statewide Extension Service, as well as the two Auburn campuses.

There are three vacancies on the Staff at present, with no immediate hope of their being filled. The vacancies occurred when Luther Davis resigned last spring to take a job in another county. Then Marian Cotney's retirement left a major space to fill. And recently, Erline Mayhew, the chief secretary, resigned to join the staff in Tax Collector Fay Quick's office.

The cutback in funds at Auburn was required by proration and a shortfall of tax revenues, according to Auburn sources. John Parrott, with Auburn's Extension Service, told the Reporter last week that the service is 37 extension agents short throughout the state and there are numerous clerical positions vacant.

The freeze on hiring will continue, apparently, until the economic situation in the state

In the meantime, Shelby County residents who need information or services that are normally supplied by the Extension Service should expect to wait longer for their telephone calls to be answered. There may also be some programs suspended or discontinued.

The Shelby County Commission voted to appropriate $3,000 to Birmingham Regional Emergency Medical Services for fiscal year 1981 at its meeting Monday.

The sum will cover telephone costs at the two radio-telephone switching stations. One tower and station is located on Double Oak Mountain; the other is in Alabaster.

At present, the only places that have trained paramedics that connect with the system are in Alabaster, Pelham, North Shelby and Shelco., according to a BREMSS spokesman.

The ultimate goal of the system is to have trained paramedics in every section of the county.

In the discussion, Commissioner Harold Davenport asked what it would take to get these paramedics. The answer was "Time and money." It takes three months special training above the level of EMT 2, according to one who was present.

Among those who appeared at the commission meeting were Chief William Bryars and It. Jerry Lamb of Pelham: Chief John Cochran and Charles Byrd of Alabaster and Jim House, assistant coordinator for BREMSS and a North Shelby volunteer paramedic.

The commission named three men as local representatives to the board: Jerry Lamb, Phillip Walker and James E. (Jake) Morris.

Farm loans offered

Shelby County farmers can take advantage of a new program to improve their farms. Farmers in only three states have this opportunity.

Low cost loans to make capital improvements such as new buidings, equipment, land and depreciable livestock, will be available to Alabama farmers through the sale of tax-exempt bonds.

The program was set up by the legislature this year. Ninety percent of the money for the low interest loans will come from the sale of the tax-exempt bonds. The size of the first bond issue will be determined by the amount of loans which farmers request through their local ending institu-

Library beat

by Phil Clark

Everyone knows the value of friends and of being a friend in relation to one's personal life. Institutions also need friends. An organization established for the sole purpose of befriending an institution such as a library becomes, in effect, the library's principal supporter within the community.

Ours is a world of information, and your library is the receptacle for this information. It must keep abreast of today's events, as well as make available that which has been learned and recorded from the past. The library is a dynamic social and cultural center serving the public with its many resources. Public support is essential for the library to meet

Sewage plant eyed for Calera

A new $4 million sewage disposal plant is in the planning stage for Calera.

The Environmental Protection Agency recently awarded the town more than a quarter of a million dollars for design of the plant.

The award marks the starting point for Step Two in construction of the proposed facility. Step One involved a detailed review of existing facilities and the cost of an updated system.

Construction will begin in approximately 13 months.

the increasing demands placed upon it, and "Friends of the Library" can ably provide necessary public support.

Individuals become friends of the library because they are interested in, supportive of, and users of their local library. "Friends of the Library" then becomes an organization of individuals who join together to support the library. They can work for library improvements wherever they are needed. They know a good library touches the lives of all people from the preschooler to the senior-citizen, from the learning-to-read adult to the specialist. Friends members are civic-minded men and women who know that the quality of life in a community is enhanced by first-rate libraries.

In Shelby County we are fortunate to have such groups. Montevallo's "Friends" have been very helpful with reorganizing the library after a fire destroyed their building. Pelham Library's group is very active with book sales and membership drives. Columbiana and Wilsonville are showing signs of interest for such a group to sponsor many fine projects. Vincent Public Library will hold an organizational meeting for a "Friends" group Monday, November 3 at 7 p.m. This is a great opportunity for all citizens in the Vincent area to show their concern and support for the library.

These smiling seniors, Lynn Kelley (left) and Terri Cockrun, were choosen as the 1980 Vincent Homecoming Queens and crowned in a pregame ceremony last Friday night. Even though heavy thunderstorms somewhat dampened the night, Vincent gave its homecoming crowd plenty to smile about as they went on to beat Shelby County High School 41-0.

Swimming pool rules aim at improving safety

Safer swimming in the pools of Shelby County is the idea behind

On October 13, the Shelby County Board of Health adopted regulations which govern the construction and operation of swimming facilities such as pools and public bathing places.

According to Ron Stutts, Acting Administrator, the new regulations should be very beneficial in protecting the health and safety of people who use these facilities. Up until now, there have not been adequate regulations to control swimming pools and other public bathing facilities. The new regulations will require each person or group of people having a facility, defined as public by the regulations, to have a permit from the Health Department before constructing or operating a pool or similar facility. Certain standards have to be met in order to keep the permit, which is renewable annually.

Standards for operations are designed to ensure safe and sanitary conditions for swim-

The regulations go into effect on November 13. Between now and the next swimming season environmentalists will be trying to contact all pool owners or operators so that they can make adjustments so as to be in compliance with the new regulations.

While the Health Department is aware of the location of most pools in the county, there may be some missed. The public is requested to notify the Environmental Division at 663-7670 of any pools which they think may be unreported.

Before you dive in next spring or summer look for the Health Department permit. If it's not there, ask questions and call 663-7670, Stutts advises.

Lay Lake drops until Nov. 3

The reservoir level of Lay Lake will be lowered by approximately two to three feet beginning Oct.

This announcement came from E.P. Byars, manager, system operations for Alabama Power Company.

The lake level will be lowered from its pool level of 396 feet above mean sea level to enable the company to measure the rate of flow downstream of Logan Martin Dam in compliance with Federal Energy Regulatory Commission instructions.

"Operations will be conducted at Lay Lake to cause as little inconvenience as possible to fishing and recreation. Plans are to begin refilling the lake on Monday, November 3, until we reach full pool level. However, heavy rainfall or other factors may make it necessary to vary this plan without notice," Byars said.

Owners of boats, other floating equipment, and facilities, as well as marina operators with property on Lay Lake, should be alert to the conditions and take appropriate steps to prevent damages or make Shelby County is big business. We need progressive leadership. Just like in the business world we must make a plan and set priorities.

Shelby County has lacked positive leadership in setting our priorities.

Number one is our school system. The Commission does not control the Board of Education but we must work with them in harmony. The Commission must listen to their needs and give them support in their program for better schools and playgrounds. We are fast approaching a crisis in overcrowding in our schools.

We must get involved with our law enforcement departments and municipalities and listen to their needs. As a team we can work together for the betterment of Shelby County.

A vote for Don Murphy will be a vote for you to have active participation in the shaping of the future of

New Calera newsletter circulates within city

The "Calera Town Crier", a newsletter published by the Town of Calera made its appearance last week.

The newsletter is designed to cover town council meetings, board and department meetings and activities involving Calera's police, fire and rescue operations, according to Mark C. Jones, the town's recently ap-

"Initial plans," said Jones, "are to publish the 'Crier' every two weeks following council meetings." The 'Crier's' principal objective is to keep the public informed, he added.

The Town Council budgeted $6,000 for the first year of the Crier. It is a memeograph publication utilizing mimeograph equipment of Calera's Baptist Church. Postal costs run about $143 per week.

In addition to the newsletter Jones prepares daily information that is broadcast on Calera's radio stateion WBYE.

"In the past," says Jones, "word-of-mouth was the principal way Calera citizens got their news. With the newsletter and radio broadcasts Calera should be one of the most informed communities around," Jones ad-

Students learn 'family living' in new course at Montevallo Hi

Some of the rosy glow that surrounded the idea of marriage in the minds of some Montevallo High School students has been replaced by a more realistic outlook.

A class on family living recently had the experience of planning and participating in a mock wedding.

The ceremony was held Wednesday in the home economics building on the MHS campus with Cindy Elledge filling the role of bride and Steve Wilkinson acting as the groom.

Prior to the actual event, students in Jane Darden's class looked at the cost of a traditional wedding and reception.

They also visited a florist shop and observed how a wedding cake is decorated.

And getting a wider perspective on the subject, students also learned about different religious ceremonies and the customs of various nationalities.

The major objective of the family living course, according to Darden, is to help the student develop better communication with friends and family.

About half of the class members are boys, the teacher pointed out. She said that male students now realize they play an important part in all areas of family living, from dating and making wedding plans, to the birth of a baby.

Subjects studied during the course deal with setting goals, dating and decision making, love and getting engaged.

One unit of special interest, Darden noted, concerns problems of marital adjustment. She said the effect children have on a marriage is also discussed.

Another topic of interest that comes up in the closing unit Energy assistance is a one time grant program to help low income households pay for high energy costs during winter.

After all applications have been taken, the amount will be determined and checks mailed in February, Susan Treadwell, local DPS Director, asked that everyone not try to come in on December 15. The money will not run out and no checks will be given until all applications are taken. Similar programs in prior years have been on a first come first served basis, but that is not true this year, she said.

To be eligible for a grant a household must provide verification of the prior month's income. For instance, Social Security checks for November should be photocopied if a person plans to apply in December.

SYLVESTER SHAW

Arrows fly, but no meat fries

by Sylvester Shaw

We are two weeks into Deer Archery Season and only three deer have been taken that I know about.

I talked with some of my bowhunting buddies and they have seen a lot of deer but they just can't hit them.

Dennis King told me he shot at one deer and one stump. He missed the deer and the stump and hit a tree. Dennis is one of the best shots around, but when you get Buck Fever it's just hard to make the bow shoot the arrow in the right place.

Jeff Hand, Max King, Dennis King and Joe Buchanan went to Barber County for a weekend hunt. They saw 38 deer but didn't bring back any meat.

Jerry Watkins and Jackie Humphries came by the house and told me they believe all the deer were heading South because all they've seen have been tails.

I saw one Columbiana bowhunter named Steve Gallops with a knife digging a Big Yate Broadhead out of a limb. He said he didn't know how it got in there, but it was one of his ar-

I haven't heard anything from Ted Wells, David Rae, Glen Mc-Clouskie, James Terry Benson, Don Perkins, Roland Griffin or any other bowhunters. Let me know about your hunting trips. Drop a line to Sylvester Shaw, P.O. Box 727, Columbiana, Al.,

Well, it's real bad around my house. My wife, Sandra, is giving me a hard time. She went fishing and caught 15, 71/2, 5, and 4 pound catfish. She told me she can put more meat on the table with a hook than I can with a bow. What can I say? So far she's right. But you just can't see in a boat what I can see in our beautiful Shelby County Forest.

All the wild turkey slipping through the woods makes our state the top turkey state in the world. Gray Squirrels packing up food for the winter, fox out on the prowl, raccoon sitting on the creek washing food--I may not take much game with a bow and arrow but I sure do love to get in the woods and enjoy all the

Chelsea stops Calera in a 2-day game

The scoreboard stayed lit after most everybody had gone home, even after the lights on the football field were turned out. The scoreboard read 14-6.

Chelsea won. Not only that, but they beat Calera. You can bet there were some happy fans in Hornet country last weekend. It was Chelsea's first taste of blood since dropping played Saturday night. Thorsby 34-27, ten games ago. Furthermore, it was the first time they beat Calera since 1973. In 1975 the two teams tied 0-0.

Oddly enough, it took two days to decide this year's winner. Heavy thunderstorms in Chelsea postponed the action Friday night. The remainder of the third and the fourth quarters was

The score Friday was 14-0. Saturday, Calera came back, scored one TD and held Chelsea to -7 net yards rushing and one first down. But it just wasn't enough.

After seven losses this year, Chelsea picked up victory number one for their first year head coach Daryl Burnham.

Said Burnham, "We're very happy to win against a fine team like Calera. It sure makes me feel a lot better.

"We've been improving all year long. If we'll just take this in a positive tone and continue to improve, it'll be great. But if we're satisified with one win, that's no good. Hopefully, this'll make us come back and work even harder," Burnham commented.

The Calera Eagles flew down to Chelsea's 11 on their first possession, but a bad pitchout on an open play was recovered by Victor Smith to end the threat.

After a Hornet punt, Calera drove to a first down on Chelsea's 20. But the defensive work of Chris Thomas, Dennis Jacobs, Tommy Jones and Phillip Blackerby held the Eagles and caused another fourth down

An exchange of punts gave Chelsea position and they drove 60 yards to score in 10 plays. A quarterback keeper by Keith Mc-Cullers, good for 16 yards, and a McCullers pass to Jack Shaw for 20 yards, set up the score. Kelly Cooper ran the touchdown from the two and Tim Rich booted the PAT to give Chelsea the lead with four minutes in the half.

Another Calera fumble on the pitchout set up Chelsea at their own 45 for their second score.

The touchdown came in five plays, but not before Eagle Tim Hall intercepted a pass, returned it five yards and fumbled back to Chelsea. The Hornets scored on a four yard run by Cooper. Rich kicked the PAT, making the score 14-0 at the half.

After a little halftime inspiration by head coach Danny Alverson, the Eagles contained Chelsea in the third quarter. Also, they drove 52 yards to the eight with the help of a 20-yard scamper by Tim Loftin.

But again the turnover struck. McCullers intercepted Calera in the end zone for a touchback.

Then the rain started. Chelsea ran three plays, gained one yard and was facing a punting situation when the officials called the game due to the pouring torrent.

Twenty-two and a half hours later, the ball was snapped and Calera blocked the long awaited punt. On the rush were Richard Russell, Raymond King, Kirk Ross and Mike Roberson.

Then, on third and 12, Calera pulled their wingback reverse flea-flicker, and Ricky Winterbottom hit King with a 25-yard touchdown pass. Calera's attempt for two was foiled by Jacobs, making the final score Calera tried the same play later but Kent O'Shields broke it up at the 15.

The Eagles last threat ended on yet another fumble, this one recovered by Blackerby at the Chelsea 28 with 1:04 left to play.

The Chelsea players chanted off the final countdown from the 20-second mark and exploded into a frenzy. Their victory dance on the field was wild.

"They played exactly like I thought they would," said Calera coach Danny Alverson, "I told our boys if Chelsea didn't have any turnovers it would be a tough game. And it was a real tough game. The turnovers cost us. We just couldn't hold on to the football."

Calera assistant coach Mark Lovett later said, "A few of our individuals took Chelsea lightly, but not the whole team. Chelsea could have easily been 6-1 (instead of 0-7 going into the game). "Our defensive play stunk the first half. It takes more effort to get out of bed than we showed. But sometimes it takes a kick in the pants to wake you up. Maybe we'll have some intensity for Vincent," Lovett said. "It's going to take four quarters, solid."

Now 5-3 overall and 3-1 in the area, Calera travels to Vincent Friday for what may be a Halloween spetacular. Vincent, 7-1, is 3-0 in the area, with Calera and Chelsea left.

Trick or treat?

Chelsea plays non-area foe Dallas County at home tonight (Thursday) at 7:30.

Further adding to the cause for celebration last Saturday in Chelsea, was the fact that it was Hornet Paul Kendrick's birthday. Something new

After going winless for seven games this year, the eighth proved to e something new for Chelsea--a big victory over Calera. Something else new for Chelsea is Keith McCullers (28) running the veer attack for the Hornets. (Photo by Richard Crosby)

When the mud stopped sloshing last Friday night at Bessemer Academy, Shelby Academy's football Raiders had nipped their host by a score of 3-2. Despite the heavy rains and lightning which cut short some area football action Friday, this game lasted the full four innings-er, quarters.

"It was exciting from a spectator's point of view," commented Shelby coach Harry Rawlinson, "But from the sidelines it was just too close. I was surprised we played as well as we did in the rain. It was a total team effort."

The narrow win carried an exa touch of sweetness in that the Raiders had been shut by Bessemer for the past three years in a row. The win ups Shelby's

The Raiders moved the ball well in the first quarter, driving to the two on their first possession. But a field goal attempt from the 12 was blocked.

Early in the second quarter, however, SA mounted another long drive. Although they couldn't punch it in against the tough Bessemer crowd, James Knowles kicked a field goal from the 24. As things turned out, those were all the points Shelby Boone and Greg Watts. Also, Randy Anderson gained 46 yards for the Warriors.

To beat the Aggies, who entered the game leading the area race, Thompson had to overcome a 14-7 halftime deficit.

The Warriors scored on their first possession after Sylacauga punted to the eight. Charlie Griffin picked up 20 yards on a busted play and completed passes of 22 and seven yards to Rod McDade and Joe Glass. Johnson scored from the 10 and John Durrett booted the PAT.

But Sylacauga retaliated with a 94-yard kickoff return for a touchdown. The PAT tied the score with a minute left in the Late in the second quarter Sylacauga drove to the 10 and attempted a field goal, but Warrior Jeff Bentley blocked it.

A Thompson fumble onm the next play, however, gave the Aggies the ball on the 22, and a touchdown three plays later. The PAT gave them a 14-7 lead.

The halftime downpour may have run most of the fans home, but neither the rain nor the score dampened Thompson's comeback spirit.

On the fifth play following the kickoff, Johnson did what he does so well, breaking lose off tackle for a 43-yard touchdown run. He added two more with the conversion run and the Warriors were back on top to stay.

Later that quarter Buddy Cofer caused an Aggie fumble and Thompson took over on its own 35. Johnson reeled off several good runs and Glass caught an 11 yard pass from Griffin to set up the score. Johnson got the touchdown on a three yard crash. The PAT missed.

Defense, led by Warriors David Hall, Rick Long and Billy Lawley, contained the score for the 21-14 final.

"I was real proud of our team," commented Thompson coach Larry Simmons. "They got back in there and had a good time of it. Maybe it helped us a lot.

"It was a big win. It put us back in the race (for the playoffs)," Simmons added. "We just have to worry about ourselves and keep winning. If we get put out, we have ourselves to blame."

Thompson travels to B.B. Comer this week for a game they must win to stay in contention for a playoff slot. The following week they'll face Pell City for another must game.

The playoff question is complicated by the fact that Thompson has beaten Sylacauga, Sylacauga has beaten Childersburg and Childersburg has beaten Thompson.

A win by Pelham, who plays Sylacauga Friday, or a win by B.B. Comer, who plays them Friday week, would automatically put Childersburg in the playoffs. Should Shelby County upset Childersburg this Friday and Thompson continue winning, then the Warriors get the playoffs.

If the Warriors, Aggies and Tigers all continue to win, the playoff position will go to the team whose beaten opponents total the most wins over 3-A schools.

If worst come to worst, a coin flip decides the winner.

The Pelham Panthers had punched out a 13-6 lead against B.B. Comer Friday in Sylacauga when, with four minutes left to play, an electrical storm knocked out the stadium lights. When play was resumed 45 minutes later, Comer charged back with 16 unanswered points to win it 22-13.

Pelham sputtered through the earlier part of the game with five penetrations into Comer territory, only to foil themselves with three fumbles and two interceptions.

Finally, midway through the second quarter, the Panthers took a punt near midfield and three plays later Matt Mace broke

In the third quarter, from his own 42, Bolton broke an 18-yard run. On the next play quarterback Steve Rye passed to Tracey Swinney over the middle in the end zone for a 40-yard touchdown. A bad snap killed the PAT attempt.

Again in the third quarter, behind the running of Mace and Bolton, Pelham drove to a first down at the Comer 15. But after a holding penalty, a sack and a bad punt snap, the Tigers had the

CVA storms over stars 27-0

When the weatherman mentioned storms last Friday night, nothing was said about the Rebels from Coosa Valley Academy.

CVA stormed over the Stars from Minor Academy by a score of 27-0. The weatherman cut short the Rebels' fun with a storm of his own late in the third quarter.

CVA head coach Mark Green had been a little worried about his team getting up for Minor, who's going through the rebuilding process. But, said he, "Once we realized we had a job to do, we went out and did it. We did what it took."

The Rebels started their second possession at the Stars' 40 and set up their touchdown with a 20-yard pass play from Mike Norred to Jim Haney. Mike Wheeler scored from the four and Ty Williams kicked the PAT.

Moving into the second quarter, Eric Davis set up another touchdown with a 25-yard run. Wheeler capped the 70-yard drive when he ran for the score from the two. Williams proved true on the PAT.

Coosa Valley, driving from midfield, scored their next touchdown when Haney turned a dive play into a 30-yard TD run. Again, Williams kicked the PAT.

In the meanwhile, led by Annesley DeGaris, Coosa Valley's defense had all but completely stalled Minor's attempt at attacking. In the secondary Norred picked off two interceptions and Wheeler nabbed one. The Rebs went into halftime with a 21-0 lead.

On the Rebels' first offensive play of the third quarter, Norred scrambled under pressure and dumped the ball to Phillip Ward in the flats. Ward carried it 55 yards to score. The PAT missed, making the score 27-0.

The Rebel reserves had driven and punted out of bounds at the five when the weatherman's storm hit Harpersville. Seven seconds were left in the quarter.

The officals called the game about 45 minutes later and CVA notched up their record to 6-2, with no conference losses.

This week Coosa hosts Bessemer Academy for homecoming, and it could be some game. Last year at homecoming, the Rebs beat Ft. Dale in a wild 33-32 game. Bessemer, 5-3, and fresh off a 3-2 loss to Shelby Academy, will probably not come to Harpersville in a pleasent frame of mind.

As Green puts it, look out for another "wild and wooly" homecoming.

Gene Duffy, who underwent surgery Sunday for a knee injury from the first play of the Minor game, will be out for the remainder of the season. Troy Beavers and Alan Cassady may also still be on the injured list this Friday.

Vincent trounces SCHS at homecoming

In the four years Harold Garrett played football for Vincent, the Yellow Jackets never beat arch-rival Shelby County.

But Friday night, with Garrett now as Vincent's head coach, the Jackets trounced all over SCHS to claim a 41-0 homecoming win. The game was called at 8:41 in the fourth quarter due to torrential rains and lightning.

The win makes Garrett's seniors the first football team to graduate from Vincent without ever losing a varsity game to the Wildcats.

"I don't think we had anyone who didn't play well," said Garrett. "I felt confident mat we'd win, but I didn't think we'd have that much offense."

Vincent played without the talents of James Oden, who was sidelined with an injury from the Pelham game.

Garrett said his team's pride and been hurt in their loss to Pelham the week before. As a result, he noted, the Yellow Jackets turned in an excellent week of practice to help ensure a win against Shelby County.

And win they did.

The fireworks on the scoreboard started on the first play from scrimmage when Dwight Spradley exploded for 41-yard touchdown following a good kickoff return by Sidney Yowe. Rodney Driggers, playing quarterback for Odem, kicked the PAT.

Again the determined Wildcats . out. started driving, but a wild pitch out threw them for a 12-yard loss and they had punted to Vincent at the 44.

On the next play Driggers got loose and rambled for a 66-yard touchdown. Yowe crashed over for the two-point conversion and with :35 left in the quarter, it was 21-0.

An interception by Maurice Kelley and a 24-yard run by Spradley, put the expectant Jackets in good scoring position in the second quarter. But led by Larry Millender and Eddie Walker, the Wildcat defense got nasty and held Vincent on fourth down from the two.

SCHS punted seven plays later and from the Wildcat 35 Vincent started driving behind the running of Driggers, Yowe and Spradley. Driggers scored from the one and kicked the PAT to give Vincent a 28-0 halftime lead.

Shelby County was driving in the third quarter when they stalled after a nine-yard sack.

Hiker celebrates autumn in the woods

by David Moore

Most of the oaks on the slope across the gap had turned golden and the evergreens had taken on a slight, yellowish tint. A few scattered red buds and clumps of dogwoods splattered the goldengreen hillside with the flaming colors of October.

One brilliant tree stood out from the rest, as conspicuous as a torch in cave. I think now it was a sourwood tree, but whatever it's called, I know there's no name for its color. There are no words or names that bright.

The tree stood about a quarter of a mile away as a hawk would fly. Even from the distance, it radiated like some kind of celluloid sun setting into the hillside. All of autumn could have been rolled into that one tree. I couldn't believe how brilliant it was and wondered if maybe it was plugged in somewhere.

Fall, to me, is perhaps the most beautiful of all seasons. I'd been watching for the big change for several weeks, when it occurred to me that fall was quietly happening without any formal announcement. Feeling the need to get away, I put on my hiking boots last Thursday and went to the woods.

I headed for Oak Mountain State Park and the Bicentennial Scout Trails. The three trails, marked red, white and blue, start at a common head near the end of the main park road.

They quickly divide, wind their separate ways up

Shackleford Gap, then run southwesterly, pretty much parallel to each other, along the twin ridges of Double Oak Mountain. Each trail is about six or seven miles long and they all come together again, more or less, at Peavine Falls.

Parking my car, I struck out into the woods on the white trail. For about a mile I skirted the base of Double Oak Mountain, then climbed sharply up the ridge which forms the southern slope of Shackleford Gap.

My shirt and cap band were soaked with sweat by the time I climbed the 500 feet to the lower crest of the ridge. I rested on the rock ledge overlooking the gap and the breeze hit me from out of the north. The wind carried the threat of rain and the promise of winter. It rattled the leaves and chilled my sweating body as I

That's when I spotted the iridescent tree glowing in its unknown color across the way.

I felt drawn to the tree in much the same way I had felt drawn to the woods that day. But the gap separated us. Flying was out of the question and I didn't want to climb down the slope and hike back up the other side. So much for the tree, I thought reluctant-

I continued my hike, making my way southeast along the lower crest. The trail passed through several bright stands of changing dogwood and I soon forgot about the other tree.

The trail started climbing again and in a half mile I reached Shackleford Point, elevation nearly 1300 feet. Once upon a time a fire tower stood on the point. Now, all that remained were several crumpled sheets of rusting metal from the tower cabin, scattered about the ground with the fallen, brown leaves.

The grey threat of rain, I noticed, was clearing from the sky and I hiked on, following the path down an easy grade.

Picking up a handful of red dogwood leaves, I crushed them in my hand and smelled their subtle sweetness. I crushed some brown leaves in with a handful of fresh dirt made from last year's leaves. The smell was clean and richly earthen.

I veered from the white trail at the intersection of a connecting trail and followed it nearly a mile. It crossed the red trail in the middle of the mountain's twin ridges and deadended at the blue trail on the eastern crest.

From this vantage point I gazed down on Simmsville Road and in the direction of Columbiana. I could see the bright aqua of a swimming pool in someone's back yard and I could hear a train chugging through the valley toward Chelsea. The sky had now cleared and overhead I heard the drone of a small plane. Dropping back into the woods, I left the crest and followed the blue path north, away from Peavine Falls. The underbrush thinned and the woods felt open and spacious. Sunlight filtered through the leaves. At one place, under a tall canopy of red dogwoods, I laid down on my back in a soft, crunchy bed of leaves. I stayed for a while, just enjoying autumn.

A single, red leaf blew from its twig overhead and fluttered towards me, gyrating round and round as it fell. It landed softly beside me, mingling with the multitude of other leaves. It was fullfilling its part.

Finally I rose and continued my hike.

It occurred to me that the trail was circling around the far side of Shackleford Gap and into the area where I'd spotted the tree earlier. As I walked I kept watch for bright leaves glowing through the woods. I thought I just might get to see the tree up close. But after a while I saw across the gap, and knew I had passed where the tree should have

For a minute or so I was disappointed. But, by the time I completed my six-mile circle and returned to my car, missing that one tree didn't seem to matter so

I felt good from the hike and I felt good from being out in the woods. And fall felt good to me even if I never reached that one great tree.

I climbed in my car and headed for the highway.

On the job. In order to represent our District's interests, our Congressman has to be there when the vote is called. Richard Shelby has been there for 98% of all the votes. That's one of the highest voting records in the whole U. S. Congress.

In the past two years, Richard Shelby has held over 100 town meetings throughout the Seventh District, listening to our views and opinions. Then, taking our views back to Congress.

Let's keep a strong Congressional voice for the Seventh District. Let's re-elect Richard Shelby.

Alabama Power dams provide electricity and a lot more.

Hydroelectric generating plants on the Tallapoosa, Coosa and Warrior Rivers are essential for controlling floods and providing recreational areas along those rivers. But the main purpose is to generate the maximum electricity possible from the company's hydroelectric plants. And, hydroelectric power is still the cheapest form of energy.

Checking machine

Republicans turn out; win commission seat in Shelby County Tuesday, making it by far the heaviest vote in the history of the county.

When they came out of the voting booths, and their votes were tallied, it was found they had cast more of their votes for Republicans than for Democrats.

Republican Ronald Reagan was Shelby County's choice for President of the U.S., and Jeremiah Denton defeated Democrat Jim Folsom, Jr. for the U.S. Senate. Denton polled more votes even than Reagan in Shelby County.

But in the race for Congress in the 7th district, Democrat Richard held his seat against the challenge of Republican Jim Billy Hill was re-elected district attorney of the 18th judicial district over Republican Ray Ledbetter. His margin was about 3,500 votes in all three counties, but in Shelby County he won by fewer than 1,000 votes.

Unofficial results in the county board of education race between Doug Kent and Claude Lee were too close to call.

On the Shelby County Commission, the contest between

Over 20,000 voters turned out Democrat James E. "Jake" Morris and C. E. "Codger" Etress went down to the wire. At the end of a long evening's counting, Morris held a thin margin of 720 votes with the absentee ballots still uncounted. An estimated 486 absentee votes were cast, but counting was not completed at 11:30 p.m.

> Democratic county commissioner J. E. "Ned" Bearden, a veteran of many years service in local offices, was defeated by about 1,000 votes by Republican Don Murphy, not counting the absentees.

Murphy will become the first Republican on the county commission since two Republicans were elected in the 'Goldwater sweep' of 1964.

In the contest for constable in Beat 17, Republican Larry Martin defeated Doug Bunn.

Republican votes were heaviest in Shelby County in the Cahaba Valley and the northwest section.

The counting of the votes was a slow process in the courtroom, as Sheriff Buddy Glassgow read aloud the returns from each voting machine in the county. A battery of workers from the probate office and from the two major political parties assisted with the counting. Returns started coming in about 7:45 and continued until about II:15.

Four trustees re-elected to fire district

Residents of the North Shelby County Fire District apparently voted Tuesday to reinstate their four trustees seeking reelection.

A reported malfunction in one box at the Bryan Memorial poll location made a complete tally unavailable at press time. The unofficial results posted below are based on two of the three Bryan Memorial boxes plus the boxes at the crowded Inverness and Cumberland Presbyterian

The race for place five on the board was won by W.M. "Butch" Roberson, who defeated R.H. Steele. Roberson, who lives in Inverness, had the backing of the present board members and defeated Steele 1481-461.

Jack van Pelt, was unopposed for place one.

Incumbent Larry S. Dillard of Indian Valley defeated William L. Caldwell for place 2 by a count of 1403-611.

In the race for place 3, John Carey Pruett, of Homestead, defeated challenger Kathryn G. Street 1405-543.

Voters started lining up at Martha S. Geyer, who lives on heaviest turnout ever

New Hope Mountain, defeated James Edward Bishop by a tally of 1425-619.

Van Pelt, who led the campaign for the reinstatement of the three incumbents and Roberson, told the Reporter election night, "To my mind, it (the election results) says the present fire district program is going to be continued. But it would have had to be continued anyway, under state law."

The charter which created the fire district can only be changed by the state legislature, van Pelt explained.

Alabaster sets $1 million budget police department in Alabaster will be spending more money than any other department in the city.

At Monday night's council meeting, the panel adopted a budget totaling $1,090,413. Up until now, they have been operating with last year's figures.

The largest source of income in the balanced budget comes from the sales tax. That figure is projected at $450,000.

With a projected expenditure of $159,037. the sewer department has the second highest budget, followed by the fire department, which lists a $150,000 figure. Administration costs are expected to be $142,329, and the street department has set its monetary need at $126,764.

The amount budgeted for the sanitation department is $90,000; utilities, $25,050.; park and recreation, $17,000.; public relations, $20,000.

Revenue to fund city departments will be derived from privilege licenses, $180,000.; sewer fees, $120,000.; fines and forfeitures, $110,000.; and ad valorem tax, $115,000.

Other projected income will come from ABC receipts, $35,413.; vehicle licenses,

With a budget of $360,000, the $34,000.; cigarette stamps, $17,000.; building permits, $20,000.; accident reports, maps etc., $6,500.; housing authority,

> Donations of $2,000 for each of the city's schools is included in this year's budget as well as a $1,500 contribution to the county Health Department.

> But the $4,000 needed from the city to put together brochures for promotional purposes, was once again tabled for further study.

> However, indications pointed to eventual approval being given by the city to carry out the venture which was initiated last year by the Alabaster Chamber of Commerce.

> The total cost of the project is estimated to be $8,500.

At last month's council meeting, the panel agreed to create an opening in the police department, and Roy Smitherman has been hired by the personnel board to fill that position.

Monday, at the recommendation of Councilman Roger Wheeler, the council voted to add another slot in the fire depart-

In a report read by Wheeler, the number of calls answered by the fire department last month totaled 67 with three assists.

The Fire and Police Commissioner also reported that the police department had responded to 816 calls and given 485 assists during the month of October.

In order to get a handle on how much the city is spending to supply services to people living outside the city limits, Mayor H.A. Rubin appointed a committee to conduct a cost analysis survey.

Roger Wheeler will chair the committee composed of L.O. Farris and Jack Reagin.

Two other appointments were also made. The council voted to return Freddie Tezak to her seat on the personnel board for another three year term, and to appoint Cal McCune to a place on the Birmingham Regional Planning Commission.

A minor footnote to the election was the fact that it was legal to purchase distilled spirits on election day in Alabama for the first time in more than 65 years.

In Beat 12 at the Quality Furniture polling place, voters started lining up before 7 a.m. They rapidly voted in three voting machines in such numbers that the lines continued throughout the day. Many of the voters at this place held a Bible as they went into the voting booths.

Columbiana's polling places also kept up a rapid fire pace as voters came in record numbers.

Blacks went to the polls in large numbers, compared with their relatively light voting in the party primaries.

People of all ages seemed to be voting, with a strong turnout among the senior citizens.

Helena takes on playground project

Helena's citizens will get together to build a playground on November 22.

Under a plan advanced by Joe Coggins and school principal Billy Wayne Bramblett the city council Monday night proclaimed November 22 as "Helena Elementary School Day".

Coggins described the playground as smimilar to the one built at Hill Elementary School in Columbiana, with tires, crossties, and hundreds of man hours of donated labor.

The playground will be on the school grounds, and will cost only some $2,000 to $3,000. Coggins told the council, as opposed to $30,000 if other types of equipment were purchased.

He passed around a sheet for everyone to sign up to start working on the playground at 7 a.m. that day and continue until the work is finished.

In other action: the council heard that December 6 is set as the tentative date for the Christmas parade. Jane Holmes is chairman.

*Appointed E.C. Herring for another two year term as city judge, to be paid $100 per court night, for two nights a month.

*Heard a report that it might be January 1 before all postal equipment is removed from the old post office. The city wants to use the building as a library, renting at $90 per month.

*Heard a report that the city is asking Birmingham Trust National Bank for a guarantee of $27,000 to $28,000 to finish the streets in Plantation South subdivision, before being allowed to continue building homes there. The former developer went bankrupt and BTNB is left to complete the project.

Drinking drivers' class established for Pelham

City Judge Bob Esdale, who handls an average of 20 DUI (driving under the influence) cases per month in Pelham, was one of the voices in support for the school which has already been adopted by several other local municipalities.

Also speaking in favor of the classes were Les Sachs, director of the Jefferson-Shelby-Blount-St. Clair Alcohol Council, and Bob Simpson, state coordinator of referral programs for the administrative office of courts, which heads the school.

Although classes are already held for drivers arrested while intoxicated, the three men explained that the new school aims more at the problem drinker or true alcoholic. It counsels him or her toward receiving help from mental health programs or hospitals.

The school will cost the city

$3,000 per year. The council also appointed Polly Craft to the library board and reappointed C.E. Parker to another term on the park and recreation board.

The council accepted a petition of annexation from Ken Peeler, whose 50 acres of property adjoins Hunters Glen, near highway 35 east of the city.

Most poll problems solved Tuesday

Nearly all the problems that arose at the polls Tuesday were worked out satisfactorily, according to Clara Smith. Mrs. Smith is the chief clerk in the Shelby County probate office, and took charge of straightening out such problems. She told the Reporter late Tuesday afternoon that a few calls came in from people who had moved, and could not find their names on the voting list at their

Other problems came from voters who had not voted in a long time. She said that "practically everybody" was located on the list in time to vote. The turnout was so much heavier than expected that a second voting machine was dispatched there in mid-afternoon.

Responsiblity for placing the county's voting machines was in the hands of Alfred Jones.

D.L. Spates, member of the county board of registrars, said he received 50 or more calls from new voters during the day Tuesday. Most of them said they did not know where they were supposed to vote. Bar suspends Pelham attorney

The disciplinary board of the Alabama State Bar has found that Shelby County attorney William E. Swatek violated the rules of disciplinary enforcement of the State Bar. The finding came at a meeting of the board in Columbiana on October 24.

Swatek's punishment was set at 60 days suspension from the practice of law. He has 42 days to appeal his suspension to the Alabama Supreme Court.

Swatek was found guilty of having hidden an operating tape recorder in his office while the office was being used for private conferences, at his invitation. The incident reportedly ocurred during discussions when Birmingham attorney Paul G. Smith, Calera attorney Eason Mitchell and Columbiana attorney Conrad Fowler, Jr., were representing various defendants in the case of "Johnny Bailey vs. the City of Pelham, et al," and Swatek was representing Bailey.

Swatek was taking the de positions of various employees of the city of Pelham on May 30, 1979, and the three defense attorneys were at his office in connection with those depositions. It was during a private conference with a witness that one of the defense attorneys discovered the operating tape recorder in Swatek's office.

The State Bar is referring the matter to the district attorneys of Jefferson and Shelby Counties for possible grand jury consideration. Swatek and Bailey gave sworn statements in both counties to the effect that Bailey had hidden the operating tape recorder entirely on his own initiative and without Swatek's participation.

Siluria light question was not taken lightly

It happened exactly as Alabaster Mayor H.A. "Doc Rubin had predicted it would.

Siluria residents were upset when they thought the traffic light on Hwy. 119 and 11th Ave SW might be removed.

And a number of them showed up at Monday night's council meeting to voice their annoyance.

However, Councilman Jack Reagin, who had broached the subject at the previous meeting, explained the situation.

He said he had not intended for the lights at that location to be moved, only the controls, which aren't necessary on that street which doesn't have a heavy traffic flow.

Reagin had pointed out the need for a stop light to control traffic at the elementary school at the panel's October 21 meeting.

But when the light in Siluria was mentioned, the mayor advised Reagin not to make any plans without getting the feeling of residents.

And it was clear Monday, that the people who live in that area want their light left where it is.

One man noted that motorists would have difficulty getting onto Highway 119 without a light. A longtime resident remembered that there had been a light at the school during the 1950's which operated only while school was in session.

She suggested that something like that could be rigged up again without interfering with the Siluria light.

Reagin said he was talking to an engineer from the state in order to seek a solution to the problem. "We're looking at other lights in town too," he add-

Just before the mayor rapped his gavel to adjourn the meeting, Reagin came up with another suggestion which brought a mixed reaction from the council and audience.

In his opinion, Reagin said, the city code should make it mandatory for developers to put sidewalks in areas where homes were being constructed.

Councilman Cal McCune agreed with him, saying that if anyone wanted to walk, they had to do it in the street, which is un-

But the mayor went along with developer Reid Long who was in the audience. Long pointed out the cost of putting in sidewalks would drive developers away from the area.

"We're trying to grow," Rubin remarked, "so let's not do anything now to inhibit that."

A matter concerning one of the earliest sub-divisions in the city was what had brought Long to the meeting.

Don Lathem, who owns a home in the Nickerson-Scott development on Hwy. 31, asked the city to vacate the alley on which the home is built.

The council voted unanimously to go along with the request and to take the alley off the subdivision map.

One arrest made

Columbiana answers three fires

Three fire calls answered by Columbiana firemen last week, came too late for the homes to be saved.

An arrest was made in connection with the first fire Wednesday evening.

Shelby County Sheriff's Department Chief Investigator Reed Smith reported that a juvenile was taken into custody after arson was discovered.

The dwelling located near the Shelbiana Animal Clinic on Hwy. 25 was in the process of being torn down.

It has been reported that the lumber in the structure was being donated to a Westover congregation who are building a church. The home belonged to the J.A.

Wheeler estate. A Friday morning fire leveled the small frame home occuppied by Johnny Patterson in Shelby. Columbiana Fire Chief Johnny Farr said that no one was at home when the blaze broke out and the sturcture was well involved when firefighters arrived.

However, the department was able to save two adjacent homes, Farr reported, one of which had started to smoulder.

A brick home on County Road 30 east of Colulmbiana was consumed by flames Sunday night. That owner, Billy Huff, was not at home either, and the fire was spotted by a neighbor who called it in.

When firemen arrived shortly after 8 p.m., the home was already beyond saving, but they stayed on the scene until nearly 1

Closed policy opens problems

Once again the board and management of Shelby Memorial Hospital have allowed a situation to get out of hand. By not clearing the air after the assistant administrator for nursing was fired, they allowed rumors, charges and counter-charges to run rampant through the county for nearly three weeks.

The image of the hospital as a place where one personnel upheaval follows another at two and three year intervals was reinforced by this gaffe.

four-man personnel committee did not see fit to tell even the rest of the hospital's board of directors why the popular Betty Sherer was fired until citizen pressure brought the matter to a head. This came on October 28 at the regular meeting of the board, a full 18 days after the firing. In those 18 days not only did the general public raise serious questions about what was happening at Shelby Memorial, but the general morale of the hospital

It took more than an hour behind locked doors to explain the firing to the hospital board. The board stood by their personnel committee, and went along with the decision not to divulge any information, but none of them looked happy when they emerged from the meeting.

Taking refuge in the excuse that their lawyer has advised them not to talk, board members have not resolved the public anx-

The administrator and the staff was allowed to drop to a low lety, but at least the public now knows that the entire board is aware of the situation.

> All of this reinforces the impression people have that the hospital is run by a 'ruling clique' of a few doctors and a few board members. If this is not a true impression, steps should be taken at once by the administration and board to bring about a more open policy in dealing with the general public, upon whom they depend for the success of the hospital.

Lack of money curbs school board action

Having the advantage of being on home ground didn't help the cause of third grade parents at Vincent Elementary School.

A spokesperson for the group addressed the county Board of Education at their Tuesday night meeting, held at Vincent High School.

However, her request for another third grade teacher was turned down.

Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles explained that because 39 fewer students were enrolled in that grade this year, a teacher had been moved to Helena where attendance was up.

He also noted that class size, which averages 33 pupils each, was better than at most schools in the county for that grade.

A school bus incident which involved the stabbing of a black Shelby County High School student, was recounted for the board by Knowles.

And after hearing the details of the attack, the board agreed that both students be suspended for varying lengths of time.

Cassandra Carter, who stabbed Jacqueline Porter with the weapon she reportedly pulled from her shoe, was suspended from school for the first semester.

The board also decreed that she would not be allowed to ride the bus for the remainder of the Porter was suspended from school for nine days and won't be allowed on the bus for the remainder of the semester.

Even though he mentioned three reasons for needing a band room at the middle school, Thompson Band Booster president Hershel Hale wasn't given much encouragement the room would be built any time soon.

Pointing out loss of class time, the cost of transporting band students to the high school and and the danger of crossing two sets of railroad tracks, Hale stressed the need for a bandroom at the middle school.

Knowles said that he understood and agreed with the band booster president. But when the finances will be available is another matter.

The state's check for October was for the full amount of $905,000, the superintendent reported, but he pointed out that proration was supposed to have gone into effect Nov. 1.

And he had learned from the finance officer at the State Department of Education, Knowles said, that the check expected near the end of November will be "very small."

The board's last monthly check from sales tax revenue was also down, the superintendent added. It came to $62,000, he reported, whereas some months it has been as high as $90,000.

Some good news came with the report of $60,000,000 worth of school bonds being sold. Now if the county can get the $1.3 that's been allocated, the construction of Inverness school will be one step closer to realiziation.

The board authorized the installation of gas maintenance service to the Inverness site at a cost of $31,627.

The procedure for updating and maintaing board policy was discussed and the format for a new policy manual will be presented at the November board

That session will be held at Thompson Middle School Nov. 25 beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Among the most serious traffic offenses are driving while under the influence of alcohol or controlled substances, homicide by vehicle, reckless driving and fleeing or attempting to elude a police officer. Because of the many changes in the law on driving while under the influence of alcohol or controlled substances, this portion of the Rules of the Road (Title 32 of the Code of Alabama) is discussed in another

The new Rules of the Road says that any person who unlawfully and unintentionally causes the death of another while violating a law regarding the operation of a motor vehicle is guilty of homicide. The person causing the death can be prosecuted under this act or under other laws contained in the Criminal Code (Title 13A of the Code of Alabama). The Homicide by Vehicle law is new for Alabama. Conviction can bring a find of $500 to $2000 or a jail term of up to five years or a combination of fine and imprisonment.

Reckless driving is a law which Alabama has had for a number of years. The new Rules of the Raod makes one change. Reckless driving and driving under the influence of alcohol or controlled substances are completely separate charges. Under either of the charges the court may order the suspension of the Driver's license for six months. The Director of Public Safety may suspend the driver's license under the Alabama Point System if a conviction for reckless driving brings the driver's accumulated points to 12 or more within a two-year period.

Another new portion of the Rules of the Road prohibits fleeing or attempting to elude a police officer. It says that a person who does not stop when signalled by a law enforcement officer is liable for a fine of $100 to $500 or a jail term of 30 days to six months or a combination of fine and jail sentence as well as a 90-day suspension of the driving privilege. The officer may signal the driver to stop by hand, voice, emergency light or siren.

The prohibiting of racing on the highway is also new to the Rules of the Road. It is unlawful to use the highway for any race, speed competition, contest, drag race, test of endurance, or exhibition of speed or acceleration. Racing on the highways can bring a fine, jail sentence or both and can result in the suspension of the driver's license for six months.

Puffing out of the past

But on two occasions in recent days, that facet of my personality has been mentioned. A telephone caller gave me some "hot" information and

I don't know why the subject of my "guts" has come up lately.

challenged me to follow up on it. "if you have the guts," he added. Getting the complete story, if it went the way he predicted, would have made a certain individual very unhappy. And no doubt, I would have been the target of some very unpleasant comments.

But gritting my teeth, I tried to get in touch with those in the "know." As fate would have it though, neither of the people with information could be found.

"Well, my informant will really think I'm chicken," I thought. Much to my surprise, I stumbled onto the story while tracking down some other information. And I heaved a sigh of relief when I learned the person that had supposedly been up to no good, was apparently an OK guy after all.

So maybe my "guts" are still intact on that one.

The next time the subject came up was at a football game. And I really swelled with pride as the person paid me what I considered to be a compliment.

I mean, isn't it something for a little old grandmother like me to be cited for bravery in the face of imminent destruction?

The remark on my "having guts," was made by a member of the team after I'd snapped a picture of a thundering herd of players heading toward me.

And for the umpteenth time, I'd successfuly managed to scamper out of the way.

I tell you, what really takes "guts," is telling someone there's no way you can come and take a picture which they insist MUST be in the paper.

And I usually have to summon up all the courage I can muster to explain to a reader that there just wasn't room in the paper for a story they thought was earthshaking.

Maybe the biggest test of courage though, is being able to stand up under the barrage of criticism that's leveled when a small mistake has been made in something you've written.

For some reason, what appears to be trifles, seems to be of monumental importance to those being written about.

I mean, what's the big deal about a group winning three ribbons or four?

Well, just leave out a ribbon, trophy or the name of a person who won something, and you'll find out.

I'm telling you, what takes "guts" is facing those folks instead of finding a nice, safe desk

Running social services requires planning

The proper administration of any multimillion dollar program requires a lot of careful planning, but the planning takes on greater importance when every dollar must count.

The Department of Pensions and Security recently completed a study of its social service programs, and Commissioner Gary Cooper thinks that the results will help the agency save money.

"Funds for social services are going to be even harder to come by in the future," Cooper pointed out, "so planning is essential if we are going to put the money where it is most needed." The new needs assessment study reveals, among other things, which of the agency's social services reach the most people and which services might be the most effective.

Similar studies have been conducted by the agency in the past, but none were as comprehensive. One third of all staff working in county Departments of Pensions and Security were contacted during this year's study.

"This was well over 1,000 people," said Cooper. "All of them know first-hand the needs of our clients, so they are good judges of the effectiveness of our programs." The study also made extensive use of statistics from outside the agency.

Protective services for children--helping abused and neglected children-are shown by the study to be the most effective of all social services administered by the Department of Pensions

Agency staff as a whole makes day care payments for an believe, however, that they could do a better job of protecting children if more staff were available and less paperwork were required. In fact, said Cooper, employees cite massive amounts of required paperwork as the greatest barrier in all the agency's programs.

"We are working on ways to cut down on paperwork," said Cooper. He added that many Department of Pensions and Security employees have to spend much of their time filling out

The study shows that the second most effective social service administered by the agency is day care for children. The Department of Pensions and Security average of more than 11,000 children each month.

Cooper said that day care is extremely effective in protecting children from abuse and neglect and also in giving mothers a chance to work and get off public assistance. Last year, the great majority of mothers who received Aid to Dependent Children needed day care for their children in order to work.

The study also indicates that some social services should be either expanded or combined in the future. Cooper said that Pensions and Security will make a greater effort to cooperate with other agencies so that Alabama will have as little duplication of services as possible.

Parents study reading kits at Thompson

A group of Thompson Middle School parents went to school one day last week to see how the Title I reading class was helping their children.

And before they left the two and a half hour session, they wound up doing an assignment.

After examining the reading kits used by youngsters in Mrs. Corene Rodgers' class, parents were asked to make some kits of their own.

That experience coupled with information on the curriculum being studied gave parents a clearer understanding of the program.

The workshop was held Oct. 28 in the school cafeteria. It was implemented through the Shelby County Reading Program under the supervision of county coordinator, Mrs. Rebecca Nail.

Rodgers and her aide, Mrs. Catherine Lilly spearheaded the workshop, and Title I Reading Resouce teacher, Mrs. Gayle Robbins and TMS principal Mary Roach were both in attendance.

Hospital board supports administrator

by Marcia M. Sears

The board of directors of Shelby Memorial Hospital has given a unanimous vote of confidence to administrator Roland Bradford.

The vote came in a closed door executive session held after a stormy October 28 meeting in which several citizens questioned the board as to why former director of nurses Betty Sherer had been fired.

At the meeting, it was brought out that only the personnel committee and the administrator knew the reasons for her dismissal, and that the other board members did not know those reasons.

The personnel committee is composed of board chairman Ben Grubbs, Earl Cunningham, Herman Moore and Russell Seay.

Hospital Board member C.E. "Bull" Carter of Alabaster asked to be informed, saying that many people were wondering if they would be the next to go.

At that point Earl Cunningham suggested making the entire hospital board a committee of the whole, so that all members would be informed.

The board then went into a closed session behind locked doors for about an hour and fifteen minutes. When they emerged, Grubbs said the entire board had backed the personnel committee's decision, and had given a vote of confidence to administrator Bradford. Grubbs would say no more, indicating that the board's lawyer, Frank Ellis, Jr. had advised that no comments be made, because of impending litigation. (Ed. Note: The Reporter went to press last week after the open meeting, but before the closed door session

In the open part of the meeting Gladys Harper of Alabaster presented a petition she said held names of 300 persons who wanted to know what was going on at the hospital. She emphasized that Mrs. Sherer had been a faithful worker at the hospital for 14 years, and the community thought she did a good job.

Evelyn Moates, a night supervisor for five years who had resigned for reasons unrelated to the Sherer matter, expressed concern for two aides who had worked on her shift and had resigned at about the same time.

Mrs. Moates said that all three of them had given two weeks' notice, but had been told to stop working as of that day. She claimed that this made the hospital short of staff and that patients could have suffered because of it.

Administrator Bradford denied that any patient care suf-

Mrs. Moates said that the aides were asked to scratch through the date on their resignations and make them effective on that day's date. Personnel Director Jay Stuman later told the Shelby County Reporter that this matter was disputed by others who had witnesses. He said the aides' records would show they resigned without notice.

Board chairman Ben Grubbs told the Reporter that he thought if someone resigned, the employer should accept it as effective at once. If the person gave two weeks notice, he or she should be paid for that period, even if not asked to work out the notice, he said.

When reached by telephone Betty Sherer told the reporter that she has talked with an attorney, but no lawsuit has been

Bus incident investigated

A fainting incident aboard a Calera High School band bus created a mild panic last Friday night. Reports were broadcast on television that a school bus was involved in an accident between Calera and Columbiana. This turned out not to be true, but the report upset hundreds of citizens who were aware of two earlier school bus accidents in Shelby County this year.

According to Ellie Glasscox, assistant transportation supervisor for the county schools, the story involved Cynthia Harris, a 10th grade band member who apparently became over excited, began hyperventilating, and fainted. She was on the second of two Calera High School buses returning from the football game in Vincent.

The bus driver, George Roy, Jr., stopped the bus and numerous parents traveling in autos stopped to help. In the excitement, two ambulances were called and several police cars came to the scene. She was taken to Shelby Memorial Hospital, but Glasscox said by the time she arrived there, she was feeling better, and did not feel it was necessary to go into the

However, she was examined at the hospital and released.

Glasscox was in Calera Tuesday morning talking with several people involved, and conducting a general investigation. Glasscox told the Reporter many factors had apparently contributed to getting the 10th grader excited.

Some of the students on the bus had claimed that Roy had been driving recklessly. So Calera Police Chief Harry Deal ordered officer C.P. Martin to drive the vehicle the remainder of the way to the school.

Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles said that the investigation, in which School principal William Smith and Calera police are involved, has so far produced no evidence of any wrongdoing on Roy's part.

"There was strong evidence, however," the superintendent remarked, "that student behavior on the bus wasn't satisfactory."

He described the reporting of the incident on a Birmingham TV station as "irresponsible" and said he was trying to find the source of that report.

Terming it "the largest single private contribution to the Brierfield Ironworks Park revitalization," Park Director Marty Everse, left, accepts a check for $12,000 from Kimberly-Clark executive vice president Marvin F. Gade.

Kimberly-Clark's gift is largest to ironworks park

Kimberly-Clark Corporation has joined a number of other businesses and organizations supporting the Brieffield Ironworks Park located southwest of Montevallo. Corporate Executive Vice President M.F. Gade recently presented a check from the Kimberly-Clark Foundation to Martin Everse, Park Director, for $12,000.

"This is the largest private cash donation we've received," said Everse, "Most of our outside support so far has come from lumber, timber, and coal mining interests in Alabama. A partnership with business interets to develop our State's historical, cultural, and environmental assets is highly desirable."

The program to recognize and preserve the historical values of the site of the Brierfield furnace began in the mid-seventies. Presently, the park is operated primarily as a county park by the Bibb County Heritage Association, Inc. The park site is leased from Kimberly-Clark.

Each passing year sees substantial improvements to the Brierfield Ironworks Park complex which began with a tract of virtual wilderness.

The outdoor theatre site has been completely rebuilt with seating for up to 500. Lighting and sound improvements have been made each year and are underway again this off-season,

While the "Brighthope" pageant is a highlight of the park's summer array of attractions, other features include the development of campsites and picnic areas. A total of 35 spaces are now wired for camper convenience. A museum is expected to be completed by next season that will display artifacts and antiques gathered locally that are related to Brierfield. A circa 1880 log cabin has been disassembled and will be moved to form the entrance to the outdoor theatre. It will also contain concesssion and souvenir counters.

Many improvements to the park grounds are in this year's program, including some two miles of underground wiring for the safety and convenience of park visitors.

Says Park Director Marty Everse, "I love my work. I was a history major in college. I never dreamed I would be associated with history in this way. Our concept is a living park--not a preserve--but a place where families can come for various reasons and truly relive and enjoy their historical heritage. We've got a wonderful thing here in Brieffield Ironworks Park--for Alabamians and for visitors to our state."

The I as Vegas vacations "promise much more than they deliver, and are being sold by mail throughout this area," Postal Inspector B.G. Martin

He said at least 12 separate companies making these offers are investigation by the Postal Inspection Service.

He said the companies ask for a service charge of from $25 to $50, and those who take bait not only have to pay additional fees, but their service charge is not refunded as promised.

In the Florida case, Alabama Attorney General Charles Graddick cautions Alabamians who receive postal cards from a company known as National Travel, Inc. in Sparta, 1enn. He says the Office of Consumer Protection has received complaints, that the card leads recipients to believe they have won something, when in reality, they must pay a fee of $49.50 to receive a vacation to Florida. They must also pay for the long distance call. When they get to Florida, they find the parpose of the trip is to hear a pitch to buy real estate.

VA office wants reports

Jim Mayhew, State Department of Veterans Affairs Service Officer for Shelby County issues a reminder. All living veterans, widows, children and parents who receive non-service connected disability pension payments from the Veterans Administration need to make their annual income report.

Mayhew says that all beneficiaries receiving such payments, except certain children and persons 72 years of age or older, should receive VA income questionnaires on or about November 1, 1980. The questionnaires should be completed and returned not later than January 1, 1981. Failure to do so will automatically suspend all payments.

Generally, claimants age 72 or older who have been receiving VA benefits for the last two years, and children under the age of 23 receiving pensions under laws in effect prior to December 31, 1978, are not being sent the questionnaire. This does not mean, however, that they are exempt from the income limits prescribed by law. They must still report any changes in the number or status of their dependents and any increase in their annual income which causes it to exceed their income limit.

However, they need not report general rate increases in Social Security because they are automatically recorded. All other changes in 1980 should be reported.

Those needing assistance in completing these forms, or assistance with other matters relating to veterans' benefits are invited to contact Mayhew. His office is located in Comm. Facilities Building, Room 119, Columbiana. Telephone, 669-6246.

supposed to work for the best interest of the people," remarked an Alabaster resident who was present in the crowded council chamber Monday night.

"But I don't see that granting a liquor license to this lounge is in my best interest." Steve Speer went on to say.

The subject of granting the license to the Village Pub came up as the meeting was about to close.

Rev. Wayne Crumpton, minister of the Baptist church, said he had thought the matter was on the agenda for that evening.

Explaining the situation, Mayor H.A."Doc" Rubin reported that a license had already been granted by the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

The owners, Don Townsend and Joseph Miller had applied for the on-premises liquor license during the change of administration, Rubin said. And he reported that he, and three members of his council who were already serving, had signed a letter of recommendation because speed had been of the essence.

Crumpton and Speer both objected because citizens had had no input in the decision.

And a woman, speaking in a quavering voice, reminded the mayor of a conversation with him before he was elected.

"I told you one of the things I cared most about was that Alabaster be a good place where chidren could grow up without "outside forces," she said.

Commenting that he was a teetotaler himself, Rubin declared, "It's legal in this coun-

City clerk Dot Henry mentioned that two other establishments in the city, Meadowlark Farm and the Triple J, both had the same license. "And we've never had any problems," she said.

"I think this will be a high class operation" Rubin remarked. "After they open, if we feel it isn't conducive to the best interest of the city, the mayor added, "we'll ask them to leave."

But it was the minister's contention, that once the state issues a liquor license, "it's almost impossible to get it rescinded."

Questioned about the need for such an establishment, which is located in the new Alabaster Plaza, Rubin replied that young couples in the city needed a place to entertain guests.

He noted that Jefferson County was getting their business at the present time.

The lounge owners were both present at the meeting, but no questions were directed their

Oden-Driggers click for 7-0 win over Calera

Vincent grabs area title

The man

Vincent quarterback James Oden had one man in mind as he dropped back to pass on fourth and goal from the 26. That man was Rodney Driggers, who got behind Calera's Kirk Ross (64) and snagged Oden's on target aerial to lead Vincent to a 7-0 win and capture the Area 7 Championship. (Photos by David Moore)

Containment

Calera's Eric Lacey (foreground), his eyes glued on explosive Sindney Yowe (41) plays off a block by Scot Wren (89) and another Yellow Jacket.

With help from John Killingsworth (55), closing on the left, Lacey stopped Yowe for minus two

For all practical purposes, every last cookie in the world hung on the line for both teams. Vincent was fourth and goal from Calera's 26.

Coach Harold Garrett and staff went with the natural combination: Oden-Driggers. They always seemed to click right when needed. And Vincent needed them now. Badly.

James Oden took the snap and dropped back to pass. Rodney Driggers fired off the line, beating his man in the race for the goal. In the end zone Driggers cut hard for the sideline.

The combination clicked true. Oden hit his target, Driggers locked onto the ball, and Vincent's bench and hometown fans exploded as the referee signaled the touchdown.

Driggers kicked the extra point and Vincent held on to beat a good football team 7-0.

The Yellow Jackets won more than just their eighth victory in nine outings. They won the Area 7 Championship and a shot at their first postseason game since 1971. But most importantly, the win keeps alive Vincent's drive for bigger and better things.

Going into the Halloween night game tied for first place in the area, both played tough, contender football. Calera wanted it all, too, and the Yellow Jackets had to earn their honors.

Rallying in the gymnasium just before kickoff, Garrett told his team, "It's the ball game of our life tonight." Emphasis was on the word "our."

"This is our football game," he told the huddle of players. "It belongs to us. We're a team and we're staying together out there,

They answered gruffly, affirmatively. And that's how they played the game.

The momentum passed back and forth, with the Yellow Jackets dominating the offense in the first and fourth quarters, picking up four and five of their first downs, respectively. The Eagles controlled the ball during the second and third quarters when they rang up 10 of their dozen first downs, incorporating their new wishbone attack...

After Vincent lost an early fumble, Jacket Travis Thomas intercepted a halfback pass at his own 30. Hard running by Sidney Yowe and Maurice Kelley moved Vincent to Calera's 16 in nine plays. But Eagles Mike Roberson, John Killingsworth and others forced · Vincent back. Then, on the first play of the second quarter, Driggers missed a 34-yard field goal attempt.

Rushing yardage by Edward Wilson and Richard Russell then thrust Calera across Vincent's 40. But defense by Dwight Spradley, by almost always everywhere Maurice Kelley, and by a swarm of other angry Yellow Jackets pushed the Eagles back to punt with fourth and 25.

After a punt, Calera pushed from its 24 to the Jacket 36 in nine plays. But Vincent stopped them when Tim Smith jumped on a fumble.

Punting four plays later, Driggers saved disaster with a onehanded snag of high snap from center. The punt sailed 51 yards, and Calera ran out the clock.

For Vincent, Kelley, Scot Wren, Bobby Howard, Johnny Wallace and David Isbell played tough, third quarter defense. But the Eagles, calling on power running from Russell, Wilson and Tim Loftin, picked up a lot of momentum as they drove from the seven to first and goal at the Vincent dug in and backed them one yard on first down. Then the bottom fell out for Calera. David Peterson recovered a wild pitch for Vincent at the 15. Calera forced the punt, but had lost valuable momentum.

At the top of the fourth period, Vincent forced a bad Calera pass and Kelley made a good interception at the 40.

Oden, out with an injury since Pelham, had returned as quarterback, leaving reserve QB Driggers free as a reciever. Back to strength, and fired by the interception, Vincent started to Spradley bowled out 15 yards in four runs and Yowe picked up 14 in two carries. Driggers caught passes for five and 14 yards, giving Vincent first and goal from

Then Russell slammed Yowe for -2 and Steve Bearden dropped Spradley at the line. Russell and Kirk Ross stopped Yowe again, and a penalty backed Vincent into third and 26. Oden passed in-left in the game, Vincent football history was written.

Jerry Dates, Peterson and the other Jackets insured that upstart minded Calera remained scoreless the rest of the game.

The loss dropped the Eagles to 5-4 on a season that has seen its share of both good and bad luck. They close out their year at home this week against a tough Briarwood team, scheduled for post season play in its conference.

"I'm tremendously proud of you boys," Calera coach Danny Alverson told his squad afterwards. "You played Calera defense. You played your hearts outs. The important thing now is to go for our sixth win."

Walking off the field Alverson commented, "Driggers beat us." Said Garrett, "I think we deserve it. Now we want to go 9-1. We want the whole thing." It was his first admission that Vincent was shooting for the state and the upstart minded Big Gold rang up points Friday night on the Legion Stadium scoreboard like Larry Simmons might light up an Alabaster pinball machine with a hot ball on double bonus. Had any more points been scored both teams could have won free

That's 82 points. Add it up. The area contending Warriors

As Simmons said after the scoreboard had cooled, "It was a wide open, scoring football game. Not much defense--we couldn't stop them and they couldn't stop us."

Together the two pinball offenses racked up a dozen touchdowns. Comer reeled off 349 yards offense and Thompson, led by Arthur Johnson's 248 yards rushing, amassed 450 yards offense.

But Johnson wasn't the only pinball wizard that night. OB Charlie Griffin passed four times for four touchdowns and 151 yards. Joe Glass nabbed three of the scoring passes and Rod McDade practiced a little wizardry on the end zone aerial he caught.

On the third play of the game Griffin hit Glass for a 68-yard touchdown pass play. Later, Thompson rolled for a 16 play scoring drive, with McDade making a turn-around catch in the end zone on a 16 yard pass.

In the meantime, Comer rang up enough first half bells to put two touchdowns on the board and take a 14-12 lead due to Thompson's missed extra point conversions.

But the Warriors struck again with 30 seconds in the half when Griffin hit Glass, this time for a 26 yard touchdown. THS led 18-14 at the half.

Johnson, who had racked up 90 yards in the half, came out in the third quarter with a 58 yard touchdown run. The pass for two was good and the Warriors led

Then the lights really started flashing. Griffin-Glass struck again from Comer's 44. And Johnson ripped loose for 51 yards and another TD. John Dur-

Montevallo 'Dogs win in wild double overtime

J.J. Moore learned how to fly and the trick paid off for Montevallo. The Bulldogs came from behind to douse West Blocton 26-20 in a double overtime homecoming win.

For most of the game, however, things looked rather bleak for the Bulldogs. Down 14-0 at the half, much of the crowd left during the third quarter.

But fired by a drive which got them to the one-yardline before the half ended, and urged on by coach Richard Gilliam and staff, Montevallo came out in the third quarter and reeled off 65 yards in six plays.

Tim Jones scored from the 28 on a fourth down cherry-picker, then added two more points on a

In the fourth quarter the'Dogs were driving well before an interception stopped them. But the defense, which had held earlier on first and goal, hung tough again and forced a punt.

With less than three minutes to play, Montevallo began driving from their 30. Moore converted a clutch fourth and two play from the 21 behind blocking by Glenn Hamrick and Sammy Nix.

Then with:56 left on the clock, Montez Thrift made a diving end zone snag on an 11-yard pass by Howard Gaddis to tie the game. The run for extra points failed, throwing the game into a 14-14

On Montevallo's second play of the first overtime, Gaddis, hit behind the line, maintained his balance and broke seven yards against the grain to score. The PAT was blocked, but the 'Dogs had hold of a 20-14 lead.

West Blocton, however, came back to score on a third down sneak from the one. Montevallo blocked the extra point attempt and again the score was knotted.

In the second overtime, West Blocton lost five yards on the first play, three more on a sack by Hamrick, Nix, Jones and Moore, then passed incomplete on third down. On fouth down Lloyd Picket made a key interception to hold the tie.

In Montevallo's turn, Gaddis pitched to Jones for eight yards and Moore picked up another

Briarwood claims slot in playoffs

The Briarwood Lions made sure history didn't repeat itself. They downed Mobile Christian 26-21 Friday night. Last year the Leopards beat Briarwood here in regular season play, then again in Mobile to claim the Alabama Christian Athletic Conference 3-A title.

This time the Lions decided history would be different. Based on a 47-play average of seven yards per snap, they wrote a new page for the book that went like give the Lions an early break, and on the next play, Mike Schor, good for 145 yards on the night, dashed off a 40-yard touchdown run. When the PAT snap was fumbled, Bric Baker scrambled and hit Jim Bradford for two.

Mobile, however, marched back with a 73-yard touchdown drive in 15 plays, and tied the score with a run for two points. And, shortly, a Briarwood punt fumble set up Mobile's second touchdown which came on a 35-yard bootleg run. The PAT was good.

plays later when Baker kept an option and ran 50 yards to score. The pass for two failed.

Late in the half the Lion defense forced a turnover on downs at midfield. Steve Lindsey scored from inside the one with three seconds left in the half, after Schor set up the TD with a 24-yard scramble. Again the conversion failed, but the Lions had hold of a 20-15 halftime lead.

On the first possession of the third quarter, Briarwood's Mike McCrary cut across the grain to drive in ten plays. Again the PAT failed, but 26 points did the trick to claim the treat.

Briarwood retaliated several score from the 20. The touchdown capped a 64-yard

After recovering a fumble, Mobile moved 38 yards in a dozen plays to score on fourth down from the one. On the conversion attempt Randy Cox and Scott Moorer sacked the Mobile

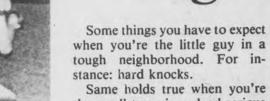

Late in the game, an interception by Lion Jim Bradford at his own 19, killed a comeback effort by the home team and the score ended 26-21.

Coach Gary Fleming was complimentary of his entire offense, especially the blocking. Too, he was quite happy that his 6-2 Lions had cemented their claim to a playoff berth, a goal they had set before the seaon started.

The one-shot championship game will be played at Briarwood on Saturday, November 15. The Lions' opponent will be the winner of a game between Mobile Christian and IMS. The latter beat Briarwood earlier; this season.

But before they play for the 3-A ACAC title, there's one more matter the Lions need to settle, and that will come Friday when they host Calera.

Tigers knock SCHS for loss

Same holds true when you're the small team in a dead-serious football area. For instance: 3-A, Area 8.

Area play for Shelby County High School's young Wildcats has been tough all year long, and Friday night was no exception when they hosted the title contending Tigers from Childersburg. Shelby County lost 27-6, at 6 points until the end of the first quarter. This time the Tigers scored on a 32-yard pass. The TD was set up by a fumble at the 25 after the Wildcats had driven out of hole down on the nine. Childersburg passed for the extra points.

Shelby County mounted a drive that went into the second quarter, but the upstarts were throttled by the Tigers. Defensively, however, Shelby County played hard-nosed enough to do some throttling of their own. At the half the score was still 14-0.

Childersburg got tougher in the third quarter and, quickly stifled the 'Cats' first possession. Several plays later the Tigers put the game out of reach at 20-0.

Again Childersburg held the SCHS offense, took the ball after a punt at the 43, and two plays later scored when George Gunn blew through for 54 yards. The PAT ended the Tiger scoring at Things got messy for Childersburg in the fourth quarter when a clip nullified a 44-yard Gunn run for a score. Shelby County intercepted a bomb on the next play, but fumbled the return and a Tiger ran it in to score. But that TD was nullified by personal foul and defensive interference calls. With fourth and 56, it appeared Shelby County would get a break, but a 72-yard punt killed, that notion.

From their 28, however, Ronald Benton hit Thomas Simon who dashed off a 72-yald pass-play to score.

The sporting Wildcats went for the onsides kick with two minutes remaining. The Tigers recovered but were held. When the game ended Shelby County was driving at the Childersburg 20.

Things probably won't be any easier for SCHS when they travel south to Thomasville this week, but it's a safe beat that when the young Wildcats of coach Larry Molton get a little older, they're going to remember a lot of these hard knocks.

Roundball season is almost here. Already Dr. David Morgan, UM basketball coach Bill Elder and Jerry Baker (L to R) are planing for the Montevallo-Lions' Club 11th Annual Tip-Off Tournament on November 21-22. rett added a PAT and with less than five minutes to play, the Warriors led 39-22.

But there was more.

After Comer scored on a 28 yard halfback pass and added two on the conversion, Johnson lit a few bumpers as he bounced off tackle for a 30 yard score. Durrett kicked the PAT and Thompson led 46-30.

Comer scored once more in the last seconds with a 12 yard pass which followed a 72 yard play. When the scoreboard finally stopped sizzling it read 46-36.

Said Simmons, "It was a typical Comer-Thompson game." Despite the scoring spree, Simmons noted Chuck Woody, Rick Long and Billy Lawley for outstanding defensive work.

But don't go away yet. The season isn't over. Thompson remains tied with Sylacauga and Childersburg in the 3-A, Area 8

The triple tie could end in Childersburg's favor if Comer heats Sylacauga this week, or Thompson loses to Pell City. But if the Warriors and Aggies win, other tie breaking factors come into play.

Speculation in Shelby County tends to favor Thompson winning a three-way tie. But only time and the Alabama High School

Simmons doesn't care to dwell on the topic of playoffs, however. Said he, "If we don't beat Pell City and if Sylacauga doesn't beat Comer, all that other stuff (the state playoffs) doesn't matter. So I don't get all worked up over it. All I want now is win number nine."

Thompson is 8-1 with one regular season game to play.

High words of praise for a dashing upset? Did the Panthers upend the area contending Aggies from Sylacauga?

No, not quite. But almost. Played on the hill in Pelham, the two power teams duked out a 14-14 tie in regulation play. In the first overtime the Panthers moved to the three but threw an interception, and the Aggies crashed to the five before fumbling. The score remained unchanged.

On Pelham's second overtime series from the ten, quarterback Steve Rye carried for four and one yards, then passed incomplete. Then Tommy Roy stepped back and booted a field

Pelham defenders held the Aggies to the 11/2 yard line in four plays, but on the fifth play of the series, Sylacauga's Byron Vansandt, behind a strong effort from his line, fell over the Pelham goal by two feet to win 20-17.

Wait a minute-fifth down? Well, Pelham was called for a face mask on third down which moved the ball half the distance to the goal and gave the Aggies the down over. On what would have been fourth down and the game, Pelham held Vansandt to no gain.

Pelham started the Halloween night scoring when Matt Mace cut loose for a 33 yard touchdown run. The score capped a potent, four play drive that covered 68 yards. Mace, whom Rivers said played excellently, also had a 24 yard run on the drive. The PAT missed.

Pelham's defense stiffled the Aggie attack until midway into the second quarter when they scored on a two yard plunge after recovering a Panther fumble on a punt at the 33. The PAT gave the visitors a 7-6 lead.

Late in the third quarter Pelham put together a methodical scoring march from its 27, with clutch third down conversions coming on a 15 yard pass from Rye to Chris Cutcliff, and a power play by Brian Bolton for nine on a audible by Rye. Bolton scored from the three and Rye hit Cutcliff with a pass for the conversion and a 14-7 lead.

But Sylacauga answered back with a 75 yard, 18 play drive which Vansandt cashed in from the one. The PAT tied the score and regulation time ended two minutes later.

Dallas County plays familar Chelsea tune

·It was the same ol' tune, heard too many times before. Only the uniforms and date had changed.

The Chelsea Hornets lost a 12-0 shutout to the Green Hornets of Dallas County in a game played last Thursday at

With the exception of their recent shutout over powerhouse Calera, Chelsea's game was plagued by the same ugly curses that found their way into the Hornets' other seven losses--one drive stalled inside the 20, another was fumbled away at the 12 and Dallas cashed in another fumble for a touchdown.

As in their other games, however, Chelsea's defense played hard hitting, grind 'em out football, most notably in the first half of play when they refused to yield any points and little yardage to the determined Green Hornets.

"Yeah, we got after them in the first half," agreed coach Daryl Burnham. "It was tough hitting. But we couldn't get a consistent effort on offense."

Twice in the second quarter Chelsea plowed down inside the Dallas 20. One threat died with a fumble. The other died on a fourth down conversion that didn't quite convert. Dallas broke the scoreless deadlock in the third quarter, when it recovered a fumble and drove 65 to score on a pass. The two-point conversion was nullified by a penalty and on the ensuing PAT attempt, Chelsea stormed in for the block.

A Chelsea punt from deep in a hole gave Dallas the ball again at midfield and the Green Hornets drove to score the icing touchdown in ten plays. Their two-point conversion was blocked, but the Hornets' heartbreak was already sealed at 12-0.

In the fourth quarter Chelsea again threatened when they drove to the Dallas 15. But on fourth and four Dallas got stingy and held on to their shutout.

"Chelsea wasn't prepared to play and I take the blame for that," Burnham said. This was the toughest loss of the whole year. I feel for the first time we got beat. The other games we lost. It comes back to the coaching. I guess it meant more to them than it did to us."

Chelsea plays their season finale against arch-rival Vincent this Friday at home. Noting the job VHS coach Harold Garrett has done this year, Burnham went on to call Vincent one of the best 2-A teams in the state.

"We're looking forward to it because it'll give us a chance to see what we've done this year," Burnham said, "Vincent will be a great, great challenge for us."

'Could have been worse'

"We just weren't clicking," lamented Shelby Academy coach Harry Rawlinson. "Offensively, we played our poorest ballgame. We didn't block well or execute well at all."

But things could have gone a lot worse for the Raiders Friday night. They could have lost.

As it was, they put together a lacklustre 21-8 win at home against the Golden Knights from Tuscaloosa Academy.

"We did have some pretty good individual efforts," Rawlinson noted. "But nothing great happened."

One possible contributing factor was that first quarterback Dirk Carson was out most the game with a sprained ankle from last week. But that gave reservist Ken Ray a chance to work under

Carson's only action came halfway in the second quarter when he quarterbacked a 53 yard scoring drive. Alan Terrell, Brendon McClary and Clifton Garrett figured in the drive and Carson scored from the three. The PAT bounced the wrong way off the upright and the Raiders took a meek, 6-0 lead into intermission.

McCrary set up a third quarter score with a 15 yard run and Garrett scored from the 15 yard line. Garrett ran for two on the conversion to make the score 14-0.

The Raiders' "Green Wall" defense, their forte of the season, shined late in the third quarter when, with the aid of a penalty, and a sack by Scott Attaway and Matt Andrews, it forced Tuscaloosa to punt from the end zone. The punter apparently freaked out at the sight of the rushing green jerseys and missed the ball with his foot. Gregg Pickett grabbed the bouncing pigskin at the two and dashed in for the score. James Knowles kicked the PAT.

Tuscaloosa picked off an in-

Next week the Raiders face Faith, coached by Gene Hausey, who sat at Rawlinson's desk at SA before Rawlinson came to

Although Faith has managed only a .500 season, Rawlinson admits he's concerned. Besides Hausey's inside scoops on the Raiders, the game is also a must if the Raiders want to stay in playoff contention.

Another area loss would drop them from their current state ranking in the top four-where they stand with Coosa Valley.

Coosa Valley drops homecoming as Bessemer delivers 13-0 shutout

"I guess Alabama feels the same way," said CVA coach Green, sorting through his Rebels 13-0 loss to Bessemer Academy.

"We had our chances. It was just one of those days that wasn't meant to work out right--and I don't know why."

Although the loss to the 3-A academy doesn't hurt their area standings, it does drop the Rebs to 6-3 overall. And making the shutout sting a little more is the fact that it was handed to them in front of a homecoming crowd in Harpersville.

Bessemer's first score came late in the first quarter when they stunned Coosa Valley with a 65-yard punt return to paydirt. The extra point was good.

Neither team seriously threatened the rest of the half, and the visitors took a 7-0 lead into intermission.

On their first possession of the third quarter, however, Coosa Valley drove to first and goal at the five. But the big boys from Bessemer shut the door on the Rebels charge and held them

The Rebel threat seemed to 44-7 and Chambers beat CVA in make Bessemer mad and they retaliated with a long scoring drive which ended in six points at the top of the fourth quarter. The PAT missed but Bessemer led

The Rebels mounted a final drive in which they pushed to the ten, but a lost fumble ended any hopes, of salvaging their homecoming.

Still, Coosa Valley remains 5-0 in their area, and are almost assured of a playoff berth. To cement their post season possibilities, however, the Rebels best make sure their trip to Phenix City this Friday is a successful one. Although Woodland Academy's wishbone attack has been inconsistant at times this year, they did beat Chambers

Giants lead 85'ers

Calera's welter-weight homecoming Saturday was highlighted by a big parade and a 30-0 win by the Giants.

The Broncos' queen was Christie Ellison, escorted by Brad Rollin. Wendy Bynum, escorted by Tommy Mickle, was the Giants' queen. Cindy Kendrick, escorted by William Roper, was crowned for the Saints.

Coached by Larry Lunceford, Richard Posey and Gary Champion, the 7-0 Giants can win the league title Saturday.

Giants Lee Smith, Ray Ross and William Smith scored against Columbiana's Leopards, and Keith and Kevin McDonald led on defense.

The Broncos and Saints lost to the Wildcats and Cougars.

cord turnout tilts Republican party

Ronald Reagan won 64 percent of the votes cast for president by Shelby County voters on November 4.

The Republican candidate defeated Democrat Jimmy Carter by more than two to one. Official returns show that Reagan polled 14,957 votes in Shelby County and Carter polled 7,396 votes.

Counting votes cast for other candidates, the total number of votes cast in the presidential election by Shelby Countians was a record 23,269.

Returns for the other presidential candidates show: John B. Rarick, Conservative Party, 183; Ed Clark, Libertarian Party, 290; Benjamin Bubar, Statesman, 13; Barry Commoner, Citizens Party, 7; Gus Hall, Communist Party, 2; David McReynolds, Socialist Party, 3; Clifton Deberry, Socialist Workers Party, 9; John Anderson, Independent, 407. In addition there was one write-in vote each for John Connary (sic) and for Gerald

As big as Ronald Reagan's victory was in Shelby County last week, it was not as big as the victory of Republican Jeremiah

The former prisoner of war received 15,230 Shelby County votes in his race for the U.S. Senate. This figure means that 273 more Shelby Countians voted for him than voted for Reagan.

By contrast, Denton's Democratic opponent, Jim Folsom, Jr. received 7,218 votes. The total number of votes cast in the senate race locally was 23,017, just 252 fewer than cast in the presidential contest.

The other candidates in the race and their votes were: Michael Erdey, Conservative, 221; William Crew, Libertarian, 268; Jim Partain, Statesman, 23; Mhammed Oliver, Socialist Workers, 19; Sallie M. Hadnott, National Democratic Party of Alabama, 38. In a ticket-splitting seesaw, Shelby County voters favored Republicans in six races, and favored Democrats in four.

The Democrats who survived in the county were those who had campaigned very hard and apparently swayed enough voters to make the difference. The overwhelming vote for Reagan and for Denton, undoubtedly helped Republican candidates.

Democratic district attorney Billy Hill pulled through in Shelby County by 1516 votes over his Republican opponent Ray Ledbetter. The final tally was 10,819 votes for Hill to Ledbetter's 9,303. Ledbetter did little campaigning. Hill's margin was higher in the more heavily Democratic Clay and Coosa Counties, which are also part of the district. Hill campaigned long and hard.

Two long time public servants running on the Democratic ticket were defeated by Republicans this time.

"Ned" Bearden was caught up in the Reagan sweep, losing to Donald Murphy by a vote of 9,515 to 11,044. Bearden was seeking his third term on the county commission. Ironically, he was first elected to the commission by defeating a Republican, Jack Acton, who himself was put into office by the "Goldwater sweep" of 1964.

Both Murphy and Bearden had survived their party's primaries.

On the other hand, Democrat James E. "Jake" Morris defeated his Republican challenger, C.E. "Codger" Etress, by a vote of 10,507 to Morris had campaigned hard throughout the county in the primary campaign, and kept up a steady pace before the general election. Etress had no opposition in the primary.

Doug Kent, a lifelong county resident and dairyman, was seeking reelection to the county board of education as a Democrat. The position carries no salary, and the well-known Kent did little campaigning. His Republican opponent, who also campaigned very little, won the contest by a vote of 9,767 to Kent's 9,499.

In Beat 17, voters elected Larry Martin, a Republican, to the post of constable over Douglas Bunn, who polled 1,169 votes.

In Beat 6 Phillips Martin was unopposed for constable, winning 476 votes. In Beat 12 the unopposed Jim Branch drew 2,820 votes for constable. Both men are Republicans.

FHA reports county assistance

Shelby County received $3,681,000 during fiscal year 1980 in loans and grants by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Farmers Home Administration (FmHA). The money is intended to support farms, home improvement and business and industry in rural areas, FmHA District Director, Roger P. Traywick reports.

The agency's farm loan services, which supplement private credit available in rural areas, added $1,074,000 to Shelby County resources for operation of farms during a year of emergency and commercial credit shortage for many farmers.

FmHA home loan programs accounted for $1,157,000 to build or improve 63 homes in town and countryside areas.

Sheriff hires three of five additional road deputies

Shelby County Sheriff Buddy for one or more people qualified David Vann, Keister served as his Glasgow hopes to have his five additional road deputies patrolling the county's highways.

The salaries of four of the new employees are to come out of the department's $991,508.78 budget approved by the Shelby County Commission.

But the sheriff is anticipating that CETA funds will allow him to hire someone for the jail, freeing a qualified man there to go on patrol duty.

Three of the new employees have already been hired. One of them is Phillip Walker, the son of former Sheriff C.P. "Red" in this area of police work has been brought up at meetings of the Personnel Board this year by Chief Deputy James Jones.

Walker also has training in arson investigation.

His last position was with the Alabaster Police Department. And a fellow officer, Loyd Anderson, will also be trading his blue uniform for a brown one within the next few weeks.

Anderson has dealt extensively with juveniles and this training is expected to be helpful in his work with the Sheriff's department.

Jim Keister, who also worked for Alabaster at one time, has been hired by Glasgow to work inside the Sheriff's department.

The test was drawn up and administered by Joe Curtin, chairman of Jefferson County's Personnel Board who also operates Southeastern Consulting Services

It was the Personnel Board's plan to present the Sheriff with the names of the individuals making the six highest scores.

But because a number of applicants made the same scores, Glasgow has had to interview and consider the qualifications of 18 individuals.

Columbiana tightens up on cars, gas

Although Columbiana Mayor Buck Falkner said the city's new administration is striving for harmony, it was evident at Thursday night's meeting that reaching that goal may take awhile.

One of the subjects that caused some sparks to fly concerned the finance committees' recommendation that city employees not drive city owned vehicles home.

After the meeting of the finance committee, on which he serves, Councilman Harold Mc-Cord said he had given the matter more thought and had changed his mind.

Since department heads are on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week, it was McCord's opinion that these men should be allowed to have their vehicles immediately

But finance committee chairman Lewis Walker reminded him of complaints that had been registered about the misuse of city owned vehicles.

And Jessie Jones, the .third member of the committee, also backed the policy, saying "Our intent is to operate in a businesslike way."

Although still objecting, Mc-Cord went along with the other council members in voting for the policy to be instituted.

The recommendation also included the repair or replacement of speedometers on all vehicles. And the Mayor instructed street superintendent James Palmer to make arrangements Saturday for the work to be done, regardless of the cost.

Another policy concerning city vehicles drew objections from both McCord and Frank Owen, but item 8B passed by a 3-2 vote.

Because the finance committee had determined records of who was using city gasoline were poorly kept, they recommended hiring a part-time person to keep up with that operation.

It was learned that at the present time, keys to the gasoline pump are readily available.

And City Clerk Mary Largin pointed out that it was impossible to determine into which vehicle any missing gasoline had gone.

Owen suggested that someone already on the city payroll could handle the responsibility of keeping records.

But the motion which passed called for hiring a part-time person whose hours and salary will be determined by the council.

There was another difference of opinion on the council when the finance committee recommended charging $25 a month rent on the Gaines Farmer home which now belongs to the city.

Previously, a Shelby County High School coach had been allowed to live in the home rent

Owen went along with the occupant paying rent, but he stressed that a higher figure be set. "I don't feel that we're obligated to pay anyone's rent," Owen declared.

Explaining the finance committees' decision to charge a rental fee in the first place, Jones mentioned the state law which makes it mandatory.

But she noted that the low fee was set in order to help the school and the athletic program.

The recommendation passed by a 3-2 vote.

Although the previous administration had refused to pay a Continued on page 7

Lounge license denied in Montevallo

A proposal to establish a lounge in Montevallo failed to win approval of the Montevallo City Council Monday night.

An application for the establishment was presented to the council by Dr. John Rude, a member of the University of Montevallo faculty. Dr. Rude appeared before the city's governing body at the last two meetings to answer questions about his

At Monday night's meeting several students spoke in behalf of the proposal. The pastor of Montevallo's First Baptist Church, Rev. Thomas Mansell, served as a spokesman for more than a score of persons objecting to establishing the lounge.

When Mayor Ralph Sears called for a vote on the proposal all members of the council voted to withhold approval.

Rude's application now goes to the state Alcohol Beverage Control Board for final action.

An application for the offpremises sale of wine was approved by the council. The application was submitted by Naomi Bean for her establishment doing business as Nell's Grocery.

Residents from two areas inquiring about annexation to Montevallo were present at Monday night's meeting. Mrs. Pauline Williams and Joe McGaughy representing a group from the Dry Valley area inquired about a petition to the council requesting certain areas of Dry Valley be annexed. City Clerk Don Hughes is gathering comparative figures on increased revenue compared to projected additional costs of annexation. When computations are completed the city's finance committee will study the petition, costs and additional revenues and make a recommendation to the full council.

A delegation from the Almont area presented questions concerning annexation and the establishment of an independent fire district.

No action was taken on the subject of annexation.

Billie Lacey, chairman of the city's streets committee, proposed a revision of parking rules on Bloch Street between Oak and Highland Streets. The proposal was approved, and will permit residents of a fraternity house to park in front of their property.

Responding to complaints that the city sidewalk is being blocked on Middle Street adjacent to the Whaley Shopping Center, Mrs. Lacey proposed "Do Not Block the Sidewalk" signs be posted. Her proposal was approved.

Catherine Smitherman, chairman of the city's utilities committee, submitted the city's first natural gas budget. After careful study, the budget of $917,500 was adopted.

Park and Recreation Director Henry McQueen announced a fall program that will begin in December. Activities will include dominoes and a theatre produc-

Columbiana policeman quits

Columbiana Police Chief Howell Horn was reappointed to his position by the city council Thusday evening.

But no mention was made of the man who has been second in command, even though a petition protesting the removal of his position was presented at the last meeting.

The new administration had reportedly planned to do away with the position of assistant police chief and reduce Myron Bradley's salary to the level of patrolman.

Believing that the matter would be brought up at the Oct. 23 meeting, members of the police department were present to support Bradley.

One officer told the Reporter, "He's the best policeman I've ever worked with."

However, the matter wasn't mentioned by the council. But after the petition was presented, Mayor Buck Falkner said the council would take under consideration the expression of confidence in Bradley when they made their decision.

But when the meeting concluded last Thursday evening, there was still no word on the outcome of the situation.

Questioned later about what action had been taken, the mayor reported Bradley had handed in his resignation the day before.

"There was no pressure put on him," Falkner stressed, "he did it voluntarily."

One source confided that the council's questioning of a recent arrest made by Bradley was the "straw that broke the camel's

The assistant chief was said to be frustrated in trying to carry out his duties and felt it was best for everyone if he resigned.

Until he decides what to do, he'll reportedly be working in the pulpwood business with his father, who is now hospitalized.

In other action concerning the police department, the panel agreed that the unmarked police car be identified with decals and lights on the roof.

There had been a number of complaints about the vehicle not being identified as a police car.

Since the last administration had balked at giving additional money to the Columbiana library to meet financial obligations, head librarian Barbara Roberts gave a complete picture of the library's operations to the new

This year's budget, she reported is $22,000 but only $18,000 had been allotted by the previous administration.

Another matter that had been brought up before the new council took office was settled when street superintendent James Palmer was instructed to make an entrance to a flea market on Depot Street.

Pete McMath, who operates the business as a spare time venture, wanted a driveway into the building where he sells odds and ends, which is adjacent to his home.

It was reported that the area was zoned commercial and the council went along with his request that the city prepare an entrance and replace the curbing.

Approval was also given to a

Observers of the Shelby County political scene are marvelling at the huge voter turnout at the November 4 general election.

With 37,130 names on the list of registered voters and with 23,269 votes cast, that means a record of 62.667 percent of the registered voters actually voted in Shelby County.

Another statistic being talked about is that 64 percent of the votes cast in Shelby County for President of the United States went to the Republican candidate, Ronald Reagan.

Official count

Statewide offices on the ballot November 4 presented contests for one place on the Supreme Court and for the office of president of the Public Service Commission.

Associate Justice R.P. Almon, the incumbent and a Democrat, was returned to office statewide, but in Shelby County his Republican opponent Fred Blanton won more votes than he did. The official tally showed Blanton with 10,052 and Almon with 9,175.

Janie Shores polled 10,237 Shelby County votes and Eric Embry polled 9,955 votes here. Both are Democrats and neither was opposed.

In the race for Public Service Commission, Democrat Billy Joe Camp outdistanced all rivals and won Shelby County's vote.

The tally was: Camp, 9,940; Sally B. Alexander, Libertarian, Gordon Tucker, Republican, 9,589; and John Francis Dyer, Statesman, 154. In addition, someone wrote in a vote for Joe Farley, president of the Alabama Power Company. In the district contest for a member of the state board of education, the Republican candidate, Vera Booth, won more votes in Shelby County than the veteran board member, Democrat Victor Poole, who won 8,784 votes. However, the other counties in the district made up the difference and Poole was elected.

Shelby County's Representative in the U.S. Congress will continue to be Richard Shelby, a Democrat.

Although Republicans outpolled Democrats in many races in this county, Shelby defeated his Republican challenger James E. Bacon, by 11,864 votes to 8,625. He carried the race throughout the other counties in the seventh congressional district, too.

Others in the race were Joe Walker, Libertarian, with 384 votes and Mary Owensby of the Statesman party with 126 votes.

Commission

The battle of Shelby Memorial Hospital raged on last Monday, this time at the Shelby County Commission meeting.

Appearing at the meeting were Gladys Harper, Ruby Hoobler and Chuck Harris, all of whom asked the Commissioners to talk to the hospital board members they appointed. They asked that former administrative assistant for nursing, Betty Sherer, be rehired or that administrator Roland Bradford be fired

Mrs. Harper presented a petition with 500 names on it that she said expressed that view. "There's a tension among employees at the hospital that you wouldn't believe.'

the directors, the medical staff or the administration?"

He said next March it will be his turn to appoint another board member. Chairman Ben Grubbs is now holding that place, and Davenport indicated he would name someone else to the slot.

Commission chairman Tommy Snowden said he had talked with the director that he named to the hospital board, Earl Cunningham. Chuck Harris said he thinks Cunningham is now living in Birmingham, and is therefore no longer eligible to serve on the board. Snowden said he would check into it at once.

Jim Strickland of Columbiana was elected to serve on the Shelby County board of the Department of Pensions and Security by the county commission Monday.

Strickland will fill the term that was left vacant when Hylott Armstrong resigned recently to move to Butler.

. . . . The county board of education notified the commission it will take bids on carpeting for four rooms in the county offices. The price is not to exceed $3,800 according to their letter.

Mountain Brook Cable TV asked the commission for a franchise in the county through the commission's attorney, Frank Ellis, Jr.

Commissioners discussed the cable television situation, with commission chairman Snowden saying, "I just don't know enough about this." Ellis asked that the commission approve the Mt. Brook company, subject to his approval.

Two other companies, Tac-Can and Satellite Communications have already received county franchises. The group decided to ask the county attorney to decide which company would offer cable TV service at the least cost to the customer.

County engineer Gary Ray reported that a bridge on county highway 22 will have to be widened to take care of the resurfacing now in progress. He will advertise for bids for materials.

He also recommended that the road on Pfeiffer property near Southern Stone at Saginaw should not be moved. He said that moving it to the north would create a dangerous curve leading into a bridge.

County Waste Supervisor Carlton Franks was reported back at work on a half day basis, following a recent illness and hospitalization.

Commissioner Harold Davenport asked where the figures are for the plane ports at the county airport. He said it is in the minutes that Bill Tucker was to prepare some cost estimates. Davenport said, "We need to do something about this. Let's get these prices at the next meeting."

Commission Clerk Mildred Ray reported that the county can expect $93,000 less in taxes than it budgeted as a result of a recent utilities court case. She said the case was settled out of court, but the agreement gave the utilities the right to pay only 75 percent of the amount originally figured as their ad valorem tax.

She said county tax assessor Bobbie Reynolds hopes an increase in auto tag taxes may help the county make up the $93,000 loss. Mrs. Ray also noted that sales tax receipts fell off in the most recent report.

Court action

Not showing any sign of tension, David Matthew Bullock stood before Shelby County Circuit Court Judge Harold Walden for sentencing last week.

With his left hand stuck in the back pocket of his pants and the other resting casually on the judge's bench, Bullock listened calmly as he was sentenced to life imprisonment under the Habitual Felony Offender Act.

Before pronouncing the sentence, Judge Walden pointed out that before being found guilty of first degree robbery of the Kiddie Kaboose in Pelham, Bullock had also had two prior felony convictions.

One was for a burglary in Georgia, the other for a robbery in Florida.

Bullock has been in the Shelby County jail since January. And he still faces charges of escape, 3 counts, arson and burglary.

Other sentences handed down during during the Nov. 6 session of Circuit Court included a 15 year term in prison for James Louis McKenzie for robbing the Steel grocery on Valleydale

Ricky Aaron Fair received 20 years for the same crime because he had been carrying a gun.

Annie Ruth Huff was given a 2 year sentence in each of the three burglary cases in which she was involved. All of the sentences were suspended and she was placed on 3 years probation.

Kenneth Anthony Bailey's 1 year sentence was suspended and he was placed on a 3 year period of probation.

For violation of the Alabama uniform controlled substance act, James E. Bozeman was given a 1 year suspended sentence, placed on 3 years probation and instructed to serve 30 days in the county jail.

Emma Jean Davis was given a 2 year suspended sentence and put on 3 years probation; Gregory Cox Jr. was given two 2 year sentences for possession of marijuana; Dexter Sutton had a 2 year suspended sentence and 4 year probationary period.

James A. Bearden and John R. Lucas each received a 1 year suspended sentence with 3 years probation; Joe Michael Bunn failed to appear and an alias warrant was issued; Betty Jean Page withdrew a plea of guilty and trial has been set for December.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

It started in Zane Nathews' store on main street in Montevallo next to Whaley's furniture store and two doors down from Don Lovelady's store. I was hunting a Roget's College Thesaurus. In this business, working without a Thesaurus is like playing wide receiver on a football team with just one arm or fullback with one leg.

I asked Zane about a book store. He called the Student Union Building and drew me a map on how to get there and I started out.

I got through the big gate and onto the campus without a hitch. Then I met this man coming down the walk.

"What sort o' shape am I in?" asked him.

He looked a little confused. "I don't know," he said. "Are

"Turn left right there," and she "and go striaght pointed, ahead."

And I did and I found it and parked and got out and crippled down a flight of steps and asked a young fellow in the hall: "Which room is the bookstore in?"

He seemed in a hurry but stopped and looked back down the hall and pointed with one hand. "The third door on the right."

I stopped in front of a desk with the name Mrs. Galloway on, a card. "Which Mrs. Galloway" are you?" I asked.

"I'm not Mrs. Galloway. She's over there."

Somebody called Mrs. Galloway's name and she came toward us, a lovely lady with silver hair and a warm smile.

"I'm Mrs. Bo Galloway," she said. "Tex is dead, but Bob is still" living, here in Montevallo."

"I'm Skillet Bird. They were good friends in the old days." She got the Thesaurus for me, up in the post office and the lady in charge led me down the hall in sight of the steps.

And so I made it. The chances are five to one I'll get lost again before the month is out. But if I do, I hope the folks who'll have to help me get straightened out, again are just half as nice and friendly as those folks were today at the University of Montevallo.

My entry into the world of holiday shopping frenzy came after I'd left a tranquil farm setting where I'd taken a picture of a cow.

Imagine then, my shock at entering a world where drivers challenged each other for parking spaces and crowds made it impossible for shopping to be quick and painless.

Why fight against, vote for, reds?

Letter to Editor:

There is something that puzzles me very much, maybe someone can explain this to me. I noticed in the past election there was a place on the ballot for you to vote for the communist party, Socialist party. There have been some wars fought against these people and many of our boys have lost their lives the these battles. Why does our government permit this to happen, above all here in the United States. I know we have or are supposed to have freedom of speech, but to permit this to be, to me is just poor nonsense. The people that would like to vote for something like this, I say send them back to this communist country where they don't have any say about their government at all. Just leave us alone here in this land of the free and home of the brave. Yours truly, John O. Leemans, Sr. Rt. 1, Box 75-A Maylene, Al 35114

Doll collectors as well as little girls eager for a cuddly toy, should be able to find what they want at the Goodwill Volunteers' doll sale Saturday.

The annual event will go on all day at Eastwood Mall.

This week, members of the organization in Shelby County and in other areas, are putting some finishing touches on the dolls which range from antique, to present day models.

Owners discover history in cabin home

Before starting work on the night shift at the Shelby County jail, Fay Porter may have spent several hours perched atop an eight foot ladder.

Or she might have been down on the floor on her hands and knees, sanding a section of wide plank flooring.

At least that's what the Shelby resident has been doing for the past two years - ever since she discovered the home she and her husband bought in 1959 had historic significance.

But now most of the restoration work has been completed and the Porters are living comfortably in the house which was once a one room log cabin.

To show their friends and relatives what had been uncovered through research and tearing into some of the walls, the couple recently hosted an open house.

Her first clue that the house was really old, Porter said, was found in the attic. After noticing some logs and the hardened mud substance which held them together, she discovered other telltale signs of the age of the dwelling.

Removal of some of the wallboards in the front bedroom revealed that the room had been the original log cabin.

Logs and pine rails with mud in between could be seen. However, the heart pine boards showing Square nails were used in the frame addition which was built about 150 years ago. Porter said she had not been able to learn when the cabin was constructed.

Inspecting the underside of the house, the couple also found that wooden pegs had been used to join the log floor joist under the original cabin.

The tall double doors on the front of the house had been sawed off by a previous owner who made the top section stationary.

Porter says the doors will eventually be restored to their original condition.

Other notable features in the home are the hand carved mantlepiece and the trim on the doors and windows.

Double walls and ceilings are found in both the living room and dining room of the home, Porter said.

Bugs, Porky Pig lose election

Before last week's election, political candidates stumped the county trying to drum up votes. But there was also some politicking going on recently by a group not old enough to vote.

During a pack meeting Oct. 30, Montevallo Cub Scouts were introduced to three newcomers in the political arena who were making their bid for office.

After listening to the campaign speeches of Speedy Gonzales, Bugs Bunny and Porky Pig, Cubs and their parents cast their ballots.

County libraries see progress in new year

by Phil Clark

As we start our new fiscal year in the county, we are looking forward to a successful year for library service. All of our city councils and the county commission have responded well to budget requests and interest is high for good libraries in our county.

Vincent City Council will be adding a new roof on their library and have agreed to continue responsibility for the operation and maintenance of their library building.

Medical equipment owned by the town of Calera will be auctioned off soon to benefit the library. The equipment is from the old medical services building now the home of the Calera Library. Proceeds from the sale will be used to renovate the library. Renovation will include removal of walls and new carpeting.

Helena, as we reported last week, will be moving into new quarters within the near future. Also, a new librarian will be hired

Vincent PTO has identity crisise

When is a PTA not a PTA? In most cases, the answer would be, when it's a PTO.

But at Vincent Elementary School the issue was more con-

At last month's meeting, some parents expressed displeasure about money raising projects and complained they didn't know where the proceeds had gone.

There were also questions about dues to the state and national organization.

At Monday's meeting, members of the parent-teacher organization were informed that approximately six years ago, the school group became a PTO.

However, because the organization had been called PTA for so long, people still continued to call it by that name.

And it was noted that the account kept by the treasurer was still listed under the PTA name.

In order to get the matter straightened out, a vote was called for on which organization the majority of school patrons wanted to belong to.

And to prevent any complaints about the vote count not being correct, ballots were passed out, marked, and counted in view of the audience.

Vincent trustees Jerry Lee and Johnny Howard and Shelby County Board of Education member Paul Sumners performed that task.

When the ballots were totaled, 31 paid members voted to remain a PTO, 23 expressed a desire to be part of the national PTA organization.

To my many friends, supporters, and workers in the recent election, may I express my sincere appreciation.

I congratulate my opponent, Mr. Morris and thank him for helping to make our campaign a clean one.

A.E. Etress

Before the voting, Jim Town- sheet send, 3rd vice president of the state PTA, spoke on the advantages of belonging to an organization that worked for education on both state and national levels.

He was followed at the microphone by Jane Weldon who revealed that her investigation had shown that most groups in the county are now PTO's.

"No one I asked could tell me the advantage of being a PTA," Weldon declared.

Money collected from membership dues in the PTO remains in the local school whereas a portion of PTA dues go to the state an national organization.

It was pointed out, however, that no matter which organization the school belonged to, money raising projects would still be necessary in order to get some of the necessities not provided for in the school's budget.

In order to put to rest any notions that money collected from such projects had been mishandled, the treasurer presented each member with a mimeographed accounting disbursments.

For Sept.-Nov., income amounted to $8,855.38 with disbursements listed as $1,705.38.

The new budget was set at $4,678. But if more funds become available, it was noted that parents could request what they felt was needed at the school.

PTO president Lily Kidd presided at the meeting. After some discussion on updating the organization's constitution and by-laws, she appointed a committee to undertake that task.

Point after

With Charlie Griffin (14) holding and the Warrior line blocking, John Durrett boots an extra point over the outstretched arm of an onrushing Pell City defender.

Feeling good

These Warriors were feeling pretty good after the outcome of the Pell City game became apparent. In fact, they were even entertaining ideas of bigger and better things. From the left, Arthur Johnson, Chuck Woody and Joe Glass.

out instantaneous power. He spins his body, ricocheting off would be tacklers. He hurdles and flies over pileups, and just plain runs over people when they get in the way. Johnson is the "power" behind Thompson's power I formation.

Add to Johnson's talents those of quarterbacks Charlie Griffin and Chuck Woody, the blocking of Randy Anderson and the Warrior line, a couple of good receivers and you get an offense that averages 27.8 points per Couple that to a defense which, led by Billy Lawley, Rick Long, Buddy Cofer, Joe Glass, Todd Harris, Jeff Bentley, Woody, Johnson and others, gave up 13.2 points per game and this is what you get:

Friday night Thompson's Warriors downed Pell City 27-7, upping their regular season record to 9-1 and ensuring them a berth in the 3-A state playoffs via the Area 8 championship.

Against Pell City Johnson rushed for 160 yards, giving him 1535 yards for the year and breaking the school's previous rushing record set at 1524 yards by James Tannehill in 1972. Furthermore, Johnson scored three touchdowns Friday night, pushing his game average to 15

All of this is fine and impressive, but Thompson just now reached its hardest game of the season. Friday night, Thompson travels to Millbrook to play Stanhope Elmore in the first round of the mettle-testing playoffs.

Head coach Larry Simmons admits he's a bit more worried and concerned this week than normal, but at the same time he adds that no football games are ever won before they've been piaved.

"I don't think this bunch will get scared of Stanhope," Simmons said of his Warriors. "It's an honor to go to the state.

got the opportunity now and we're going to deal with it best we can. With a break here and there we can win.

"I'm happy with our Pell City win, but I'm not necessarily happy with the way we played." As he walked off the field Friday Simmons pointed out, "We'll have to play better than we did tonight in the playoffs.

Thompson fumbled the opening kickoff and the defense was forced to dig in at its own 24. But led by David Hall and others, the defense held four downs and got the ball back at 15.

Several plays later Griffin hit Glass on the run with a pass-play that carried to Pell City's 39. On the next play Johnson literally spun through a narrow hole at right tackle and sprinted to the end zone. John Durrett added the

On fourth and three from the PC four, Johnson's apparent rush for first and goal was nullified by holding.

Warrior defenders Hall, Bentley, Tom Puckett, Jeff Joiner kept Pell City at bay for the rest of the half.

On second down following a punt. Woody threw a door opening block for Johnson and the sophomore whizzed 70 yards to score with 1:12 in the quarter. Durrett added the PAT.

Three plays later Griffin intercepted a pass and returned it 16 yards to the PC 24. Joiner and Woody carried down to the goal on two passes and Woody rammed over to score with :05 left in the half. Durrett's PAT gave Thompson a 21-0 lead.

> While the Warriors finished their win on the field, the Marching Southern Sounds entertained the home crowd with a funeral march dedicated to Pell City.

Rebels ranked on top

Coosa Valley Academy reached the top.

Coming off a 35-0 swatting of Woodland Christian, the Rebels of head coach Mark Green and assistant Rick Naugher were ranked by the Alabama Private School Association as the number one 2-A football team in the state.

The Rebels reached the top with a 6-0 area, and a 7-3 overall standing. On their way to the top the offense racked up 206 points while the defense allowed only 90 points, shutting out four opponents completely.

While in Phenix City to conquer Woodland, the Rebels reeled of 421 yards rushing--nearly enough to get them back to Harpersville on foot.

Senior Mike Wheeler hoofed off 306 vards in 29 carries to score four touchdowns, lead the rushing and set himself a new game high.

Wheeler's first TD came late in the first quarter. He picked up several gainers of 15 and 20 yards on the 60-yard drive before crashing over to score from the four. Ty Williams added the ex-

Four fumbles and an uncharacteristic 150 yards in penalties frustrated the Rebels all evening, especially in the third quarter when at least three drives were stopped by mistakes and

Wheeler got the team back in foward gear in the final period by breaking loose for a 40-yard touchdown run. Mike Norred's conversion pass to Phillip Ward put CVA up 21-0.

Midway into the fourth, Eric Davis ripped off a 35-yard gainer to set up Wheeler's last score, a 30-yard touchdown romp. Williams booted the PAT.

People have been asking the Reporter about the fishing on Lay Lake so I tried to call L.Q. Long Monday before press time to get the scoops.

If it's any indication on the fishing, Mrs. Long answered the phone and said, "Oh, he's not here. He's out fishing.'

I can't say I was shocked.

"He goes out in the morning and he goes out in the afternoon. 'Comes back in around dark,"

Mrs. Long continued.

"He fishes mostly with his homemade jigs and has been catching crappie, about a half to a quarter pound. The other day he caught a pretty nice one that weighed a pound and a quarter. He was so excited he came running in here and got his keys and drove over to Spring Creek to weigh it."

Where's the old Lay Lake veteran been catching them?

"Where he catches them is around these stickups, around 12-15 feet of water. Last week he was fishing for crappie and started catching a mess of small stripe. But some of them were bending the hooks on his jigs."

But WHERE is he catching

"Oh, you know, around here. Not far.'

Well, I tried. At least you know what to expect. The crappie are biting and you don't have to wait til spring to go fishing. Just grab your football and head on down to Lay...

If you don't go to Lay, you can always go to Lake Purdy and rent a flat bottom.

Walt Lowe at the landing reported that the crappie are doing "just great. They're hitting days trolling with everything from white to black grubs, and most any color--that varies from

Raiders lose coin toss

In two years Shelby Academy has lost every coin toss but three. Somehow, the Raiders' fans and coaches Harry Rawlinson and Dewayne Kervin seem to have forgiven them.

Maybe that's because they're 9-1 on the season and their number three ranking by the Alabama Private School Association puts them in the state playoffs for the first time since Shelby Academy topped its regular season play last Friday at home by trouncing Faith 47-7. Except for the relatively low 14-0 halftime lead, the game went much like most Raider outings have all year: after losing the coin-toss, the defense set up its green wall and the offense rolled and rolled and rolled.

On Shelby's first possession Brendan McCrary and Clifton Garrett horsed for yardage from the 22. Then Dirk Carson, with a block by James Knowles, broke loose for a 43-yard scoring run. Knowles' PAT was good.

As the first quarter ended, Mc-Crary ripped over tackle Greg Pickett's slot for a 68-yard touchdown run. The PAT was

The offense stalled in the second quarter, and Faith drove once to the 25 until "gangrene" set in and stopped the threat.

Two minutes into the third, Shelby got back on track when Carson hit Terry Crabb for a 25-yard touchdown pass-play. The PAT missed.

The Green wall fell subject to a couple tricks and Faith scored in the third quarter on a 21-yard pass. The PAT made the score 20-7, but from there the going was all Shelby's.

The Raiders drove 65 yards in a dozen plays, with Carson passing 20 yards to Allen Terrell for the score. The PAT missed.

A half-field drive at the top of the fourth quarter put Shelby out front 33-7 after Brian Russell scored from the 10 and Knowles kicked the PAT.

Somewhere along here the defense gave up its first rushing first down of the game, but it didn't seem to matter. Keith Knowles soon broke loose for a 34-yard touchdown run and the PAT counted.

After begging his coach, senior runner Garrett got back in the game late and immediately ripped off a 47-yard touchdown in which he out-manueverd a swarm of Faith players. The PAT ended it all at 47-7.

The Green Wall

Known as the Green Wall, Gang-Green (gangrene) and several other terms (of endearment?), the Shelby Academy defense actually worked up a little sweat against Faith--but just a little. Regulars in the group are Matt Andrews (50), Keith Lawler (78), James Knowles (52), Bobby Cooper (right), Gregg Pickett (56), Scott Attaway (66), Mark Andrews (55), Ken Ray (4), Clifton Garrett, Brendan McClary, Gregg Young, Jeff Snow, Allen Terrell, and Terry Crabb. Cats hold small cards

The Shelby County Wildcats ended their season with a 21-0 loss at the hands of the state contending Tigers in Thomasville.

The deck was stacked against them from the start. They didn't have a sleeve to hide an ace, much less a powerful full house when they showed their cards on the gridiron.

But that certainly didn't keep some 60 fans from making the 180 mile drive. And it certainly didn't keep Shelby County from playing a tough game against the 3-A champions in Area 2.

In fact, Thomasville managed only one touchdown against Shelby County in nearly three quarters of football.

The game started out like a royal flush, however, as Thomasville marched its opening possession 70 yards to score. But after that, Shelby County played inspired, stubborn defense, led by linebackers Randy Lewis and Daron Burns.

Late in the half the Wildcats mounted what started as one of their best passing attacks of the year. Quarterback Ronald Benton, getting good protection from his line, dropped back and hit senior Hugh Sims with several sharp aerials to drive Shelby County close to the goal.

But finally Benton was forced to scramble and threw an in-

In the third quarter, both teams punted back and forth until the Tigers finally hit Benton in the backfield, causing a fumble at the Wildcat 20. From there Thomasville scored in several

In the fourth quarter, Thomasville drove 55 yards for a final score and added a third PAT to make the score 21-0.

Shelby County's defense turned back one last penetration inside the 20, actually moving the Tigers backwards in four plays.

Assistant coach Rhett Vick described the Wildcats' effort as "super," and noted both the Thomasville and Childersburg games showed signs the young team was getting on the track.

Head coach Larry Molton will lose three seniors from this year's team. But 11 juniors and 10 sophomores who have paid some dues during their 2-8 season this year will be returning next year.

Playoff predictions

Four footballs will stay pumped

by David Moore

Anyone who thinks high school football season lasts only ten games and 11 weeks needs to punt. You're short on yardage.

Fully half of the high school football teams in Shelby County are playoff bound. You can go to Briarwood, Coosa Valley Academy, Shelby Academy, Thompson and Vincent and you won't find anybody letting the air out footballs yet.

something about the way people one. around here play football.

Unfortunately, not all of these teams are going to make it past round one.

Want the predictions? Then without further ado:

Thompson will meet its match in the team that will finish second in the state. Stanhope Elmore will nip the Warriors, but not by more than a field goal and an extra point.

Vincent, in accordance with the way it won several of its games, will win again--just barely. Watch the Jackets rally, near-This fact in itself says ly too late, to beat Ohatchee by

> The private academies will both face their toughest op ponents of the year--and both will win. CVA will break a couple big plays to win by 13 over Springwood, and the Raiders will duke out a seven point victory over Warrior.

Brairwood will have its hands full (again) with IMS. The Lions will win the one-game playoff and claim the ACAC state title-but only after at least one overtime.

Good luck to all the teams and may only the Warriors prove my crystal ball cracked.

My record on the year is 59-22 for a .728 average.

Don't get snagged on new law

A new Department of Conservation and Natural Resources regulation prohibits fishing any trotline or snagline, unless at least six feet of each end of such line is made of 100 percent cotton line and the trotline or snagline is affixed to the bank or anchors by the cotton tie of line. Any setline (bush hook) also must be made of 100 percent cotton line.

Dalton Halbrook, Chief Enforcement Officer, Game and Fish Division states that this regulation will be rigidly enforced as synthetic lines have caused major problems in the past, because they do not deteriorate with the passage of time as does cotton line. The public's cooperation is solicited in immediately complying with this regulation.

To beat Springwood, Green says, is going to take good Rebel defense and a better offensive effort than against Woodland. The home field advantage will help, but, he notes, breaks will probably decide the outcome.

Calera drives to 20-14 win over Briarwood

Contact

Vic McCarn and another Briarwood Lion team up to tackle Calera Edward Wilson as he tries to turn the corner upfield. (Photo by Calera's offense sputtered much of the season and Briarwood's offense fumbled a lot this year but recovered most of them.

Friday night's clash between the two changed things around, however, as Calera went on to win 20-14.

In the fourth quarter coach Danny Alverson's Eagles mounted perhaps their best drive of the year, controlling the clock for six and half minutes, grinding out 67 yards in 15 plays. Richard Russell scored the winning touchdown from the two, breaking the 14-14 tie with 1:05 left in

As for the Lions, who still face a state championship playoff, coach Gary Fleming noted, "Our fumbles finally caught up with us. We beat ourselves."

Twice in the first half Briarwood fumbles inside the 10 ended drives. But the Lions got a break in the second quarter when Bo Miller jumped on a Calera fumble at the Lion 31. Six plays later Jim Bradford scored from the four and Rob Holmes added the

With the help of a face mask penalty Calera then drove to the 27 in 10 plays. Russell passed 20 yards to Raymond King to score with :27 left in the half. King kicked the PAT.

In the third quarter Cliff Smith pounced on a fumble at midfield to set up Calera's second touchdown. Winterbottom scored from the one and King added the PAT.

Midway through the fourth quarter Briarwood tied the game at 14-all on a one yard plunge by Stephen Lindsey and a PAT by Holmes. Mike Schor and Mike McCrary rushed for most of the 43-yard drive.

Russeli, who led all rushing with 103 yards in 22 carries, scored the go ahead touchdown with 1:05 left in the game.

Briarwood took the ensuing kick at the 40 and Bric Baker passed to Schor who carried to Calera's 45. But Ricky Storey jumped on another fumble to clinch the Eagles' sixth win in ten

"Briarwood has one of the best offenses we've played all year," noted Alverson. "But our offense played their best game of the year and I'm happy and pleased with them."

Fleming's team, now 6-3 on the year, will play Independent Methodist School Saturday night at 7:45 at Briarwood to decide the 3-A state championship in the Alabama Christian Athletic Conference. Already this year IMS has beaten Briarwood 21-16.

"We need a super effort," said Fleming. "But if we play our ball game we can beat them. The key will be if our defense can make the big play.

"We hated to lose to Calera," Fleming added, "but playing a good team like that did give us some confidence."

'Dogs down TCTS 22-8

'I feel the pendulum fixing to swing'

The Montevallo Bulldogs closed out their 1980 football season with a show of power, downing Talladega County Training School 22-8.

Riddled by injuries and defeated by seven opponents, the Bulldogs of head coach Richard Gilliam duked out wins their last two outings to end an otherwise gloomy season on a bright note.

The 'Dog defense delivered the telling bite on the road against TCTS. Until the last minutes of the game, Montevallo allowed only three first downs, one of which came on a penalty.

In the first quarter, Van Hawks scooped up a Tiger fumble and ran it 39 yards to score. The fumble was caused by a jarring, backfield hit by linebacker J.J. Moore. Scott Studdard recovered another fumble which set up Montevallo's second score.

Tackle Rusty Nix nabbed an interception which should have been turned into a touchdown, and Wade Bice also made an in-STATISTICS

THS shows pride?

They're the pride of Thompson High School. They're the Bust-Your-Rears basketball team. No kidding--that's their name.

If you don't believe it, you can see them play Saturday, November 15, at 7 p.m. when they take on the KIX 106 basketball team in the Thompson gym.

terception earlier in the game. Charles Killingsworth recovered a third TCTS fumble.

Hawks' touchdown came about seven minutes into the game. Montevallo faked the PAT kick and holder Carey Thompson completed his first varsity pass to Studdard for two.

Studdard's second quarter fumble recovery sent the Bulldogs driving for 59 yards in eight plays. Montez Thrift ran 10 yards to the two before Howard Gaddis rammed home the score. Nix added the extra point.

After Nix's interception, Jones ran a trap for 23 yards and an apparent touchdown which was nullified by a clip. From the 33, Jones ran the same play across the goal, but an illegal use of the hands call nipped his effort, and at the half Montevallo led 15-0.

MHS made up for a third quarter fumble on its 30 by allowing TCTS only one yard in four plays. The 'Dogs then proceeded to march 71 yards and consume nine minutes to score. Jones picked up the points on a five yard run and Nix added the PAT.

TCTS got on the board with 25 seconds left to play. The two point conversion made the final count 22-8.

Gilliam noted that the Bulldogs not only beat the same three teams they beat last year, but lost to the exact same seven

However, he added, "I feel the pendulum fixing to swing.

"The kids showed some good class and I'm glad our seniors got to go out winning. I'm glad we got to play some junior high players, too," Gilliam said.

Gilliam indicated that in two years Montevallo's football fortunes ought to peak again as the pendulum swings from the pits to the other end of the spectrum. Indications of where the pendulum is going should surface in 1981, he added.

Pelham upsets Jemison 21-0

Pelham's senior football players held a talk with their teammates in the Panther field house just before the Jemison game. Emotion and tension ran high, but Scott Beauregard caught the spirit of the moment when he noted that it was the last game, the last fling, and the Panthers ought to go out in style.

And so they did.

The Panthers upset Jemison 21-0 in what might have been their strongest win ever.

Plagued from the start by injuries which more or less whittled their backfield down to the second string, Pelham went into their last game with a disappointing 3-6 record.

"I can honestly say that a lot of football teams would have quit trying after the disappointments these guys had," head coach Steve Rivers later told the Reporter. "But they came back and I want to say publicly that they are nothing but first class. Effort like that is a tribute to the kind of kids they are."

Pelham started its effort with a 64-yard opening drive which carried down to Jemison's one. But took a hard lick and fumbled.

From there it was a tough battle, equal on both sides until midway into round two.

Then, Tracey Swinney took in a punt, hurdled a would be tackler, got behind a wall of blockers and returned the ball 45 vards to the Jemison 30. Steve Rye scored on a 12 yard keeper behind a block by Matt Mace, and Tommy Roy kicked the PAT to give Pelham's Panthers the lead over the Panthers from

With just seconds left in the half, Todd Bass fired off a 20-yard pass to Swinney who made a diving catch in traffic in the end zone for the touchdown. The play was set up when Jemison failed to get away a punt and the rushing Panthers dropped the kicker behind the line. Roy's PAT made the score 14-0.

Pelham broke Jemison in the third quarter when Chuck Hughes busted up a pitchout, picked up the loose ball and ran 42 yards to the 35. The play ended a drive which had carried Jemison to Pelham's 25.

Pelham scored several plays later on a four-yard run by on third and goal Brian Bolton Bolton. Lance Bonovitch added the PAT to ice the game at 21-0.

Chris Cutcliff and Bass both picked off interceptions late in the game and penalties killed another Jemison drive to the 20.

Despite the disappointments in what could have been a much different season, Rivers pointed out that the Jemison win "made a lot of things worthwhile."

If you shoot a deer then here's how to cook it

by Earl F. Kennamer

"What's your best recipe for venison roast?"

This and similar questions I get almost daily during hunting season. Readers write or call me. Many times in town some man or woman stops me to ask me about cooking a species of game. In the six years my column has been published, I get more requests for game and fish preparation and cooking than anything else. It seems that the requests this season have been heavier than ever before.

This week we'll concentrate on venison recipes since the deer season has been underway for several weeks for bowhunters and will begin Nov. 21 for gun hunters.

VENISON ROAST

4-5 lb. roast

2 or 3 garlic buds peeled package dehydrated onion

Place roast in a piece of heavy cloves or buds into open ends of raost. Pour other ingredients over roast and crimp edges of oil in drugstore-wrap fashion. Place in pan in oven preheated to 325 degrees F. Cook to desired doneness, about 3-31/2 hours. Remove from oven, allow to cool for about 30 minutes and slice.

Any roast will do, but I'm fond of sirloin tip and round because they are boneless. I also often slather a roast liberally with soy and worcestershire sauces. The soups and wine or stock or bouillon will make a tasty sauce or gravy. Serve au jus, or you can thicken the sauce if too thin with a little cornstarch dissolved in a small amount of water. I like the gravy with cooked brown rice or mashed white potatoes or grits or hot homemade biscuits.

I occasionally skewer a roast and rotisserie it in by barbecue grill. I use freshly cut green hickory chunks over the charcoal. After searing the meat close ½ cup dry red wine (optional), to the fire, I lower the firepan or beef stock or canned bouillon and cook at slow heat to medium rare. I also prefer steaks: sirloin, duty aluminum foil. Stick garlic T-bone, rib chops cooked on the barbecue grill rather than in the kitchen. I do not baste with barbecue sauce.

When I get a deer, I cut and freeze the tender steaks, the best roasts--sirloin tip, round, neck and shoulder. The rest of the meat I cut into 1-inch chunks or grind up without adding any beef suet and I always trim away all deer fat. My family believes these two forms of deer meat are most universal in application: deerburgers, stew, homemade soup, meat loaf, chili.

DEERBURGERS IN TOMATO SAUCE This is my No. One recipe:

1 to 11/2 lbs. deerburger

Salt and Pepper to taste 1/4 cup chopped bell pepper

1 small chopped onion 1/2 tsp. monosodium glutamate

1/4 cup grated or finely chopped sharp cheddar cheese.

1 cp. cooked brown rice (Don't use white rice--it is tasteless!)

Dash Tabasco sauce 1 tsp. worcestershire sauce Pinch dried oregano, if desired

1 crushed clove garlic

Pinch sugar

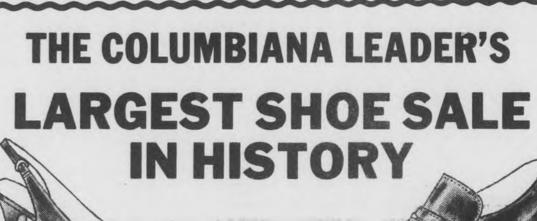

½ cup crushed cheese cracker crumbs

1 to 11/2 qts. tomatoes or tomato juice. Cooking oil Cornstarch and water

Mix all ingredients except tomatoes, cooking oil, cornstarch and water and form in small balls or patties. Brown on all sides in small amount of cooking oil in skillet on top of stove. Add tomatoes or juice and pour over meat. Thicken sauce with small amount of cornstarch dissolved in water until sauce is thick as desired.

Montevallo rescue leader named

In keeping with organizational procedures approved earlier, Montevallo's Emergency Medical Service has a new leader.

Organizer and administrator David Nichols stepped down, during this week's meeting of the Montevallo City Council, and turned the leadership of the rescue unit over to Dr. James Nichols made the regular monthly report to the council and noted that organization of the rescue squad had proceeded much faster than originally anticipated. Nichols had accepted the appointment to organize the unit on August 11 and had agreed to serve as administrator for a six months period, or until the service was fully equipped and licensed.

In his report to council, Nichols noted that a set of bylaws is ready for adoption by the paraphernalia. Nichols also reported that the membership of the unit recently elected Dr. James Rogers as the organization's first chief. Joel Rochester and Ray Sosa were elected assistant chiefs.

In responding to Nichols request that leadership of the rescue squad be transferred to Rogers, Mayor Ralph Sears accepted Nichols request and then commended Nichols and members of the unit for a job well done.

During October the service responded to 30 calls for medical assistance. Operating costs for the month of October were $367.

Vincent fights back, Chelsea finally falls

You could have thrown out Chelsea's 1-8 record. Vincent's 8-1 record could have been chunked too. Things like that don't matter much when the Hornets and Yellow Jackets go after each other.

Chelsea won the first half 7-0, but Vincnet fired back in the third and fourth quarter to claim the game at 14-7.

The victory gives Vincent a 9-1 mark to carry into the playoffs against Ohatchee, and ties the Yellow Jacket record for the number of wins in a year.

About the Chelsea game, Vincent coach Harold Garrett said, "We tried to keep our boys from thinking about Ohatchee. I'm sure there were some looking past Chelsea in the backs of their minds, but we knew they'd be up for us. Chelsea always plays us tough."

The Hornets scored late in the first quarter when Kelly Cooper ran over from the four. The touchdown capped a 62 yard drive of nine plays, and was set up by Keith McCuller's passes of 40 and 10 yards to Jock Efferson and Randy Kennedy. Tim Rich added the extra point.

In the second quarter Chelsea drove again. McCullers scored on a 20 yard run, but the points were nullified by a procedure call and Vincent didn't let the pesky Hornets sting again.

Defensively for Chelsea Dennis Jacobs and McCullers recovered fumbles in the first half.

In the second half, despite several injuries due to Chelsea licks, Vincent got serious on defense and got their scoring machine rolling.

Sidney Yowe scored on a 17 yard run which was set up by a 36-yard pass play from James Oden to Dwight Spradley. Rodney Driggers kicked the PAT to tie the score.

Spradley scored early in the fourth quarter when he took in a punt at the Vincent 45 and blasted right back up the middle for a touchdown. Driggers added the extra point.

Chelsea came back with one serious drive that carried 45 yards to the 17 on the running of Cooper and Jack Shaw. But a fourth down play came up short and Vincent took over to run out the clock.

"The key word is they have the speed," said Chelsea coach Daryl Burnham, whose Hornets close 1980 with tough 1-9 record. "We played as hard as we can play. We don't have anything to be ashamed of. Both teams showed a lot of class.

"Vincent just has a super team. I hope coach Garrett and his boys win it all," Burnham ad-

He went on to say he was not pleased with Chelsea's record, but that he was "tremendously proud to have worked with a bunch of kids with so much character, pride and willingness to work."

$3 million industry will move to Pelham

The transplant of a Fairfield industry was announced Monday at the Pelham council meeting by State Representative J.T. "Jabo" Waggoner.

Ensley Manufacturing, Inc., which sells up to $3 million worth of metal furniture and kitchen goods per year, will move to Pelham and be in full swing by February 1, Waggoner told the council.

Waggoner called the news "exciting," and Mayor Burk Dunaway and the council agreed.

Councilman Ken Maynard commented, "I never knew Santa Claus wore a blue suit. This is great.'

The firm has purchased the 30,000 square foot building at 111 Hinds Street which was vacated several months ago by Sharer Building Products.

Nelson Hutcheson, president of Ensley Manufacturing, said remodeling work on the Sharer building would start the next day, Tuesday, and production is scheduled to crank up December

Hutcheson explained that the availability of a good work force was his main consideration in choosing the Pelham location. and added that he would have some 50 people employed there by February.

"I feel like we're going to become a much larger company," he added, noting that his firm already has world-wide distribution.

"It's good to have you in Pelham," Dunaway said.

Alabaster, Pelham okay new shopping center

A new retail shopping center which will straddle the Pelham-Alabaster city limits is going to be built if all the proper cards fall in

Two cards essential to the plan have already been played.

Monday night, the Alabaster and Pelham councils both approved a request by the developers to allow the Shelby County Industrial Development Board to finance the project through the sale of bonds.

The project is being developed by White Investment Company of Birmingham for Alabaster car dealer Sherman Holland, who owns the 20 acre site on Highway

Holland told the Reporter that a large discount chain store and a super market would be the anchor tenants in the proposed 150,000 square foot facility. Possible additions at a later time would place the cost of the project at $8 million, he said.

Holland attended the Pelham council meeting with White's representative, John Screws, who pointed out the area's need to keep shoppers from traveling to Jefferson County department stores. Screws added that the facility would also benefit the area in that it would employ some

The Pelham council approved the request for the bond issue on the condition that an agreement be reached between the city and the industrial board concerning the distribution of tax revenues from the shopping center.

The industrial board will hold title to the project and the revenues will go, first, to the board. If the expected agreement is reached, the board will then pass on the revenues to Pelham and Alabaster.

Some $150,000 in sales taxes and $15,000 in ad valorem taxes will be split between the two cities. How the revenues will be divided has yet to be resolved and will depend on which stores are located in which city. Furthermore, Alabaster has a 2 cent sales tax while Pelham has a 1 cent

Holland later said that the next step in concreting the project will be to contact the leads he has on merchants and do a feasibility study on financing.

"Monday night was the first step in a thousand," he said. "And there can be a lot of slips between the cup and the lip. But we're trying to get this project alive again and hope it goes this

Holland tried to build a shopping center in the same location in 1977, but ran into problems with sewers and obtaining from Pelham the land that lies in that

The current project, he noted, will take some cooperation on the parts of Alabaster and Pelham, especially in the area of utilities.

Actually, it's not harmful to do it anywhere, I guess, as long as you're stationary.

But a couple of recent experiences have shown me that letting the mind wander, while sitting behind the wheel of a car, can be injurious to both health and the pocketbook.

Fortunately, I got off without injury to either. But it was close both times.

Darkness had already fallen on the first occasion as I drove down a road I knew so well. And that was one of the reasons, I guess, my subconscious took over the driving while my thoughts raced ahead to what I was going to be doing the next day.

There were only woods on either side of the highway and no other cars - nothing to distract my reverie.

And wonder of wonders, I didn't even hear a series of rumble strips I drove over which warned of the approaching intersection.

So it was with complete amazement and terror that I suddenly came to and saw a steep bank looming directly in front of me.

If there had been a car coming from either direction on the other road, I'm sure I wouldn't be writing this now.

And if my brakes hadn't been in good working order, I might have been writing this little

Retirement confuses writer

It's alright to daydream if episode from a hospital bed as I

As it was, I managed to come to stop in the ditch running · alongside the embankment. And Lady Luck must have been riding with me that night because I even got out of the ditch without help.

That's the only time that that particular intersection has crept up on me like that. But there's another one where I've gotten in trouble on several occasions.

The last time it happened was Sunday. Being very conscientious - for a change - I decided to catch up on some work at the office.

And what did I get for being so good? A ticket - almost.

It's hard for me to stop where these two roads cross because the view is clear in both directions. Even when my mind is off in the great beyond somewhere, I'm sure - well almost sure - that I look in both directions.

But when a state trooper spies what you've done, having looked in both directions doesn't count.

However, on this occasion I was the first to pounce when the inspecting officer approached my car, ready to issue his little ticket.

"Where were you when I needed you?" I asked as I glared at him accusingly.

He was clearly taken aback, so I continued my attack as I thrust my license at him.

"When I desperately needed some information you had, I couldn't get in touch with you," I scolded, "and now you appear when it's too late and you want to tell me about something I did wrong!"

Maybe, he felt a little guilty. Anyhow, he let me go with nothing but a friendly warning to stop at intersections.

Even though I got off scott free, I learned my lesson that day. I drove all the rest of the way to the office without a single daydream.

I won't say I've never had another since then, but at least my mind hasn't wandered too far afield.

And really, I am trying hard to confine my attention to the road when I'm driving.

But it's hard to hold those daydreams at bay. If you drive past me and I look as though I'm out in space somewhere, honk at me, will you?

You might keep me from scrambling my eggs for good.

I would like to complain about the terrible service offered by the clerks in your office who answer the phone. This morning I spent about 40 minutes trying to get someone to answer the phone. The first 15 or so times I called the line was busy. On the 16th try the phone was answered and then immediately slammed down. I feel that the tax paying citizens of Shelby deserve better service than this!

Sincerely, Robert F. Thomas 2401 Chandabrook Drive Pelham, AL 35124 Editor's note:

Mrs. Reynolds told the Reporter that her office has only two telephone lines, and she has posted two workers to answer the phones during the rush season. She is aware of the fact that the lines are busy most of the time. During one week when one of her workers was ill, and she had no one else to take her place on the telephone, the other worker took down names and telephone numbers only. Mrs. Reynolds said she returned the calls after hours, and on one evening she returned 50 calls.

Letter to the Editor: President Carter was defeated in this past election. But he retires with app. $69,000 per year for the rest of his life. Just for 4 years of work. Also his personal body guards on top of that as long as he lives. I think we should show some appreciation for his services while in office, but I really think this is unfair and unreal. So much benefits for so little time spent in service for his country. I do wonder if his pension is tax free? I'm sure people understand that all of this falls back on the poor taxpayers. Some people hardly get by on their small income per week.

Me, I worked 32 years and had a chance to retire and maybe take life easy for a while. Now I find out I cannot get no where with the salary I receive which is $305:28 per month which amounts to $3,663.36 a year. There is quite a difference shown in these two cases. You go to one of the government agencys to ask for help and they tell you you make to much to receive any help. I am so glad the people elected a man this time that says he will start at the top and do some cutting and maybe get this country back like it should be. Lets all hope and pray he does.

Carpenter Brothers close garage after 60 years

by Marcia M. Sears

On Christmas Eve in 1919 Bill and Brewer Carpenter opened a garage to service the automobiles of Montevallo.

Last week, some 60 years later, they sold their garage and decided to retire, Bill is 80; Brewer is 78, "It's time," they agree.

The garage is the same building on Middle Street that was built by their father to house his shoe repair business and his sons' automobile service shop.

"The Carpenter boys," as they are fondly referred to, grew up with the automobile industry. When they started their garage, they serviced Model T's, 4-cylinder Cadillacs and "Hi-wheel Internationals".

They worked 490-Chevrolets, Durants, the EMF Flanders, Maxwells, and 4-cylinder Buicks. They have repaired the Hudson Super 6 and the Cole 8 - "Bootleggers" favorites," they say, with smiles.

"Now, the Packard straight 8 that was a real automobile," Bill Carpenter recalls with a tinge of popular autos with Montevallo citizens and the Carpenters worked on dozens of them. "That's when they made automobiles good," they remark.

When they opened for business, Middle Street was a dirt road. They had to build a bridge over the ditch so automobiles could drive into their garage. Before city water was available, the brothers kept four barrels hooked up to catch rain water to use in radiators. If it did not rain, they hauled water from the creek.

"Very few roads were paved in those days. We operated a wrecker service and were always getting called out in the night to. pull cars out of the mud."

Light weight cars like the Model T were suited to the road conditions, they remember.

"In those days, if you had a hammer, pliers, a wrench and a chisel you could work on the cars," Bill Carpenter remembers. Now, he says, expensive special tools are needed for every 'different brand of auto.

Hanging high on a ledge over the front office is a brake band from a Model T. Mentioning that engineering is coming around in a circle, Bill Carpenter says the old band is similar to ones now being used on automatic transmissions.

What is better about today's automobiles than those of yesteryear? The Carpenters mention the braking system as the best improved of all features, and they add that power steering is a 'real improvement.'

They have always enjoyed working on autos, but admit, "We don't fool with foreign cars. Wouldn't own one."

Has there always been enough work to do?

"Yes, indeed." When the coal mines were operating near Montevallo, "We had as many as eight Model T's torn down in this shop at one time, and we had helpers."

Paving of the city's streets gave a boost to business, with more people buying cars.

When college students drove state autos to conduct social work studies, the Carpenters did the maintenance work on the Construction of the shopping center gave another boost to the auto business.

The 'boys' have always taken pride in doing good work at fair prices. Their business cards carried their trademark, "We fix 'em all. We fix 'em right. Wrecker service, day or night."

They have stood by honesty as the best policy throughout their long careers. "If we don't know what's wrong, we tell the customer," they say.

Last year they were honored by the Montevallo Chamber of Commerce as being in business longer than anyone else in the area.

Their memories and their work span a major part of Montevallo history. Now they are looking forward to spending more time with their families and perhaps doing a little traveling.

North Shelby fire district will act on delinquent accounts

If you live in North Shelby County and have delinquent fire dues, it's time to get a move on-one way or the other.

The North Shelby County Fire District board of trustees voted at their monthly meeting to start foreclosure proceedings on all delinquent accounts. By law, the board has the power to place a lien on anyone's house if the owner has not paid dues.

According to trustee John van Pelt, some 275 accounts are now outstanding. These people will first receive notice by registered letter that foreclosure procedures are beginning and shortly thereafter, legal notices on the public auction of their houses will appear for three weeks in the newspaper.

Van Pelt said he expected most of the delinquent accounts to pay before the proceedings are completed. "We get all sorts of reasons why these late payments shouldn't have to be made, but we have a rule and we have to stick with it," he noted.

Last week, at the regular monthly meeting of the trustees, one resident of the fire district showed up to formally protest his late fee. William Caldwell, who lost his bid for a seat on the board in the last election, explained that his mortgage holder had sent his late fee to tax collector Fay Quick, van Pelt said.

Nonetheless, the board turned down Caldwell's request to drop the late fee.

Also at the meeting the board elected officers. John Pruett was elected president, Larry Dillard and Butch Roberson were named vice presidents, Martha Geyer was elected secretary and van Pelt will again be treasurer.

The board appointed Sammy Self, a Pelham CPA, to examine the fire district's books for the 1980 fiscal year. Self was chosen from among three accountants who bid for the job.

The board holds regular open meetings the first Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at the fire hall on Valleydale Road.

terns are now among the most popular for teen apparel.

"Some of these fabrics are too cute to be confined to the bedroom," Ponder noted.

By showing some of the outfits that can be created with the fabric used for blankets, sheets and towels, Ponder said she hoped women who sew would be inspired to whip up some original creations.

She mentioned that it had taken 71/2 yards of sheeting to make a blouse modeled at the show which had been designed for Vogue patterns by Bill Blass.

Since each child will get a participation award, the committee asks that you pre-register your float with the names of the people who will be working on it. In this way there will be enough awards for each person.

The parade will take place on Saturday Dec. 6 at 3 p.m. Registration is due by November

Mr. Shaw came to Montevallo from Goodwater when he was a young man. He has always been associated with the automotive field in automotive repair, parts and at one time had a Pontiac agency. He is a veteran of World War II and has been retired for several years. Mrs. Shaw is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William J. Mitchell, long time

Montevallo dentist.

Friends and family of the couple came by during the afternoon to wish them well. Mr. and Mrs. Shaw have lived in Montevallo all of their married life and have been most active in their church and in civic affairs.

Columbiana Brownies grow, grow, and split

Just like Topsy, the Brownie troop in Columbiana just grew and grew.

In fact, the troop became so large, it had to be divided into two troops. And one of the leaders confided that there are enough girls on the waiting list for still another troop.

The only catch seems to be finding a leader and volunteers to help out.

During the month of November, the two troops have. been collecting clothes for the Salvation Army.

Joyce Willis is the leader of troop 360 and Gail Ford has that responsibility for troop 354 which organized this year.

troop began in the spring of 1979 and this year, because of the large turnout, the girls spilled over into a new troop.

Notices of deaths frequently reach the Shelby County Reporter office directly from the families of the deceased. But many families at the time of their bereavement, understandably do not think about the newspaper notice. The Reporter tries to telephone the two Shelby County funeral homes each week to get the information. We find however, that the families often do not give complete information to the funeral homes, and this can lead to inaccuracies and misspellings in the printed notice.

At other times, the Reporter staff is too busy to make the telephone calls, and sometimes the staff at the funeral homes is too busy to take the calls.

We would prefer receiving notices directly from the families, in order to avoid confusion and the heartache that can occur when the name of a survivor is listed incorrectly.

Ohatchee stings Yellow Jackets with sharp, swift, 16-6 punch

Two things happened to Vincent in regional playoffs. First, they played the quickest and probably the best team they've played all year. Secondly, Vincent just didn't quite click, just didn't quite seem like, well, Vin-

The Ohatchee Indians defeated the Vincent Yellow Jackets 16-6 on Shelby County soil Friday night, claiming a well deserved championship in region four and advancing to round two of the 2-A state playoffs.

While donning pads in the gym before the game, the Jackets talked calmly among themselves, trying to generate the right spark.

"Get your heads right. It's all in the head, now" attested Dwight Spradley. Rodney Driggers was telling teammates, "Do or die." And Dennis Datcher chanted "Injun' bootie. Injun' bootie."

One wouldn't call Vincent's spirit flat. It wasn't that. It's just that the team appeared so calm. Too calm. The electrical charge the Jackets usually generate didn't quite tingle right in the air.

Vincent started out driving but lost a fumble at its own 41. Five plays later Ohatchee kicked a 24-yard field goal.

Then Vincent ran three plays and punted. Two plays later Ohatchee exploded with a sideline pass good for 68 yards and six points. The PAT at 3:40 in the first quarter put Vincent down 10-0 and left a stunned silence over a normally excited home crowd.

A Brain Hartsfield fumble recovery near the 50, coupled with roughing the kicker call helped Vincent move down as close as the 22. But when the half ended the score was still 10-0.

It didn't stay that way long, however, as Ohatchee fired out into the second half with a 60-yard drive and scored in eight plays. The PAT missed but the Injuns were on top to stay.

Defensively, the Indians corked the Jackets with a swift lateral pursuit nearly always followed by the hard popping of pads.

A Travis Thomas interception at the four saved Vincent from a deeper hole. The Jackets then drove all the way to Ohatchee's seven, but a fumble ended the threat of a comeback.

Vincent finally got on the board with :39 left in the game when Sidney Yowe scored from inside the one. The touchdown drive covered 96 yards in 13 plays, including a 24 yard run by Yowe and clutch passes from James Oden to Spradley and Datcher. But the pass for two missed and Vincent fell 16-6.

While Ohatchee moves on to perhaps even happier hunting grounds, Vincent, under first year head coach Harold Garrett and staff, ends a highly respectable season with a 9-2 mark.

Said Garrett, "All in all we've had a real good year. This group is exceptionally close. They didn't exactly abound with talent, but they did great and worked together to minimize mistakes. The kids did the best they could 99 times out of a 100, and we had some real high percentage players."

Preseason, Garrett had been concerned over the Jackets defense which graduated ten starters. But after giving up 20 points in a winning effort against Abrams, Vincent's defense clamped down and allowed an average of only 7.45 points per game. The defense handed out goose eggs to Lincoln, Winterboro, Shelby County and Calera.

Meanwhile, the quick, often explosive offense, rolled up 200 points in 11 games.

Garrett had a lot of praise for Ohatchee, but noted, too, that Vincent's spark wasn't quite right. "We weren't at our peak emotionally as the game started. That's my fault. Next year we'll be better prepared."

He pointed out with pride, however, that Vincent did fight back with the late scoring drive.

A lot of people in northeast Shelby County would say that last score was just more proof that, "Vincent never says die."

Thompson Warriors fall to Mustang kick in regional playoffs

No one can accuse the Thompson Warriors of not putting up a good fight. But no one can say Stanhope Elmore didn't put up a good--even better--fight, too.

Stanhope's wild Mustangs had to fight from behind twice before downing an upset-minded pack of Warriors who traveled to Millbrook intent on claiming the region four championship and the right to play in round two of the state 3-A playoffs.

Although the Warriors met with familiar bad luck in the playoff game, they still finished the 1980 season with a strong 9-2 showing, good enough to win them a hotly contested area championship.

"They came a long way-further than I thought." said head coach Larry Simmons of his Warriors. "I was proud of our team for the way they did this year. They made a contribution to Thompson football that'll help down the road."

As for his team's performance Friday in Millbrook, Simmons could only say, "It's no shame to be beat by Stanhope. But I don't know why we lost. We were high as kites with six minutes to go. Then bang, bang, bang.

"When you play as hard as we did, it's too bad someone has to lose," he added.

Briarwood, Vincent win first cross country Editor's Note: This is the first finished second with 56 points, in a series of articles written by

Reporter sports editor David Moore, dealing with the paradoxical growth and decline of track and running programs in Shelby

To get to grandmother's house one goes over the river and through the woods.

To win the Shelby County Cross Country Championship, however, one has to go over the golf course and through Chelsea. But you can't use a sled. You have to run.

And that's just what Briarwood's Jeff Little and Vincent's Marjorie Hall did last Saturday as they outpaced all other competition to claim first places in their respective divisions at the first annual meeting of the county's growing number of cross country track teams.

In team standings, Briarwood finished first place in both the boys' and girls' divisions, with low scores of 33 and 26 points respectively. Under the direction of coach Bobby Scott, Briarwood's running program has earned a lot of respect throughout Alabama, as well as Shelby County.

Vincent's girls placed a close second in team standings with 33 points, and Chelsea came in third with 77.

The event was held at the old Indian Valley golf course on highway 47 in Chelsea, and the three-mile boys' course and the two-mile girls' course followed the dirt loop road over the wet, rolling hills.

In girls' competition, Hall clocked a time of 14:10, followed hotly by Janine Stover of Briarwood with a 14:13. Teresa Thomas of Vincent finished third at 14:59.

In boys' competition, Little ran an 18:20 race, followed by teammate Tyler Nash at 18:46 and Lester Gaiter of Thompson

Vincent's track program is headed up by coaches Jim Barnes and Debbie Jackson. Barnes organized the county cross country meet and said he was pleased with the turnout, which saw 25 girls and 37 boys enter the two races. Only Indian Springs, which was to enter three boys and three girls, did not show up on the wet, overcast morning.

Coach Scott, too, commented that the turnout was excellent, and noted that more schools actually participated in the cross country than in the county outdoor championships last spring.

Herein lies the paradox of track and running programs in Shelby County. On one hand, besides Briarwood and Vincent, schools like Thompson, Chelsea and Calera are showing strong interest in track. At the same time, interest at other county schools appears to be declining.

Deer season for guns in Alabama opens Friday, November 21 and runs through January 19, 1981.

Hunters in Shelby County and elsewhere will be able to take one buck a day, providing it has bare antlers above the natural hairline. Dog, stalk, gun and bow hunting are all lawful during this period, but no hunting at night with lamps is allowed.

Also on the fair game list for this period are wild turkey gobblers. The limit is one per day, not to exceed five total for both the fall and spring season, which runs from March 20-April 25 of next year.

Hunter's choice, except for spotted fawns, opens for two days December 26-27, so wait until them before shooting a doe.

Although no exact figures were available, conservation enforcement officer Doyle Wood told the Reporter that last deer season was considered "pretty fair,"

Coosa Valley topples

The jinx remains in effect.

In four postseason trips to Alabama Private School Association playoffs, Coosa Valley Academy has yet to win.

This year, flying a number one statewide ranking in their class, and playing with a home field advantage, the Rebels lost to the fourth ranked Springwood Wildcats.

The score of the game was

The name of the game was a fumble here, an interception there and numerous five-yard penalties which always seemed to come on gains of 25-35 yards.

In summing up CVA's 1980 football season, head coach Mark Green noted, "We've won some games maybe we shouldn't have, and we've lost some we shouldn't have."

And he'll tell you quick as a flash that the Springwood game falls soundly into category number two.

"Mistakes, mistakes, mistakes," moaned Green. "You wouldn't believe it."

The first telling mistake of the game occurred late in the first quarter when a Coosa Valley halfback pass was intercepted by a Springwood lineman. From the Rebel 20, the Wildcats drove for a touchdown in five plays, then added the PAT to go on top 7-0.

After swapping punts, the Rebels put together a good drive, moving down to Springwood's two-yard line. But once again, mistakes took their toll and with ten seconds to go in the half, Coosa Valley fumbled into the end zone.

In the third quarter, after a Rebel punt, Springwood put together its best drive of the night, owning the ball for nine minutes while moving towards paydirt. But the Coosa Valley defense forced the Cats to kick a field goal, keeping them within comeback range at 10-0.

Comebacks, however, were scarce in Alabama and Shelby County last weekend. And Harpersville was certainly no exat the Springwood 30. But no more points were to be scored that night in Harpersville. A fourth and one situation came up short and when the scoreboard clock finally played out, the Rebels, too, found themselves coming up short.

"We pretty well did what we wanted to-except score," Green said. "And when it counted, they got what they needed. That's happened to us the last several

Shelby Academy falls

Season ends on opening note

Irony completed a cruel circle Friday night in Eutaw, Alabama.

The Shelby Academy Raiders, after losing their opening game to Coosa Valley 12-10, went on to down nine straight opponents, earning them a trip to the playoffs and the number three ranking in the Alabama Private School Association's 2-A standings. Then, against the Warrior Academy Braves of Eutaw, the Raiders fell again, this time by a score of 14-10.

To look at statistics only, one would think Shelby Academy had beaten both Coosa Valley and Warrior handily. But footballs aren't round and sometimes stats don't tell the whole story.

* * * *

After winning the coin toss, Shelby threw an interception on the third play of the game. The Braves returned it 20 yards to the ten and scored two plays later. Although the proud Shelby defense gave up the touchdown and PAT, the seven-yard scoring run was one of the Warriors longest gainers of the night.

Frustrations grew in the second quarter when Dirk Carson's 30-yard pass play to Terry Crabb for six apparent points was nullified by a holding call.

A roughing the kicker call a few moments later, however, put James Knowles within field goal range and he hit true from 26 yards out. The score at the half stood 7-3.

Adding to the frustrations was this bit of confusion on Warrior's kickoff return at the top of the third quarter. Several Raiders hit the runner, appeared to have him stopped, and later said they had assumed the play had been blown dead. They laughed as the runner wobbled, regained his balance and darted 75 yards to score. The laughter stopped when the referee signaled touchdown and attested that no whistle had been blown. The PAT upped the spread to

The Raiders had several third quarter drives stall out to a defense that was no laughing matter, and it wasn't until midway into the final period that they scored again.

Both hampered and helped by penalties, Shelby capped a 55-yard, 15-play drive with a 29-yard Carson-Crabb aerial to score. Knowles added the PAT, making the score 14-10.

Shelby's last chance to win fell to the pressure of Warrior's pass rush with nine seconds left in the game.

"It was a long game for us and a good game for them," said head coach Harry Rawlinson afterwards. "I hated it for the seniors more than anything else."

Commenting on the season, Rawlinson noted, "All I can say is this is a super bunch of kids. Looking at the stats we've been outscored twice, but we haven't been beaten all year. Win or lose we had a total team effort.

"Kids like this make a coach look good," Rawlinson added. "There's not enough room in the paper to put all the things I could say about each one of these guys."

IMS nips Briarwood

"You can think of a thousand things you could have done..." Briarwood head coach Gary Fleming paused, considering his Lions' 7-6 loss Saturday night to IMS in the Alabama Christian Athletic Conference 3-A championship.

"It's disappointing, but I have no tears. No regrets. I was glad we played in the championship. It's better than the team that finished third.

"IMS has a great team, but I'd rather be coach of my guys than the coach for IMS. These boys are champions. They played like champions all year and they had the toughest schedule Briarwood has ever had. They played their hearts out and I never felt like they were giving less than the best.

"You learn from these times," Fleming noted. "You learn from the things you did wrong and you learn to build on your strengths. It's building this kind of character that these boys will take into the future--that's what it's all about."

Earlier in the year the Independent Methodist School Crusaders traveled to North Shelby County from Mobile and held off a late charge by the Lions to win 21-16.

Saturday's game was closer still. Besides the slim 7-6 board score, the Crusader's 199 yards offense edged Briarwood's ball moving ability by only one hash mark.

Furthermore, as the saying goes, football is a game of inches. Had Briarwood's extra point attempt been a few inches to the right, had a rushing Lion's arms been a few inches longer when IMS kicked its extra point, had someone not held once, had someone else not fumbled...

"You can think of a thousand things..."

After a 37-yard run by Mike Schor in the early going, it appeared Briarwood would march straight in for the score. A fumble at the eight, however, gave IMS possession. But Briarwood got it right back when Marty Angwin jumped on a loose ball still inside the 10.

On third and one Stephen Lindsey blasted over for the touchdown. The score came at 5:15 in the first quarter.

Significantly, the extra point kick missed the left upright by a few inches.

The hard hitting Crusaders punched right back with a 67-yard drive to score in seven plays. The touchdown came on a 30-yard pass to the left flats, with the receiver cutting clear across the field to score. The PAT was good and IMS took what looked to be a fragile lead with three quarters and 1:27 left to play.

But the lead proved to be a lot tougher than it looked.

In the second quarter the Lions put together a march from their 38 with Jim Bradford and Schor doing most of the running. But a holding penalty on second and goal backed them up to the 19. IMS let them get no closer than the five and took over on downs.

In the third quarter Lions drove to the 28 and fumbled, and late in the fourth quarter they failed to convert on a fourth and four in IMS territory.

IMS drove inside the 30 in the third period, but the Lions held on fourth and three. Later, an IMS field goal missed from the 26, and Mitch Wolfe recovered a fumble at Briarwood's 38 to stop another threat.

Briarwood closed the season with a 6-4 record.

LEGAL NOTICE Request for Comments Alabama Air Pollution Control Commission (Permit to Construct Sought by S I Lime Company of Saginaw Alabama)

On August 6, 1980, S I Lime Com pany applied to the Alabama Air Pollution Control Commission (AAPCC), pursuant to Section 16.1.1 of the Alabama Air Pollution Control Rules and Regulations, for a Permit to Construct a lime kiln with associated equipment. The site of the proposed operation is at the company's existing plant in Saginaw. The installation is subject to the requirements of the Federal Program for the Prevention of Significant Deterioration (PSD). The relevant purposes of the PSD requirements are set forth in Sections 101(b)(1) and 160 of the Clean Air Act, as amended, 42 U.S.C. 7401 et seq.: to prevent algnifi-cant deterioration of air quality and to assure that any decision to permit in-creased air pollution is made only after careful evaluation and informed public participation. A preliminary PSD determination including requirements for control of sulfur dioxide (SO2) and particulates (TSP) which represents the applica-tion of Best Available Control Technology, has been made by the technical staff of the AAPCC.

The PSD regulations require that the maximum allowable increase over baseline concentrations for sulfur dioxide, (SO2), not exceed an annual arithmetic mean of 20 mici per cubic meter (ug/m3), a 24-hour maximum of 91 ug/m3 or a 3-hour maximum of 512 ug/m3 for Class II The PSD regulations also require that the maximum allowable increase over baseline concentration for total nded particulates (TSP) not exceed an annual geometric mean of 19 ug/m3 and a 24-hour maximum of 37 Model calculations using screing techniques indicate that the degree of increment consumption should be insignificant for both SO2 and TSP A thirty-day public comment period will be held in order to receive data and additional information relative to the permit application and the preliminary PSD determination. A public hearing may also be held as provided under the requirements for the PSD program if sufficient coments are received relative to this ap-Copies of the information submit ted by S I Lime Company, along with the air quality analysis, and the preliminary PSD determination, are available for public inspection at the Office of the Judge of Probate of Shelby County in Columbiana.

Work now, play later

Entire families turned out Saturday to put up an 'instant' playground at the Helena Elementary School. Youngsters wasted no time in trying out the 14 pieces of equipment such as the tire trail above. Tires, poles and chains were donated to construct the creative equipment which includes an A frame climber, chinning bar, balance beam, a tire jungle and swing.

Landfills face closing; new site to be opened

The county landfills at Calera and at Helena are nearly filled to capacity.

County engineer Gary Ray told the Reporter they will have to be closed soon. The county is preparing plans for a new landfill site about four miles west of Columbiana, he said. Ray said that cover material is the problem at the Calera landfill site, which is the county's oldest landfill, and was the first county landfill in the state.

Last year the county acquired extra acreage at Calera, and thought it would be enough for about three years. However, cover dirt is in such short supply that in a few months it will be used up. Trash and garbage have to be covered with a certain amount of cover material to meet state health specifications. The Helena landfill site has other problems, with rock being the leading one, Ray indicated.

"When you get down to about half the depth you should go, you get to hard sand rock," Ray says.

"Blasting is out of the question, because Helena sits on pipelines. When you go east of the current landfill, you hit a slope, on the west you hit rock, private property is on the south. and the road is on the north."

Ray hopes that by early spring the new landfill can be open. The problem is pressing, because dozens of trucks roll into the Calera and Helena locations daily with solid waste. The county's other landfill, at Westover, is apparently available for the immediate future.

The county engineer said the property the county wants to develop consists of 100 acres owned by Gulf States Paper Company on highway 70 about four and a half miles east of the highway 31 intersection at Dargin.

He said the site is acceptable to state authorities but the county will have to do a topo survey and submit a compete plan to the state for approval before landfill operations can begin.

The primary problem in locating landfills in Shelby County involves the leaching of gases from the items that are covered.

Gases can move into water supplies if conditions are not right, he said. Clay soils are best for preventing this because it tends to seal up the gases. Sandy and granular soils can be problems, and shale creates other problems, he noted.

Calera development looking up

The outlook for the industrial development of Calera is favorable, according to a report the town council heard last week.

Ed Pitchford of the Alabama Power company's industrial development department told the council, "Calera stands on the threshold of growth. The location of Calera in relation to Birmingham and Montgomery, its transportation services, and land prices are all in Calera's favor." He was invited to address the council as part of the push to attract more development to the

In other business, the council voted to place two high pressure sodium lights on the dark spots on north Highway 31.

The council heard an update on the sewerage treatment plant from engineer Ben Carr. He said

Holidays kicked off with Montevallo spree

Montevallo's third annual Holiday Shopper's Spree will kick off the Christmas Holiday shopping season on Thursday, December 4.

This year's Shopping Spree will begin with a parade through the downtown streets. The parade is scheduled to start at 6:30 p.m.

Among the features of the parade will be high school bands, floats, fire fighting equipment, police cars and Santa Claus will arrive in town aboard the city's

Many Montevallo merchants will be featuring special sales events during the two-hour event. Most of the city's stores will remain open until 8:30 p.m.

A professional photographer will be on hand to take pictures of children with Santa Claus.

The Centrala Gaden Club, one of the co-sponsors of the Shopping Spree, will be selling handmade Christmas decorations and actual construction of the plant might begin in eary 1982. The entire project will cost in the neighborhood of $4 million, with the town paying for about 25 percent of it.

Calera's water users are now paying a sewage fee to meet the future expenditure.

Don Loftin, speaking for the Calera Baptist Church, asked that the town close an alley beteen the church and the city hall. He said the church will need the area for additional parking when its new sanctuary is finished. Action was delayed on the proposal until the costs of closing the alley were compiled.

Police Chief Harry Deal asked that patrolman C.P. Martin be promoted to the rank of sergeant. Councilmen Jeff Pilgreen, Bob Loftin and Roy Hadaway voted in favor of the motion. Councilmen Doug LeSueur and W.B. Watts abstained.

Martin will assume the rank of sergeant on December 1.

Mayor Carl Prichard announced the reappointment of James Miles as Fire Chief of the Calera Volunteer Fire Department. Prichard also commended Miles for his long service to the town.

Loftin was named to serve the remainder of Carl Wooten's term on the park and recreation board. Wooten resigned his position last week leaving two years remaining on his term. Loftin, Larry Franks, Doug LeSueur, and Jack Bullard were named to serve five year terms on the board. Betty Bradley and Ruth McPherson were appointed as auxiliary

Making tracks

Calera eighth grader Dan Campbell sprints down the front straight-away of the recently completed Oliver Park track. Athletes at Thompson High School also have a new track facility, indicating further interest in a sport previously dominated in Shelby County by Vincent and Briarwood. The matter is studied in an article on page 15 of the Reporter's sports section. (Photo by David Moore)

To recycle or not--Columbiana eyes issue

"This won't be any shoestring operation," Columbiana businessman Benny Davis told members of the city's governing body Thursday evening.

Davis appeared before the council with a proposal to recycle the city's waste materials.

But the panel decided not to make any commitments without further investigation.

Because of adequate financing for an enclosed building and the proper equipment, Davis claimed that he would be able to handle the operation satisfactorily at his present location on hwy. 25.

The recycling business, which is near two churches, has caused criticism because of the odor and smoke from burning and its unsightly appearance.

Davis said he had another piece of property where he could put the new operation, but it would be further away and would cost

Explaining that his proposal would save the city money, Davis said the charge for a compactor truck load of garbage would be

At the present time, the city transports garbage to the Calera landfill which charges $11.25 per load. Added to that is the cost of gasoline for a round trip which amounts to approximately $24.

The state, Davis said, is issuing him a letter of permission to proceed with the operation, and he assured the panel that all the necessary permits would be ob-

A matter of urgent concern called to the attention of the panel by finance committee member Jessie Jones, concerned revenue sharing money.

It was decided that with the swift approach of the deadline for the passage of a bill, a telegram should be sent to the two senators from this district. Support of the senate version of the bill, which the council supports, would provide the funds for a five year period. It was pointed out that the failure of a bill to pass would result in the loss of these badly needed funds for a year.

When the request for a roadblock was mentioned, the city learned that ball had been tossed back to them by the state.

When the Church of God of Prophecy had asked for permission to raise funds at the intersection of Highways 70 and 25 at a previous meeting, the council told them that permission had to come from the State Highway Department.

But the state claimed it was not their responsibility either. So until a policy can be worked out, the council gave the church the green

Roberts makes it clear that the state office of DPS conducts the licensing investigations; the county office does not. She said that the current person assigned to Shelby County has day care facilities in 13 counties to inspect.

Under state law licensing is required if a center operates for more than four hours a day. This exempts kindergarten-type operations which hold morning or afternoon-only sessions.

"This will be here for their grandchildren to play on," declared Tom Jambor, as he looked at the playground equipment Helena residents were constructing Saturday.

Even before it was daylight, volunteers had begun arriving at the elementary school to start work on the "instant" playground.

And by 5 p.m., all of the 14 pieces of equipment designed by Jambor were up and ready for

An associate professor of early childhood development at UAB, Jambor pointed out that one of the most important benefits of the "do it yourself" project was that it drew the community together.

He compared it to an old fashioned barn raising.

And the UAB prof also noted the savings in money. If the equipment had been ordered from a catalog, it would have cost $35,000, Jambor said.

But with donations from area businesses and volunteer labor, the cost of the playground only came to $1,000.

In addition to the backhoes and tractors which were used without charge, the free materials donated to the playground consisted of earth mover tires, piping, poles, and chain.

Youngsters accompanied their parents to the school, helped where they could, and tested the equipment as it went up.

"Everyone gets a feeling of accomplishment and pride from having done the work themselves," Jambor noted.

pieces of equipment, he related that all were designed for "creative" play and were arranged so the child could go directly from one piece to another.

The balance beam, bars and other pieces of equipment would even be suitable for adults to use, Jambor said.

According to PTA President, John Mills, the "instant" playground was just the first phase in the organization's project to develop the grounds behind the elementary school.

He said that land had already been graded for one ballfield and that another area would be graded to give younger children a field on which to play.

The playground project, he related, was originated by Helena teacher Diane Ellis.

Joe Coggins was the main

PTA members cooked breakfast and provided lunch for workers who took part in the undertaking.

Day care needs public support

Good day care for young children is desperately needed in Shelby County.

The county has eight day care centers that are licensed by the Alabama Department of Pensions and Security, but they cannot take care of all the children who need good day care.

The situation came to public attention recently with the disclosure of one day care center that has been operating in Pelham without state licensing. There are others.

The public has kept its head in the sand for too long on the subject of day care. Traditionalists argue that children should be at home with 'mother,' and they will not support efforts of private or public groups to provide day pressures facing young families today make it almost imperative for mothers to work outside the home. Mortgage payments, food bills, utility bills and gasoline costs can simply not be met by most one income families.

In today's mobile society, grandmothers, aunts and other family members usually do not live nearby and cannot help the young family care for the youngsters. If there is a grandmother near, she is probably working too.

Then too, there are far more single parents than we realize, who must find someone to care for their young children while

There is a large number, larger than we care to admit, of young mothers who are totally untrain-However, the financial ed in how to care for their babies, and who are also totally untrained for employment. Many of these mothers receive public assistance.

These women need day care centers while they train for jobs, and again later when they find employment. Contrary to popular belief, there are many success stories in Shelby County from this group of women, who have found jobs and become at least partially self-supporting.

The State of Alabama has good laws governing the licensing of day care centers, but the public must show more concern to help the DPS enforce the laws. At present, for instance, the person in charge of day care licensing in Shelby County also has that responsibility in 12 other counties. She cannot possibly oversee all the centers that spring up in all those counties without help. Parents should take the simple precaution of asking to see the license at any center where they leave their children. It is supposed to be posted in a prominent

But a license does not guarantee kindness or loving care or good learning opportunities for the children. Parents need to look into that for themselves.

But until the general public attitude changes and accepts the need and the usefulness of day care, unscrupulous people will take advantage of young parents by opening businesses which they call 'day care centers' but which do not provide good service, and which may actually be damaging to children.

Investigators' pay system 'illegal'

County commissioners are looking into irregularities in the way four investigators in the sheriff's department are being paid.

They have been told by auditors from the State Department of Examiners of Public Accounts that they cannot legally pay the investigators by the system they are now using.

Commissioner Harold Davenport asked Sheriff Buddy Glasgow at Monday's commission meeting to recommend another system of compensation for Investigators Tom Barnes, Sonny Davenport, John Pratt and Reed Smith.

The commission was asked several months ago to give the men extra pay for the long hours they work. The commission agreed, and authorized pay on the basis of a sergeant's pay schedule. Commissioners did this rather than authorize overtime, because all county employees had been taken off overtime.

As soon as this extra pay was authorized however, the investigators reportedly went to the Law Enforcement Personnel Board and asked for overtime. That board authorized it. Now the men are getting both, and the state has ruled it illegal.

Some of the men are apparently being paid more than the sheriff, and the commissioners agreed that was not a good idea.

The personnel board came in for strong criticism at the

New phone - no secretary to answer it

The Law Enforcement Personnel Board recently had a phone installed for their secretary, but now they have no one to answer it.

At their meeting Thursday evening, Board Chairman Teddy Brasher announced that Brenda Parsons had resigned to take a job at the courthouse.

Parsons's resignation is effec-

In their discussion for a replacement, the panel decided that the job should only be part time because the major portion of the work is now out of the

Baptists study options

Although Brookwood and Shelby Memorial Hospitals are now planning to build a health care center in Riverchase, the Baptist Hospitals should not be counted out.

"We have every reason to remain interested in that area," Bob Howerton told the Reporter. Howerton is the Public Relations Director for Baptist Hospitals.

He said the Baptists, who had asked for approval to build a center before the Brookwood-Shelby proposal was made, have several options to pursue. No decisions as to which options would be the best have yet been made, he added.

He indicated the Baptists have many supporters in the area and "We will address that need as best we can."

openings that may occur during the year.

The board also noted that all complaints and questions concerning status have been cleard up.

Applications that are received for the secretary's position will be reviewed at the next meeting.

A test for those interested in advancing to the rank of sergeant was given Nov. 1, and Brasher told the panel that seven of the twelve men taking the examination had passed.

Joe Curtin, who administered the test, was to discuss scores Saturday with those who were interested in knowing more about

The names of the deputies making the highest marks will then be presented to the sheriff so he can pick the number he needs.

Brasher and Mickey Johnson were reelected to their offices of chairman and secretary. And the panel decided to set Nov. 1 as the date to elect officers each year.

Sherman Bridge of Pelham was low bidder for four sections of pre-cast bridge curbing that the county needs for a bridge on county highway 22.

Sherman's bid was $3200. Gadsden Concrete and Metal Pipe Company entered a bid of $4200 and Choctaw Company of Montgomery bid $4089.

The annual report on landfill collections was given to the commission by letter from Carlton Franks, solid waste supervisor. He reported that 65,647,000 pounds of waste were buried at the three landfill sites in the county during the year. The Helena landfill took nearly 39 million pounds; Calera absorbed nearly 13 million, and the landfill at Westover took in over 14 million pounds.

Total money collected from sale of permits at the three sites was $82,984.

Franks is on an extended sick leave, and during his absence the commission voted to have the county highway department take over supervision of the landfills.

Grants covering the salaries of the CETA workers at the three landfills will run out by the first of the year, Probate Judge Tommy Snowden announced. The commission agreed not to replace them, because their salaries would cost more than the expected income at the landfills.

County engineer Gary Ray asked the commission to approve emergency action in repairing a Caterpillar D-7 that broke down at the Westover landfill. The engine and undercarriage went out, leaving the county without enough equipment to handle minimum needs.

Cost of the repair was about $15,000. Ray said the department could not have waited the four to six weeks required for taking bids. The commission agreed that the situation was an emergency. The Caterpillar was scheduled for major repair later in the year, and an amount had been set aside in the budget for the repair, Ray said.

Heflin backs lasers

U.S. Senator Howell Heflin of Alabama has introduced a bill to create the National Laser Institute to direct and coordinate a national all-out effort to develop laser technology.

"The invention of the laser ranks among the most significant scientific discoveries of the 20th Century, with the potential to rival the importance of nuclear energy and the computer," Heflin said.

United Way tops $8.2 million

In a year of economic hardships, the 1980 United Way campaign has surpassed its goal of $8.2 million.

John W. Woods, chairman of the board of Alabama Bancorporation and 1980 United Way campaign general chairman, announced the final pledged amount of $8,211,349 on November 18. This marks the 58th consecutive year that the campaign has reached, or surpassed, its goal.

The United Way serves 46 agencies in Shelby, Jefferson and Walker counties, with services ranging from alcoholism rehabilitation to youth programs. Last year, one out of every four persons in the three-county area benefited from those services.

Over 5,000 area volunteers gave their time, talent and efforts to this year's campaign, while 32 sponsored executives from private industries dedicated ten weeks to United Way activities.

The 1980 campaign began at a financial disadvantage because of numerous area plant closing and layoffs. Compared to 1979's campaign, which raised $8.1 million, those closings represented $1 million in contributions lost to this year's campaign.

"The United Way growth had been about $700,000 a year, but with this immediate loss of $1 million, we cautiously set the 1980 goal at $8.2 million. We were going into this campaign with the largest increase in history while facing the worst economic outlook in 25 years," said Woods.

"The success of the campaign was the unselfish giving spirit of the people. More than looking at the dollar figure or a percentage, people looked at the critical nature of the situation and showed a great deal of human compassion," Woods said.

Woods also said that 42 companies or institutions contributed 100 percent more than in 1979.

"That means that the employees of those 42 organizations doubled their contributions, and I think that is remarkable," Woods said.

In Columbiana

Younger generation speaks out

Although they were too young to vote, two Columbiana youngsters were pulling for Jessie Jones to win a council seat during the last election.

The reason was her promise to try and get a MacDonalds or some other fast food chain to locate in Columbiana.

As Lassie and Joshua Jones were introduced to members of the council by their grandmother Thursday night, the councilwoman said, "You're going to be hearing a lot from these two."

During a discussion on the subject of whether eating places would find it feasible to locate in the town, Mayor Buck Falkner remarked that when the economy gets better, "they'll come."

Falkner mentioned that he too, had received requests from young people in the community. What they had wanted, the mayor reported, was recreational facilities.

A letter from the Vignette Club urged the council to investigate the needs of the city and citizens.

It was pointed out that the city park and the facilities there are in poor condition. The club also stressed the importance of giving assistance to the library.

"We stand to lose if we continue to neglect it," the letter stated.

Other business:

After a discussion on obtaining the easements on property which the JBL Corporation had developed, the panel turned down the proposal.

It had been the recommendation of the city's attorney not to take over possession of the easements since the city could be held liable in case of an accident on that land.

The reason for the city's being asked to take the easements was because they were of no use to JBL and taxes still had to be paid on them.

Parents learn from film

The sound of a balloon popping at Montevallo Elementary School Thursday morning, was an illustratration of a myth being destroyed.

The fallacy being put to rest was the belief that teaching should be left to the schools.

And parents attending the Title I workshop were told that they played an important part in the educational process.

One of the films shown during the session was entitled, "Parents Are Teachers."

Ed Stephens, the State Department of Education person responsible for Title 1 parent activities, was one of the program participants.

He pointed out that Alabama is a leader in developing audiovisual materials to train parents.

And he stressed to heads of the PAC that their role was to "teach and educate parents in the ways they can help their children."

Hunt for trademarks sparks sorority fun

Trying to get the most trademarks faster than anyone else was the name of the game for members of Xi Alpha Upsilon at a recent social gathering.

The challenging activity was called a trademark scavenger hunt. And the family evening also included a bidding on box suppers made by members of the sorority.

Another recent social event was a city council dance which was attended by ten couples from the chapter.

A bazaar to raise money for charity was proclaimed a success with $500 being taken in.

An ongoing project of the sorority is to pay regular visits to 80 year old Georgine Ames, the group's adopted grandmother.

Plans for a Christmas party on Dec. 13 are being made by social chairman Barbara Gilbert.

Girls' track team at Vincent wins second place in state

Led by Marjorie Hall and Teresa Thomas, Vincent girls continued their run to glory last weekend by claiming second place in the state 2-A cross country track meet.

The event, held Saturday at Joe Wheeler State Park near Florence, drew some 40 girls from eight schools across Alabama. Randolph, a private school, scored 55 points to win the girls' competition for the third straight year.

Coached by Debbie Jackson, now in her fourth year at Vincent, the Shelby County girls proved plenty fast enough to pick up 72 points and the second place

Hall, who was the top finishing girl two weeks ago in the first Shelby County cross country track meet, finished seventh overall last Saturday. She was closely followed by teammate Thomas in eighth place.

Rounding out the Vincent team were Tabitha Datcher, 15th, Jeffie Peterson, 18th, Michelle Frazier, 23rd, and Tina Yowe, Although Vincent was unable to field a complete boys team, it entered four runners in a 16-school field of 75 contestants.

Vincent's Steve Gibson placed 10th overall to earn all-state individual honors. Kevin McKenzie, Earl Lawson and Mike Kelly also ran individually for Vincent. Five runners constitute a cross country team. The finishing places of these five runners is totaled and the team with lowest

This is the first year Vincent has competed in cross country competition. Jackson, however, has made great strides with both indoor and outdoor track programs at Vincent. Assistant track coach is Jim Barnes.

Something to prove

The majority of high school track events are set up for team competition, but most runners participate for reasons a bit closer to home. Calera eighth grader Dan Cambell, rounding turn four on the new track at Oliver Park, said he entered the recent cross country meet at Chelsea "just to prove I could do it." (Photo by David Moore)

Local schools give push to track sports

It has to start somewhere. Somebody has to get the show running.

Although track has been around in Shelby County for several years, the sport has always been lacking in areas ranging from facilities to athletes and coaches. Yet still, track and its brother, cross country running, have struggled on.

Now, finally, the program is getting a second wind, threatening to kick up its heels and take off--well, running.

The strongest signs of the sports' growth and growth potential, have to be the track facilities recently finished at Thompson was built through the efforts and generous contributions of boosters. And now that the school has a facility on which to practice and hold meets, one can look for the growth in track there to further round out Thompson's already strong athletic program.

The Thompson six-lane track

Although the track around Ricky Cairns Memorial Field at Oliver Park was built by the city of Calera, the facility offers Calera High and Junior High the opportunity to expand their overall athletic programs.

Further strengthing the county's growing track programs are tentative plans to build tracks at Briarwood Christian and Pelham High Schools, possibly next year. And Chelsea High is eyeing the possibility of building a track and practice facility within two years.

Without a doubt, however, the strongest force--make that forces--behind the growth of track in Shelby County is the success of the current track programs at Briarwood Christian and Vincent High Schools.

Briarwood's program, under the leadership of coach Bobby Scott, has claimed four consecutive Alabama Christian Athletic Conference boys' state track championships, as well as capturing top boys' honors at the county track meet last spring, and finishing second with the

Vincent, coached by Debbie Jackson, finished first in the girls' county track competition, and has repeatedly won honors in both indoor and outdoor meets in Jackson's four years at the school.

Strong winners like Vincent and Briarwood have probably helped, psychologically, to stir other schools into action. On the physical side of the coin, Scott, Jackson and VHS assistant coach Jim Barnes, have been instrumental in organizing events such as the county outdoor track meet and the first cross country meet held two weeks ago.

The biggest benefit in the growth of track in Shelby County is that it rounds out athletic programs, offering more means of

COACH: Eddie Williams 1979-80 RECORD: 15-11 1980-81 PROFILE: "We've picked up some height without losing any quickness," Williams notes. "And we'll be better all around shooters. Hopefully this year we'll see an improvement in defense, whether it be on the press or half court." Thompson's strongest asset may well be its bench. Besides shooting ability, Williams says the bench also has plenty of other talent and he should be able to send in players whose given strengths can counter problems in a given situation. Look for the bench to wear up at the end. RETURNING PLAYERS: The only starting enior, six-foot Eric Marcus, will 1980-81 PROFILE: "We're basically a young, inexperienced team with a tough schedule," says Lovett, nutshelling his Eagles who are entering their first season as a 2-A basketball team. Don't look for the fast-break, running game that characterized Calera last year. Instead, Lovett explains, "We'll be a lot more conservative. You won't see us press and run as much but one of our strong points will be our quick. Our depth factor will be important. We won't be as good at the beginning as we are at the end of the season."

TOP RETURNING PLAYERS: Senior Raymond King, 6'3" strong guard and weak guard Larry Johnson at sixfeet even will be called on to provide a lot of floor leadership on this team that got hit hard by graduation last May.

NEW VARSITY PLAYERS: Six-foot, senior Eric Lacey, injured last year, will probably be Calera's best shooting guard. Richard Russell, up from B-team, quick defensive player, 5'10" at wing guard. Senior Kyle Herndon, 5'7", good, quick ball handler, should provide spark coming off bench despite lack of experience. 5'11" swing-man Tim Loftin, senior, short on experience but a good thinking player. Senior Arthur Johnson, 6'1", good man-to-man, good leaper, sixth man on team. Melvin Crumb, 6'1", good zone man, outstanding jump-shooter. Sophomore guard Edward Wilson, 5'11", should see playing time because of his extreme quickness. Adding good hustle will be senior Phillip Herron, 6'2" and Derick Merritte, a 5'11" junior. KEY PLAYERS LOST: Calera loses 39 points per game with the graduation of All-county and captains Andrew Dowell and Bill Seay. Also missed will be 6'3" Raymond King and Larry Johnson.

CHELSEA

COACH: Mike Sims 1979-80 RECORD: 3-19

1980-81 PROFILE: Chelsea will probably have at least the most improved 2-A basketball team in the county. The Hornets will be quicker, and have more depth than they have had in several seasons. "This bunch wants to win," comments Sims. "We'll have more offense than last year and we're working on our defense. If we work hard, we'll be greatly improved. I've been pretty well pleased with them so far and I honestly think we'll be better. Time will tell."

ing experience last year should also tell, as should the time his players have spent at clinics.

RETURNING PLAYERS: Six-foot senior forward Victor Smith, good hustle and quickness, good defense. Senior Mark Howard, 6'0" forward, good outside shooter, good defense and quick. Randy Kennedy, 6'0" junior guard, outside shooter, should develop into floor leader. Senior center Russell Roberts, 6'2", should lead in rebounding.

NEW VARSITY PLAYERS: Sophomore Kent O'Shields, 6'0", and juniors Jim Weston, 6'3" guard and David Cleveland, 6'3" forward, all bring B-team starter experience with them. Juniors Blake Wilson and Paul Kendricks, both 5'10" will be a help in the shooting department.

KEY PLAYERS LOST: Allcounty forward Terry Kelly and Keith Garrett, who together averaged 15 points per game.

MONTEVALLO

COACH: Kurt Pnazek 1979-80 RECORD: 15-9

1980-81 PROFILE: Young on varsity experience, the Bulldogs will count heavily on some quickness and dedication that Pnazek, last year's county coach of the year, will no doubt demand. "We'll play a lot like last year," he predicted. "We're working first to not beat ourselves. We want to be strong fundamentally and work on good team concept." Free throw shooting and play execution will be important aspects of Montevallo's seasonal game plan, as will be its ability to run

TOP RETURNING PLAYERS: Yuell Gilbert, 5'1". senior guard, good floor leader and defensive player, improved outside shooter. Rodney Thrift, 6'0", junior guard with "pretty good" shooting ability, Tim Jones, 5'6" guard, good on defense and a leader on offense.

NEW VARSITY PLAYERS: Eric Tolbert, 6'3", junior post, greatly improved from B-team, inside threat and good rebounder. Senior Robert Lightfoot, 6'0", highly underrated guard, good hustle, rounded player. 6'4" Montez Thrift, post, first year man who should develop with experience. Michael Grayson, 6'2", and J.J. Moore, 6'1", both will play post as they grow into team with experience. Senior speedster Roy Gilbert, at 5'9" needs experience as does junior Steve Glosson, 5'8", up from B-team.

KEY PLAYERS LOST: Allcounty starters Jerome Jones, Derek Stewart and Bret Jones. who accounted for about 80 percent of the scoring, all graduated. Senior David Melsoni was injured during football and will not

COACH: Richard Crumpton 1979-80 RECORD: 13-10

1980-81 PROFILE: "It's always bleak when you lose a lot of folks. But this isn't a rebuilding season. It's a learning season," Crumpton explains. "The best thing they do is rebound and play defense. That's two of the three important things. The story now is can they

Cougars go to state

The Columbiana Cougars bumped off Thorsby 24-8 Saturday at Calera's Mini-Bowl, upping their record to 8-0 and landing them a berth in the welter weight state playoffs. The win also gave the Cougars a division championship.

Track draws increased interest

"It's good for the average kids who can't make it big playing football or basketball," points out Jackson.

"It's a great sport," agrees
Thompson coach Eddie
Williams, who along with Larry Simmons and Donnie Kennedy, are starting to push track there.
"It helps boys who can't play basketball and football and it helps girls who don't play volleyball or basketball, but can still be excellent runners."

Says Barnes, "Our philosphy at Vincent is if you come out and practice, you're on the team. It gives people a chance to shine who might otherwise be rejected (from contact sports). And scholarships to small colleges are easier to come by for a good runner than, say, a good football player at a 2-A school."

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a three-part series on the growth of track programs at Shelby County schools. Written by Reporter Sports Editor David Moore, next week's article will deal with some of the problems involved in establishing and running a high school track program.

Former THS girl stars still shine

Two former Lady Warriors who played volleyball for Thompson coach Lynn Rushing continue to show their prowess at net.

Sophomore Debbie Seals, now coached by Janice Pace, helped lead Jacksonville State College to the Division II State Volleyball Championship this season. Seales was named both All-conference and All-state.

And although she's only a freshman at the University of Alabama in Birmingham, Michelle Lewis was also honored by being named to the Allconference and All-state teams this year.

Calera's coach Mark Lovett adds that track gives additional students a chance to "be a part of a team and compete."

But for all the advantages of track, the infantile program is running into several problems in Shelby County. Before it gain the prestige it holds in other part of the state, country and world several hurdles will have to overcome.

After posting only a 2-6-1 season, the Columbiana Leopards (85 pounders), coached by Scott Bailey (right) and Andy Walter (left), bounced back for 1010 win over Montevallo in the Mini-Bowl played Saturday in Calera. This was the first year for Columbiana to compete in the Welter Weight program and they finished third in their division.

The Shelby County YMCA's

Y signs players

Youth Basketball Program (YBA) is holding registration for its second season through December 12. The season begins January 10, 1981.

The program, open to boys and girls ages 6-13, assures that each player gets to play at least half of every game. Besides emphasizing basic basketball skills, YBA also stresses fair play, respect for opponents, coaches and referees, and the attainment of personal goals, according to Molly McGregor, executive director of the Shelby County Y.

Information on registration, fees and other Y programs can be obtained by calling 663-6504.

COACH: Don Piazza 1979-80 RECORD: 4-16

1980-81 PROFILE: "We don't have an outstanding kid but we don't have any poor ones, either," first-year man Piazza says of his Wildcat team. "Right now I'm looking for someone to step out and say, 'Hey! I'll lead this group and we'll do something.' We're going to get there, but fourth quarters are our problem now. If we can get the whole crew to play together, we'll be real good." Going into the Thompson Holiday Tourney Monday, SCHS's record stood at 0-3.

RETURNING TOP PLAYERS: All-county senior f ward Terry Carter, 6'1", good inside player and shooter, only returning starter from last year's team coached by Don Pouncey. Senior Eddie Walker, 6'0" forward, good aggressiveness, presently "sixth man" on team.

Finances reported 'sound' at Shelby Memorial Hospital

by David Moore

Shelby Memorial Hospital is in "good, sound, financial shape," its directors were told during the last board meeting.

The fiscal assessment was offered by R. Travis Kirkpatrick, a partner in the accounting firm of Ernst and Whinney, who conducted the hospital's annual audit. The preliminary audit figures were passed on to the state's chief examiner of public accounts and the final figures will be presented at the board's next regular meeting, Tuesday, December 16.

Kirkpatrick noted that Shelby Memorial's "good financial picture" was due in large part to strong, internal monetary controls established by Gene Taylor, the hospital's financial director. Kirkpatrick assured the board that he would have pointed out any money management weaknesses at the hospital "if you had any."

Board Chairman Ben Grubbs and director Herman Moore both noted that the preliminary figures reflected the best financial picture they'd seen at the hospital, especially the fact that the accounting firm had included no letter of recommended management or policy changes.

During the November 25 meeting the accountant revealed that while hospital expenses increased 15%, a figure in keeping with statewide figures, the net patient service revenues increased 16%. Kirkpatrick called the hospital's ratio of $3.4 million in assets to $1.8 million in liabilities, "stable."

Too, he said that the slight decrease in patient days over the last four years has basically been offset by a slight increase in ad-

Taylor reported that the patient census in October 1980 stood at 85.4% occupancy, an increase in seven percentage points over October 1979.

The net income of October 1980 was stated at nearly $170,000.

"We're off to a good start (on the fiscal year)," Taylor stated. SMH administrator Rolland Bradford complimented Taylor and his staff for their work. In answer to a question posed by director Herchiel Meadows, Kirkpatrick adivsed that with continued good management the 40-bed addition to the new floor would be able to support itself.

The construction project, he added, has cost to date about $4 million and approximately that same amount remained to be spent in completion of all the work.

Taylor noted that construction, if anything, was a little ahead of schedule.

Bradford reported that the finishing touches were now being put on the third floor, that beds were due to be delivered by mid-December and the new floor was expected to be ready for occupancy by the first of the year.

Little was said of the recent approval by the State Health Planning and Development Board for the joint-venture of the Brookwood-Shelby Memorial primary health care center targeted for the north Shelby-Riverchase area.

Bradford did say it was "excellent that we were awarded the certificate of need" from Montgomery. He added that a great many people had been instrumental in pushing for the project approval.

Brookwood-Shelby Memorial was awarded the approval over stout competition from the Baptist Hospitals. Construction is expected to begin around the first of the year.

Dr. Harry Phillips, on behalf of the medical staff, recommended that the hospital purchase a $69,000 auto-analyzer for the lab which is already being used there on a lease trial basis. The new machine, he reported, would speed up test results for emergency room and heart attack patients, and would eventually pay for itself because it runs more tests, quicker, with less personnel involvement. Said director C.E. "Bull" Carter, "If we can save one life with it, we ought to get it." The request was approved.

Dr. David L. Tharpe was granted consultant privileges in internal medicine and Dr. James D. Blake was granted associate staff privileges in emergency medicines.

Morale questioned

"All you have to do is walk down the halls and you'll see what kind of morale we have at this hospital."

That comment by SMH administrator Roland Bradford came in response to charges made at last week's board meeting that morale at the county hospital was low.

Addressing the Reporter's representative at the meeting, Bradford invited the press to examine morale level.

Before making the morale charge, Ruby Hoobler told the board she was withdrawing her petition to have a former assistant director of nursing reinstated and Bradford fired. Hoobler said that Betty Sherer, whom Bradford fired October 10, had another job and did

"But morale isn't up to par," Hoobler charged.

Addressing the board chairman, she asked, "Is it true Mr. (Ben) Grubbs that you won't be back in the spring so you go along with what the board wants?"

"I do not yield to pressure from the board, citizens, or the doctors," Grubbs responded. "What I say is what I truly believe. As to whether or not I'll be here in March remains to be seen. But I'll be here until then.'

Addressing director Earl Cunningham, Hoobler said she understood he no longer lived in Shelby County.

Cunningham acknowledged the fact. Grubbs then read a letter of resignation Cunningham had submitted to probate judge Tommy Snowden, suggesting his seat be filled by a female.

Cunningham noted that there are no resident requirements to sitting on the board, but that he had offered his (undated) resignation because he felt the job should be had by someone in the county. "Do you live in Shelby County?" one board member asked Mrs.

Hoobler? "No," she said.

Beside those of Grubbs and Cunningham, the board seats held by Howard Gates, Herschiel Meadows, and Ken Terry will up for reappointment in the spring.

Rash of discipline problems hit schools

No one seems to know the reason for the sudden rise in discipline problems in Shelby County schools.

And answering the question concerning students handling teacher responsibilities, the superintendent said they might have some limited functions but certainly could not do any instructing.

deterrent to learning, Knowles said it was well conceived, well organized and carefully monitored

Although an explanation of the program had been sent to parents, Knowles said he thought that it probably hadn't been interpreted clearly enough.

Valenti said she thought students not in the class might look back when they were out of school and feel that they had been deprived.

County lacks disaster plan

by David Moore

Play it by ear. That could well be the name of the county-wide emergency plan which would be put into effect in the event of a massive natural or man-made disaster.

"We'd just have to go with whatever a particular situation dictates," admits Shelby County Civil Defense Director Bill Tucker. The emergency operations used to deal with a massive disaster would be on a catch-ascatch-can basis, he says.

Some people in Shelby County are concerned about this plan, or lack of plan. What would happen, they ask, if half the county had to be evacuated because a train carrying highly toxic chemicals derailed? Or what if an airliner crashed on Oak Mountain? Tornadoes, floods, tank farm fires, atomic bombs--the list of possible disasters is not pleasant.

One county fire chief, who asked not to be named, noted the lack of county-wide emergency plans and called the civil defense here a "scam."

"He (Tucker) is like everybody, probably undermanned and no funds. But the civil defense in this county is a scam. Something needs to be done, some paper work.

disaster, and we'd better be ready for it," the chief continued. "Disaster is beyond comprehension. You can't play it by ear. That's regressive. You've got to at least have a plan."

States Pelham fire chief Bill Bryars, "In my opinion, all these things need to be written down for the county. There has to be some advance plans made."

Lee Calhoun, an Alabaster resident who attended the Red Cross Disaster School held four months ago in Jefferson County, expressed concern over the lack of evacuation plans for Shelby County. Too, she said, a central emergency number is needed that is staffed 24-hours a day with someone who can put plans into ac-

According to Tucker, the Birmingham "911" emergency number doesn't work for Shelby County. In the event of a disaster, he said, the Sheriff's Department could be contacted at 669-4181.

"The Sheriff's Department does a pretty good job of keeping track of everything," Tucker said. He himself wears a beeper and keeps posted by radio.

Nonetheless, "There's a basis for concern," he said.

The county's "emergency operation plan" assumes "The buzz word of the '80's is assistance from other civil defense groups, local fire and police departments and the sheriff's department, as well as the Red Cross and National Guard.

He himself has the ongoing job of updating the 14 various annexes which make up the overall plan and range from rescue work and radiation detection to school evacuation and repair to streets and bridges.

One of Bryars' chief contentions is that there is no one person, or number which can be contacted to put all the various elements of a massive, emergency plan into action. No one person has the authority to, say, authorize the use of parked school buses for evacuation, designate buildings to be used as emergency temporary morgues, and contact volunteers to give them specific orders.

"A centralized disaster plan is needed," Bryars stated. "We can't wait and see if someone will help. We've got to know ahead of time. It appalls me and makes me mad that we can't do this on a county-wide basis."

"You can take a plan so far," Tucker said. "But beyond that it's not feasible. We're trying to make it as foolproof as we can, but we need volunteers from service organizations."

In the event massive disaster strikes Shelby County, Tucker stated, "There will be something done. Hopefully, just plain common sense will pull everyone together."

Wilton residents to vote

Three strikes and you're out is the way it works in baseball.

But in Wilton the council has already made four attempts to name a mayor, but they've struck out each time.

When the four members met Tuesday evening, they were joined by a delegation of citizens who suggested holding a public referendum.

The council agreed to that proposal.

In trying to name a mayor, the council has deadlocked in voting for Mayor pro-tem David Thomas, and a former mayor, Troy Mims.

Some political observers have contended that according to Alabama law, former Mayor Mickey Henson remains mayor until his successor is qualified.

However, no one in Wilton has acted upon this interpretation of state law.

Suit by candidate dismissed in court

One of the suits filed by former Alabaster Councilwoman Mayor Taylor has been dismissed.

That was the case that was filed against Probate Judge Tommy Contesting the July election in which she lost her seat to Glen Naish, the black councilwoman filed suits against him and Snowden.

Both men moved for the dismissal of the cases and Judge Robert Armstrong recently ruled this be done.

However, Naish's lawyer asked that the ruling be set aside, so the case against the Alabaster councilman is still open.

Renortedly, the request was to give Taylor's lawyer the opportunity to speak at the next motion hearing.

Since she lost the election by only 26 votes, Taylor is contending that by changing the boundary line, the city had cost her votes from those residents.

In moving that the case against him be dismissed, Snowden contended the suit was improperly directed.

Naish said that no claim had been stated against him for which relief could be given.

He also pointed out that Taylor had not met the five day requirement for contesting an election.

Alabaster seeks new board faces

The notion of everyone "throwing their hat in the ring" when there was an opening on a board didn't seem feasible to Alabaster Mayor H.A. "Doc"

But the proposal made by Councilman Jack Reagin at Monday's council meeting to get more citizen participation and new ideas, was given enthusiastic endorsement by Councilman Cal

Reagin wanted the public to know when an opening occurred so those interested in making a contribution could volunteer their services.

"My campaign was based on informing the public, and this is part of it," McCune declared.

The Mayor pointed out that the council had no way to screen everyone's application. "There has to be a certain amount of discretion as to who is appointed," he noted.

A member of the audience later pointed out that it was often the same people who were appointed whenever a vacancy occurred.

The proposal was passed by unanimous vote with a 30 days notice to be given when a position needed to be filled.

An ordinance change in the responsibilities of the personnel board was also given the council's approval.

Councilman Roger Wheeler recommended that department heads make their own appointments rather than the personnel board.

He explained that the action was in no way a reflection on the board. "This has been talked about for some time," Wheeler the city limits surfaced again at the meeting. No mention had been made of the subject for several months.

A city employee called attention to his homeowner's policy paying $265 for fire damage, suggesting the fire department could collect this amount.

The council has been considering charging a yearly fee for fire protection to homeowners living outside the city.

But a councilman called the $265 figure a "drop in the bucket" compared to the money that would be needed for manpower and equipment to handle the job.

It was also noted that homeowners would have to collect from the insurance company rather than the fire department.

Since efforts at collecting money for answering fire calls outside the city had not been successful in the past, the council had considered going to a con-

Wondering about the removal of railroad tracks running through town, which had been discussed during the election campaign, one member of the audience asked what progress had been made.

"We're doing everything within our means to get the tracks rerouted," the mayor said, "but the L&N moves slowly."

Reporter celebrates birthday

The year was 1843. The last Indians had left the banks of the Coosa opposite Shelby Shores only seven years before.

Not a single Whig newspaper was being published within seventy-five miles of the flourishing town of Talladega, so local attorney Daniel Sayre gave birth to the Alabama Reporter.

Besides advocating the election of "that great American statesman, Henry Clay, to the Presidency," the Reporter favored the Whig party, the United States Bank, and a protective tariff. Of the original political goals, only the tariff eventually came to pass.

Sayre also set out to "at all times support the cause of good order and morality among the people, and diffuse useful information in regard to agriculture, science and the arts."

The Reporter has been pursuing that last goal with all the resources at its command every week for the last 136 years.

Paper and ink shortages, postal regulation changes. military occupation and censorship, over thirty different competitors, sweeping political changes, public apathy, and financial depressions have all come and gone, but the Reporter has appeared every week since the days of the Van Buren administration.

In 1865, things were so desperate that a subscription cost nearly twice what it does today, despite more than a century of inflation. Of course, we still took Confederate dollars in 1865.

In 1922, the late Luther Fowler moved the paper to Columbiana, and in 1923 gave it the name it still publishes under today, the Shelby County Reporter.

Because Fowler was deemed too neutral politically, ardent Democrats started in 1929 the paper that was to prove the Reporter's most persistent rival. A merger in 1948 ended the schism, with the surviving paper being called the Shelby County Democrat-Reporter for a few years to soothe Democratic sensitivities.

Since the late 1960's, the Reporter's has set the pace for the newspaper industry in adopting the very latest in printing and typesetting technology. More changes have been made here in the last 12 years than in the preceding 125.

Like the people of Shelby County, the Reporter is proud of its rich heritage, confident that as it enters the future, the turmoils and troubles of the present will be better appreciated if viewed with the perspective of the past.

The Reporter enters its 137th year as Shelby County enters its 161st, anticipating that the best years for both lie ahead.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

You write a column and send it off, halfway across the world maybe, hoping it'll be enjoyed by others. 'Some of them you've known for years and some for just a little while and some you didn't know at all-- until you ran into them at one place or another.

I've known Gerald Fulton and Curtis Falkner longer than a lot of folks live, and I've known Henry and Virginia Nichols since we lived next door to them on Jail Street--Pennie and I.

And I've known Mildred White Wallace since 1907, having worked with her through a depression and three wars and this stinking inflation that's got prices higher than two kites.

But tonight I want to write about a few of those folks I didn't know at all, until I ran into em at Shelby Memorial Hospital last Thursday.

There was Mr. and Mrs. Legrant Garrett from Westover. Mrs. Garrett was mighty sick and his wife and his daughter, Ruth Atchison, were keeping him com-

There was Mrs. Ruth Glosson from Pea Ridge and Mrs. Billie Wyatt from Alabaster, both in room 241, and both feeling better. We talked about their daughters, pretty as pictures, and both having marvelous times in their respective worlds.

And Bettye Brown from Vincent and Onzelle Walton from Westover. They were sitting with a friend and I met them when I stopped by to see Ella Mae Isbell who was in the same room.

And Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Shelton from Pelham. Mr. and Mrs. Shelton are the parents of Shelby Kendrick, the daughterin-law of Jack and Verna Stone in Chelsea. Mr. Shelton was mighty sick.

And there they are, eight friends I didn't really know until today, that I found on my rounds through Shelby Memorial Hospital. I suppose a fellow wonders sometimes how many friends he has out there that he has never seen. Folks who have been reading his stuff for years and years.

Yep, you write a column and send it off, not knowning who will read it, or where, but hoping they'll find it to their liking,

Serving with Bobbie on Judicial Selection Panel are Prof. Victor Rosenblum of Northwestern University Law School; Prof. Charles E. Rice of Notre Dame Law School; and other distinguished citizens from around the country not connected with the legal profession. According to U.S. Justice William Rehnquist, there is a "need to recognize that there should rarely be judicial intervention at all in families which are going concerns."

This statement is very important to the basic fiber of what this Judicial Advisory Panel of the AFI sees as its objectives. The American family as we know it, has proven through history to be one of this country's greatest assets. Even in the early frontier of this nation, the family formed the catalyst which saw our forefathers through very difficult times. In the face of disaster, or in periods of extreme hardship, the family rose up to meet the challenge.

But lately, we have seen more ings in Washington.

and more federal and judicial interference with the family. What better way have we to preserve this great American tradition than to seek ways to offer the names of potential judicial candidates to those involved in the appointing process?

You may rest assured that Alabama's First Lady supports the AFI philosophy that there is no more urgent task in our civic life than to return the family to its rightful place at the center of public policy. The family must be treasured, not only for what it gives its members; but for what in enables them to give their community.

Moral values, sense of purpose, compassion and commitment: all these things are larger than self interest. They are part of what has made America great. They must be preserved.

As Bobbie becomes an active participant in this group, you will certainly be advised on her actions. I appreciate her accepting this challenge, and I know she would like your views to make sure she is representing your feel-

Dear Mr. Grubbs: It was interesting reading the advertisement, which stated the responsibility of the board of directors, the medical staff, and the employees of the Shelby Memorial Hospital. We know full well that this is what you are supposed to accomplish. This has never been a question in the minds of the voters. The question the people are asking is why has this never been accomplished in all the years that Shelby Memorial has been built.

We saw a nurses' strike that virtually put the hospital out of commission, and resulted in the of the doctors, who practice out firing of the head nurse and the of this hospital. We see the medical staff and employees eating, drinking, and being merry, while they are marrying and giving in marriage.

What moral truth could be more devastating to the care of the sick than the facts already revealed in our communities.

Shelby Memorial Hospital was built and is supported by our tax dollars, and it is run by politicians. The voters must act as a check upon these men, if this organization works effectively. This can not be done if all transactions are carried on behind closed doors.

It is obvious that there is a power struggle going on within the medical staff, and from all indications the board of directors is powerless to control this struggle.

The voters now have an obligation to see that this hospital is run for the care of the sick, and not for the power and prestige of the medical staff.

So, Mr. Grubbs, it is time for the board of directors to answer the question the voters are asking, "Why was nurse Sherer fired by the administrator?"

Highway 280 curve claims another life

A two car collision near the intersection of Hwy. 280 and County Road 41 last Monday, claimed the life of Lucille Owens Wright of Sterrett.

Briarwood pupils learn CPR

Ninety sophomore students at Briarwood Christian High School recently completed a two-week course on (cardiopulmonary resuscitation).

The course was taught by North Shelby Fire District firefighterfiremedics Dana Barnes and James Glass.

Briarwood health instructor Yvonne Welch said she became interested in having her students

Said Mrs. Welch, who took the program along with her students, "I have four children and live in Tuesday, a film on CPR was shown to the Briarwood student body. Coach Steve Franklin related a story of how he and a friend recently revived a child who had been injured and showed no pulse nor heartbeat.

Barnes commented that the students who took part in the classes were very enthusiastic.

Teachers settle out of court

Nine Pelham High School teachers almost had their day in court Monday.

But a settlement was reached with former PHS Principal Ernest Douglas as the trial was about to get underway.

Each of the teachers will receive $1,500 as their share of the $13,500 settlement Douglas agreed to.

The teachers, who were all non-tenured at the time the former principal had recommended they be dismissed, brought a slander suit against him for injuring their reputation.

Douglas had described the teachers as incompetent and not prepared to teach.

Although the teachers were Thoroughbred stable comes to Cahaba Valley

by David Moore

The building looks transposed from another place, perhaps even another time. But sitting back as it does off highway 119 in north Shelby County, overlooking nine acres of riding pasture and, across the way, the slopes of Oak Ridge, the building looks very much at home in its idyllic, Cahaba Valley setting.

With a long front porch, complete with overhead fans, twotoned stained Dutch doors opening out of the stalls, and three white cupolas atop a two-storied gabled roof, it's hard to call the place a "barn." The building is every inch a Thoroughbred horse stable.

"This has been a dream of ours for 15 years," beamed Frances Dudley.

Fifteen years ago, she explains, is when she, her husband Ray, and their sons Stewart and Richard began to take seriously their hobby of riding. Since then they have looked forward to the day when they could build their own private place to ride and entertain.

The dream is now almost a reality. All that is left are the finishing touches. Feed troughs must be installed, the remaining fence put up, a few walls still have to be stained and a weather vane is to be mounted on the center cupola.

Just as the family rides together for fun, in shows, and at one time on fox hunts in Maylene, working on the stable has also been very much a family

"We did all the clearing ourselves and a lot of the other work," explains Mrs. Dudley. "It gives a strong common bond when a family does things together that they all enjoy. I was raised on a farm in Walker County. My daddy believed in a family working together."

Although the Dudleys are longtime residents of Vestavia, Mrs. Dudley admits she spends more time at the stable than at home. "And when it's finished, and when I'm not riding, I'm going to sit here (on the porch) and rock and watch the horses and scenery. But probably I won't rock too much," she adds, hinting at the family's true passion, horseback riding.

The stable connects onto a gymnasium-size butler-type building which houses a lighted, 220-foot long indoor riding ring.

Ray Dudley, a Birmingham

CPA and lawyer, along with son Stewart, labels the facility "Dudley style."

Over the years the family has noted the good and bad aspects of all the stables they've visited from Germany and Ireland to Alabaster and Maylene. Finally they contacted architect Dick Pigford of Leeds, who drew up the plans. "We knew what we wanted and he put it together for us," says Dudley.

Stewart Dudley points out that the aesthetics of the stable were a major consideration from the start. But functional practicality with Thoroughbreds in mind was the bottom line behind every aspect of the building.

The 80' x 42' stable dimensions were determined by the nine 14-foot square stalls. Barred sliding doors open from each stall into the 14-foot wide main asile, wide enough for freedom of passage for a large horse or a vehicle. Too, as a fire precaution, each stall has functional Dutch doors leading directly outside, Stewart explains.

Also as a fire safety precaution, hay and bedding materials are not stored overhead in the stable, but instead in large Leantos, built onto the metal riding ring. The stable, ring and lean-tos are connected by a covered walkway.

By not incorporating the standard hayloft, the two-story main asile is left open overhead. The cupolas, equipped with vent fans, work much like chimneys, drawing cooling air through the Dutch doors and windows, and blowing hot air out the roof.

Heaters will warm the horses in the winter. Too, the stalls are equipped with automatic watering troughs. A hot-water washing stall has also been added.

Old MacDonald never had it so good.

Mrs. Dudley didn't care to reveal the pricetag on such a palace, but she did offer a story which help put the facility in perspective.

"A friend told me the other day, 'Your stable is a whole lot prettier than your house!' Sure, I said. First things first! Horse people understand," she says with a grin.

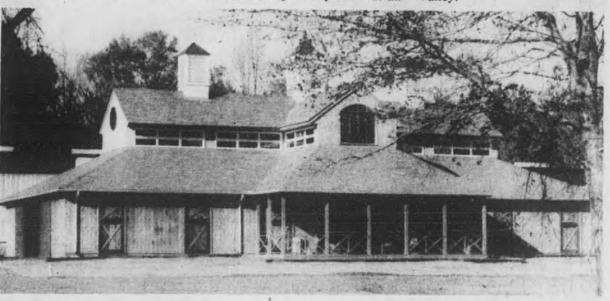

Currently, the Dudleys own three Thoroughbreds. John and Becky Jernigan, who live in a small house on the place own two more horses. The Jernigans are considered "family" and Becky is the stable manager.

One day while Mrs. Dudley was working in the stable, a woman approached her and wanted to sell her a large sign to put across the front of the building so people could read the name from the road. "To begin with, we're not going to name the place," says Mrs. Dudley. "But that sign on the place!--I had been working all day and was all grubby and I said, 'Lady, that's the last thing I want!"

All the Dudleys want is a nice, quiet place to ride and raise horses, a place the family can call its own. And that's just what they have nearly finished building in the idyllic heart of the Cahaba Valley.

Dudley style

The stable being built by the Ray Dudley family in north Shelby County looks as though it could have been transposed from the Blue Grass region of Kentucky, or perhaps from the days of the old

South. Then again, it looks pretty much at home in its serene, Cahaba Valley setting. "It's Dudley style," says the owner. (Photos by David Moore)

Shop cautiously for children's gifts

When shopping for children's holiday gifts, beware of those that pose threats to eyes, cautions the National Society to Prevent Blindness.

More than 5,000 eye injuries were linked to toys last year and nearly two-thirds of these accidents were suffered by children under the age of fifteen. BB guns, darts and bows and arrows were responsible for another 1,100 eye injuries among youngsters in this age range.

"Ninety percent of all eye injuries are preventable," noted Virginia S. Boyce, executive director of the National Society. "Safety-conscious adults can protect children from eye damage--and in some cases the loss of an eye--by picking toys and games carefully and by teaching youngsters how to play wisely.

Eye damage also can result from toys and games with less apparent hazards. Building sets, skateboards and battery-operated toys were a few of those responsible for eye injuries last year, primarily among children under 15. In some cases, the child may be too young to handle a toy. Often, too, play gets rough and youngsters accidentally hurt' themselves or playmates.

Most of these eye injuries happen when children are not supervised. It's very important that parents show their children how to use their gifts properly.

Fire district takes legal steps

District is taking about 200 letters to the post office--and they aren't Christmas greetings, either.

"We will be sending out registered letters in the next few days to each delinquent account, informing them that they are delinquent and that forclosure proceedings (on their houses) are imminent," stated NSCFD board member Martha Geyer.

She said the letters will explain the basis for proceedings and will state the law which invests lien rights to fire boards.

Money on the current billings has been coming in "very well," eyer said. But, she added, some residents have stated they absolutely will not pay their outstanding accounts. Other people are under the impression the contractor or previous owner owes the delinquent bills.

"As far as we're concerned. the current owner is who we have to go back to," she explained. "It's like taxes. The lien is against property, not the per-

Ribbon winner

Myrtle and her owner Jessica Ann Eisenberg have been together since the mixed breed calf was three days old. The hours spent in training and grooming have paid off in ribbons won at 4-H shows.

Champ is just one of the family

Myrtle started early, learning how to be a champion. And she caught on quickly to the things she was taught.

Now at the ripe old age of 20 months, the mixed breed calf has ribbons from county, district and state 4-H Beef shows.

But even though she's a prize winner, Myrtle's owner, Jessica Ann Eisenberg, says the calf is just as much a pet as one of the family dogs.

She follows her owner around and has even allowed Jessica Ann and her younger brother to ride

Given the calf when it was only three days old, Jessica Ann formed an early attachment as she raised it on the bottle.

She started working with Myrtle when the calf was just a month old and by the age of two months, was able to lead her. Most calves don't learn to work on the lead until they're at least six months.

Myrtle is a Jersey-Angus mix and is shown in the English cross class of the Junior Beef Division. In the county show, Jessica Ann's calf took a blue. A fifth place ribbon was awarded in the district contest and at state, Myrtle was declared the third place

Four Ways You Now Get More At Citizens Bank and Trust

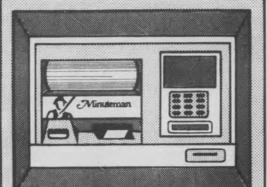

More Resources.

We're part of a new family, the Alabama Bancorporation family. Which means we're part of the largest and strongest financial institution in the state. So when you come in for your banking business, you get more than the support of just one bank. You get the strength and solid financial backing of a $2,700,000,000 organization.

More Time.

We realize that your time is valuable. That's why our drive-in tellers remain open until 7 P.M. And why we have a convenient automated teller to handle your banking needs day or night. During and after normal banking hours.

More New Services.

We're also announcing our newest service. Interest-On-Checking. Beginning January 1, 1981, you can start earning interest on funds in your Interest-On-Checking Account. We will pay 51/4%, the highest rate allowed, on all funds in your account and compound the interest continuously to give you the maximum benefit. Interest-On-Checking is available two ways. Our First Flight customers may open an Interest-On-Checking First Flight Account that will earn interest and keep all the advantages that First Flight offers. The monthly service charge will remain $4 if you keep a minimum balance of $500. If your balance drops below $500, the service charge will be an additional $3 per month. There will be no monthly service charge on our regular Interest-On-Checking service charge will be $6. Also, we will still offer our regular checking account, our economical budget account, no service-charge checking for 65 and over, and our First Flight Club account at the same reasonable monthly service charges. For more information on which account is best for you, just come by and visit with any Citizens Banker, and we'll be glad to help.

More Service.

Of course, being part of the largest and strongest banking organization in the state wouldn't mean much if we couldn't offer you the same friendly personal service with the little extras that have become a Citizens' tradition. Like our community room which can be reserved for clubs and groups. And we still offer that same brand of personal service. Service that can best be described by one word. More.

Five homes ready for tour

Antique and contemporary furnishings can both be found in the two story country French home which will be one of the stops on Shelby Academy's Tour of Homes this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Burns moved to the county 18 months ago when their new home on County Road 22 was completed.

And this year they're inviting visitors to go through the eleven room home which will be one of the five houses on the Dec. 13-14 tour.

A hand carved buffet from the Black Forest of Germany is one of the most striking pieces in the Burns home.

Put together with wooden pegs, Burns said the piece is 230 years old.

In the nearby fireplace are two large andirons from France.

And a few steps away in the living room is another buffet from an ante bellum home in Birmingham.

Bea Burns pointed to the manels on the ceiling high piece hich showed the head of a lion where the burled wood was joined.

The breakfast room at the rear of the home has uncurtained windows so the couple can enjoy the view which includes a pond and rolling fields.

In their bedroom, from which the same view can be seen, is a bath with a steam room and whirlpool tub.

New telephone device aids handicapped

Deaf and speech-disabled people in Alabama now have a new way to use telephone service.

South Central Bell is introducing a "Portable Communications Terminal" for use over telephone "Users of the device can conduct written 'conversations' with other telephone customers who have compatible instruments," Walter S. Sechriest, Jr., local district manager for South Central Bell. "Words are keyed on a typewriter-like keyboard, and displayed in a lighted electronic read-out."

The South Central Bell terminal, manufactured by Micon Industries, is compatible with most teletypewriters (TTY's) and with other telecommunications device for the deaf (TDDs).

To place a call using the device, the caller places the telephone handset in the unit's cradle, and dials normally. A status light indicated dial tone, ringing, or busy. When the called party answers by keying, for example, "Hello, this is Bill, GA," the conversation can be conducted by typing in messages as desired. In practice, abbreviations (such as GA, which means Go Ahead) are often used.

The unit is powered through regular AC outlets, and also can operate on built-in batteries.

The monthly charge for the new terminal is $28.50, or $22.80 for customers who qualify for a discounted rate.

Customers interested in the Portable Communications Terminal should call the Customer Assistance Bureau at 788-1110.

Food prices decline

There is a bright spot for Alabama consumers for the holiday season as food prices in the state took a slight decline of onetenth of 1 percent in November. A marketbasket of 20 basic food items cost $25.87 this month as compared with $25.90 in October.

Poultry continued to decline 1.9% this month and pork showed a drop of 1.2%. The most significant increase in food prices was in the produce area as locally grown fresh produce items become less available.

Turkey prices per pound have increased over last year's cost but the price of a smoked boneless ham has decreased slightly. The discerning consumer will know to look at the cost per serving of a meat for a meal rather than cost per pound as some cuts contain only edible meat, while others contain fat, gristle, and bone. The Thanksgiving gobbler remains one of the best buys at only $.45 per serving.

USDA reports that even though turkey supplies may be down 6 to 10 percent from last year, there will be adequate supplies through Christmas.

The conference was a 10 state affair involving librarians, trustees, and friends of libraries from across the South-

Shelby County had one of the largest delegations at the conference with Mrs. LaLouise McGraw, Mrs. Thelma Walker, and Mrs. Sybil Dearing attending for the Shelby County Library Board, Mrs. Mayme Yarbrough from the Montevallo Library, Mrs. May Carver from Pelham Library, Mrs. Barbara Roberts, Columbiana Library and Phil Clark, County Director, along with a number of representatives from the University of Montevallo Library.

These representatives attended workshops concerning the duties. and responsibilities of library trustees, the importance of "friends of the library," and listened to a number of distinguished speakers including Edwin Newman, NBC commentator, Culpepper Clark, professor at UAB, and George Firestone, Secretary of State of Florida.

The County Director was selected to attend a preconference' workshop sponsored by the National Endownment for the Humanities concerning public programming and policy. Many ideas were gleaned from the conference that will probably be put to use in Shelby County in the near future.

We have noticed there are many clubs and organizations looking for different types of programs to present at meetings. Be sure to check with the library about the many films, filmstrips and other materials available that might suit your organization.

Also, for an interesting and lively program about the library. the County Director will be glad to speak before any group to discuss library programs and ser-

Thompson students blaze nature trail at Oak Mountain

Several students from Thompson High School recently participated in the construction of a nature trail at Oak Mountain State Park. The trail is the project of Marsha Hawkins, a naturalist at the park.

Hawkins enlisted the help of the advanced biology class through Mr. Randal McDonald, who teaches the course.

The students who worked on the trail are: Lisa Tinsley, Cathy Ophnon, Eric Marcus, Gunner Byrd, Roger Byrd, Brad Cocke, and Tim Genry.

With no previous experience in identifying plants, the students identified about thirty species of trees, shrubs, and other plants. They also did some actual construction work on the trail.

The trail is located in the recreational area of the park near the tennis courts. When completed, it will be marked with numbers corresponding to a key which will be provided to nature trail hikers.

Volunteers

Donors give blood at the Red Cross drive, which volunteer workers staff every Friday at the First Baptist Church of Pelham.

Blood donations needed

American Red Cross Blood Services, Alabama Region annually faces a slump in blood collections during the Christmas-New Year holiday period. Irregular schedules, busy shopping trips, holiday vacations and other problems contribute to the drop in collections.

But hospital patients keep needing blood right through the busiest--and happiest--of holiday, and Red Cross must keep its commitment to supply their needs with plentiful, fresh blood donated by volunteers.

Red Cross chapters across the Alabama Region have made a special effort to hold bloodmobiles during the crucial three week period between December 15 and New Year's Day.

All blood supplied through Red Cross is a gift from the donor to the patient. There is no cost for the blood itself and the patient is responsible only for the costs of processing and administering blood. These expenses are covered by insurance.

Most healthy adults between ages 18 and 66 are eligible to donate blood. With written parental permission, 17 year olds can also become blood donors. The entire process of giving blood, including medical screening, usually takes less than 45 minutes.

Davis said the new legislation also calls for major improvements in VA's vocational rehabilitation program for service connected disabled veterans which provided a 17 percent increase in monthly allowance in the November checks of 624 Alabama trainees along with increased job counseling and placement procedures.

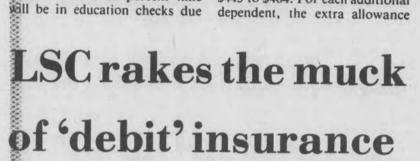

He said the new law also increases VA tutorial assistance payments by 10 percent and changes the amount VA can pay under correspondence or flight training for students enrolled in these programs after Sept. 1.

For them, he said, VA can pay 70 percent of the total charges for correspondence training or 60 percent of those for flight training. These changes in rate of payment are effective Oct. 1. Students who enrolled Sept. 1 or earlier will continue to get 90 percent of the total charges throughout the course.

For the first time, Davis noted, flight training students will be eligible for education loans based on need of up to $2,500.

Also in the legislation was a change in the way VA will pay veteran-students training while in jail. Veterans imprisoned on a felony conviction will no longer receive monthly educational allowances but will be reimbursed only for training expenses.

Davis said guideline instructions on these program revisions are now being developed at VA Central Office in Washington.

Warriors claim title at Thompson Classic

The Warriors rolled over Tuesday night by a count of Calera, Pelham and Charles Henderson of Troy to claim first place in their own Thompson Holiday Classic, held there November 24-26.

Monday night Eric Marcus, tourney MVP, hooped 15 points to lead coach Eddie Williams' Warriors to a 94-46 romp over Calera. In the second game, Bibb County beat Shelby County High School to advance to round two.

Henderson, coached by former Warrior basketball standout Eddie McCarter, downed Bibb a game high of 17 points.

78-73.

Thompson then took on Pelham. Led by Marcus, this time shooting 21, the Warriors won it 76-62, despite a 21-point game by Panther Jeff Adams and 15 points by Bobby Sutton.

Wednesday, Bibb bested Pelham 78-72 to claim third place in the tourney. Jeff Butler led Pelham's scoring with 19 points.

In the finals, Thompson beat Henderson 96-59, with Arthur Johnson showing the hot hand at Besides MVP Marcus, Thompson's Jim Stanbridge and Johnson were named to the alltourney team. Other all-tourney players from the county were Adams and Todd Davis for Pelham, Terry Carter for SCHS and Eric Lacey for Calera.

"It was a super good tourney," proclaimed Williams. "We had two near capacity crowds, It's good that Pelham, Shelby, Calera and Bibb brought some pretty good crowds. Also a lot of people turned out to see Eddie (McCarter) since it's been a few years since he played here."

But hurdles loom ahead

Starting gun fired for county track

A year ago this area couldn't boast of one yard of asphalt laid and lined with track in mind. In fact, the Shelby County Outdoor Track Championship last spring was held in Jefferson County. Now, Thompson High School has a six-lane, 440-yard asphalt track. The City of Calera has built a similar, four-lane facility which has been made available to Calera High School. Briar-wood Christian will probably be running on its own track by spring, and Chelsea and Pelham are currently exploring the feasibility of building tracks.

High school track programs would appear to be making a stab at general acceptance in Shelby County. Money has been spent.

The starting gun has been fired. Track programs, however, are running against a stiff head wind stirred by the three related forces of money, football (and other sports), and general interest.

Generally speaking, these forces work together something like this:

In America, Alabama, and Shelby County, football is THE sport. Football is the sport most people pay to see, so it's what most schools' athletic programs are, literally, built around. A given booster club is more likely to list football helmets and stadium lights higher on the priority list than a set of hurdles. And when it comes time for the county to pay coaches, football assistants tend to become more necessary than someone coaching a sport which brings in little or nothing in the way of revenues.

If you pay a person a little money, asking him/her to stay after school to coach, say, football, basketball, then football again in the spring, that's one thing. Expecting that person to also coach track without any supplement, however, becomes a different story.

Think too of the athletes. In smaller schools particularly, one quickly finds a finite number of sports minded students. And when a kid plays several sports already, what kind of enthusiasm can you expect when the coach (assuming there is one) asks, "Who wants to practice track this afternoon?" Besides, football schedules interfere with serious training for the state cross-country meets, basketball interfers with the indoor track schedules, and baseball and spring training hit about the same time as training for the state outdoor track meets.

As for general interest, people "up and down Main Street" talk more about football than any other sport. Therefore, football gets heavier media coverage from national television to the Shelby County Reporter.

Most any way one cares to crumble the cookie, track comes up on the scraping end. Shelby County coaches tend to agree.

"Track is not a money maker. It's expensive if you want to do it right," attests Montevallo "track" coach Kurt Pnazek, originally from the Chicago area. "And the emphasis in this state is definitely not on track. Track ining student interest will probably prevent a team from forming this year at MHS, he adds.

He notes too, that most of the better track teams in the state are found at either smaller schools which can't or don't push football, or at the large schools which have more coaches, athletes and

Briarwood Christian High School has recently received an anonymous donation of $50,000 for the purpose of constructing a

The facility will be located on land already owned by Briarwood, across highway 119 from the north Shelby County school's campus. Grading work on the site has already started.

According to Briarwood athletic director Gary Fleming, the 400-meter track will be six-laned and probably coated with a mixture of asphalt and grasstex. Construction may be completed by Christmas.

"We're just real thankful," said Fleming of the donation. "The track will increase our horizon as far as the potential for our whole athletic program goes."

"Besides letting us host track events and not having to tote our team all around, it gives more kids a chance to participate in sports." Fleming added.

terfers with what's happening with football."

Pnazek, who admits to not being trained in the field, has coached track at MHS for the past few years because several athletes wanted to run but no one else was available to help. Lack-program, but coach Mark Lovett has run into problems, too. "After baseball, football and basketball, who cares? Most of our interest is on the junior high level, but how can they compete

Will interest grow?

Eric Marcus, Roger Byrd and Frank Kirkland work out on Thompson's new track. "The new track, we feel, will help our overall program," says Larry Simmons, who'll coach THS track next year. "In the spring we'll see how much interest it generates."

Archers hold indoor shoot

Carolyn Garner of Birmingham proved her steady hand Sunday in Columbiana during the first in a series of indoor shoots sponsored by the new, emerging Shelby County Bowhunters Club. Garner, who happens to be the secretary of the Alabama Archery Association, finished first in the free-style women's division.

The first in a series of indoor archery shoots was held Sunday in the Shelby County High School auditorium.

Twenty contestants entered the event and Sylvester Shaw, the Columbiana man who helped organize it, said he was pleased with the turnout.

The shoot is open to all classes of bowhunters and all calibres of talent, Shaw adds.

First place shooters were Ken Parker, Wilsonville, longbow; Jackie Humphries, Wilsonville, recurve; Rusty Heaton, Birmingham, bowhunter; Dennis King, Columbiana, bowhunter free-style unlimited; Jeff Hambric, Birmingham, bowhunter, free-style, limited; Bill Garner, Birmingham, free-style men; Carolyn Garner, Birmingham, free-style women; Kathy Brazil, Birmingham, youth girls.

The shoots are being put on by the emerging Shelby County Bowhunters Club. Helping Shaw is Wendall Simpson of Wilson-

The next shoot will be this Sunday, 2 p.m., at the high school in Columbiana.

COACH: Tony Taylor 1979-80 RECORD: 13-14 1980-81 PROFILE: "By midseason we should be real competitive and I'll know a lot more about our depth, Taylor said. "The only thing I don't know about is our lack of varsity experience. If they play as well as they worked all during the off season, barring any key injuries, I think we could have a real fine season. if we get going right we should finish well over .500."

RETURNING PLAYERS: Twice All-county Jeff Adams, 6'2" senior forward and guard, anything to do with basketball is his strong point, good athlete. Senior postman

NEW VARSITY PLAYERS: 6'1" junior guard Jeff Butler, new from Oklahoma, will alternate with Sutton as fifth and sixth men. Six-foot forwardguard Keven Searcy, hard working senior, determined and improved. Senior guard Randy Shelley, 5'11", smart player, hard working defender. Senior Sam Bryant, six-foot, hard working forward, good defense. Senior Buddy Baker, a 5'8" guard, new from Kentucky. Sophomore Devin Tubert, a 6'2" guard-forward, good quickness on offense and defense. Sophomore postman Danny Whitman, 6'2", aggressive inside player, good rebounder, real good jump shot, lacks experience.

KEY PLAYERS LOST: Allcounty MVP Mike "Lamp" Edwards, Mike Enoch and Keith Forstman. Together they accounted for about 60% of the scoring last year.

Shelby Academy

COACH: Dewayne Kervin 1979-80 RECORD: 4-18 1980-81 PROFILE: "I'm hoping we'll break .500, but naturally I'm hoping for better," explains Kervin. "Last year we averaged 42-46 points a game and we lost some close ones. We're going to have a pretty good team this year, but so will the rest of the district. We'll be competitive, but height is going to hurt us. We're not starting a man over 5'11".

RETURNING TOP PLAYERS: Senior guard Dirk Carson, 5'11", led scoring last year with 12 point average. Alldistrict senior guard Terry Crabb, 5'11", averaged 11.5 points per game. Junior play maker and point guard Billy Eiland, 5'9", good ball handler, led in assists.

Knowles, 5'10" forward, strong on the boards. Scott Attaway, senior forward, 6'1", good rebounder. Junior Rod Byrd, 6'4", up for some play from B-team, good defense and board work.

Indian Springs

COACH: Greg van Horn 1979-80 SEASON: 8-15 1980-81 PROFILE: "Give us few games and we should be right in there," says van Horn. The first year coach at Indian Springs notes that "academics are the main reason we're here and we only practice about an hour and ten minutes a day. Also a lot of our guys played soccer and we only had a week and a half to get going. But we're a pretty good defensive team and we're only losing three people at the end of the season. We should be really tough next year." Indian Springs is competing for the AHSAA title in the 1-A classification of Area 8, Region 4.

TOP RETURNING PLAYERS: Junior guard Greg Bestor, 5'8", quick moves, good shooter, only returning starter from last year's team coached by Jim Riley.

Coosa Valley

COACH: Ricky Naugher 1979-80 RECORD: 13-8 1980-81 PROFILE: everything pulls together, I'm looking for a good team," Naugher admits. "We've got some good hustlers. We're depending on our speed, and quickness will have to be our strong point. We'll depend a lot on the running game. Although we're a senior ball club, they haven't played that much together," said the first year head basketball coach. Look for a strong showing at the end of the season.

6'0", also developing as a leader. NEW VARSITY PLAYERS: Junior center Victor Hardwick, 6'5", should improve greatly with experience. Steve Hawkins, 6'1" junior transfer, smooth shooter, fair ball handler. 6'1" sophomore wing guard Keven Garrett, natural basketball player but needs experience. Junior Stanley McCranie, 5'10" guard, first year player looking for experience. Senior Troy Beavers, 5'10" point guard, very quick, but not yet over football injury.

COACH: Steve Franklin 1979-80 RECORD: 17-9

1980-81 PROFILE: "We're going to run the fast break and use our quickness," says Franklin. "We'll play man-toman and use the press. Our main problem is we're very inexperienced. I lost nine seniors last year. But after we get the football out of us, after Christmas, I look for us to be a real good team. They're really laying good groundwork for next year.

NEW VARSITY PLAYERS: Lee Kirkpatrick, 5'11" junior forward-guard, possibly best all round player on team, developing as leader. Senior Mike Schor, 5'11" guard, intense, intelligent player, lacks experience because of injury last season, developing as leader. Sophomore Peter Clemens, .6'1" forward, strong inside player. Mark Byers, 6'1" junior forward, fine shooter, good rebounder. Jeff Nelson, 5'10" sophomore guard, good ball handler, adds dimension of quickness. Senior Gene Machen, varsity transfer, 6'4" center, good leaper, fine shooter. Sophomores Brad Byers (6'1") and Terry Brown (5'10"), both hustlers, will improve with experience.

One of the most important steps in hunting is to dress, clean and cool the carcasses promptly. Prompt handling of game not only helps prevent food poinsoning, but also helps prevent the development of a strong flavor. Follow these tips for best against varsity kids?"

Lovett adds that although track offers a lot of personal accomplishment, the glamour just isn't there. Exposure by the media and more interest on the state level would help generate interest, he says.

Briarwood's Bobby Scott, who, along with Jim Barnes at Vincent, is the only other track coach in the county with a track background. He states that football and money are the bottom line drawbacks facing track pro-

"I've got an ideal situation," Scott says of his position at the private school. "But the county's not going to pay anyone to coach just track. And it's asking maybe too much to have a coach pick up another sport for free. That's probably the main problem."

A coach's enthusiasm, Scott suggests, can overcome 99% of a lack in track knowledge. And money would certainly help generate that enthusiasm.

As for enthusiasm among students, Scott contends, "The only way to start a track program is to try and build it into your PE program, get them to include a unit of track and field. That'll kinda' whet the kids' appetites and you can keep an eye out for talent. The younger you get them, the better.

"I want my school to compete in Shelby County, so I'd like to think track is growing here," the Briarwood coach notes. "The new tracks built have to be seen as a positive thing. I'm a little op-

Vincent girls and Briarwood, Scott says, will probably continue to sport strong track programs. Daryll Burnham at Chelsea will probably push track there and Pelham will probably not be far behind, he adds.

Having a track facility is great. But it won't do anymore for the overall program in Shelby County than fancy striped track shoes laying in back of a closet do for one's own personal fitness.

Vincent's girl track team, which finished second in the state recently, practices in the school bus parking lot. Barnes and Debbie Jackson, who coached those girls to the state, teach and coach other subjects and sports as well.

Eventually the matter boils down to the participants, boys and girls who feel they have something to prove, something to give, something to learn, and they think they can do that in neck to neck competition in a track meet.

Is track growing in Shelby

The final answer has to lie in the number of kids who come up to their coaches in the next several months (and years) and say, "Hey coach, I want to run."

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article concludes a three piece series on the growth of track as a sport in Shelby County, and problems facing that growth. The series was written by Reporter Sports Editor David Moore.

Columbiana Alleycat Judy Carroll takes off running against a closing Chelsea Mom, but goes down short of the goal, amid grinning players from both teams. Billed as Ben Gay Bowl II, the "flag" game was played Sunday to try and raise money for the Columbiana Welter Weight program. Chelsea was avenging a recent loss to the Alleycats before the game was called at 35-28 when a Mom got hurt in the fourth quarter, leaving too few players. (Photos by David Moore)

Students selected as math tutors

Two area students have been chosen to work with University of Montevallo faculty and staff to provide individual help for some of their fellow students through UM's Special Services Program.

Danny Blackerby and Susan Humphries of Columbiana are two of 15 students involved in the tutoring program.

Special Services is what its name says it is, according to Elaine Elledge, Special Services director. Three labs, a composition lab, math lab and learning lab, help students who are having problems with a particular sub-

In the lab, the professional staff guides tutors who concentrate on the individual students to help students show improvement rapidly.

The tutors chosen to work in the labs are top students in extracurricular activities as well as in the classroom. "They must also be able to relate well with other people," Mrs. Elledge said. Both Blackerby and Humphries are math tutors.

Library grows

in Montevallo

The Montevallo public library acquired 1,043 volumes in the last year. The books were purchased through efforts of the Friends of the Library organization and through a grant from the state library service.

Many additional non-fiction books are now on order, according to library spokesmen.

Revenue sharing funds have made it possible for the library to purchase audio visual materials and a record player which help in the children's program.

n members Harold d James E. "Jake" ivioris raised strong questions about pay policies for county employees, and about the new voter re-identification program. Both commissioners were critical of the way in which various department heads turn in their payrolls. Davenport asked Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden, "Doesn't the affirmative action program we adopted apply to the entire county?" Snowden nodded assent.

Davenport went on to stress that each department head seems to have his or her own system for turning in payrolls. The inference was that some workers are taking time off during the day, yet still being paid for a full day.

Morris said, "Either the employees should sign time cards or we should install time clocks. I'm ready for a firm policy."

They called on Snowden to handle the matter.

Even stronger rhetoric was directed to Chairman Snowden about what Davenport called the "Bogged-down re-identification program."

"I understand there's 20,000 cards just sitting up there in a cubbyhole in the district attorney's office," he said. "You need to talk to someone and get this moving," he said to Snowden.

(The persons who want to continue to be registered voters in Shelby County are being required to fill out cards, in order to bring the voters list up to date by the end of 1981, and at least 20,000 have already been turned in.)

But the cards must be processed by the Board of Registrars and then go through the probate office and to the computer, Davenport mentioned.

Commissioners agreed that "there seems to be a lot of friction among members of the Board of Registrars and with some of the staff in the probate office."

They urged Snowden to 'do some checking'.

Several months ago, the commission had hired Patsy Wells as a part time clerical worker to help the registrars with the re-

Cloud encounter

The yellowish-green and red cloud which glowed eerily over Shelby County Saturday shortly after dusk was part of a communication test conducted by the department of defense. The cloud, and a smaller one which was visible Thursday, were formed by barium released from a rocket at an altitude of 111 miles over the Gulf of Mexico. According to a US Weather Service spokesman, two more such tests will be conducted before December 19. (Time exposure by Milton Bridges at his farm near Montevallo)

Straw vote set for Wilton mayor

Two names will appear on the ballot when the people of Wilton go to their city hall Friday and Saturday to select a mayor.

Mayor pro-tem David Thomas will be one of the choices and former mayor Mickey Henson will be the other.

Thomas, and a previous mayor, Troy Mims were the two men nominated for the office after mayor elect Will Little resigned before taking office.

However, the council had deadlocked in their vote as they tried several times to fill the office. And now Mims has withdrawn his name.

At last week's council meeting, a delegation of citizens asked the council to let citizens of the town make the choice and the panel

The proposed elementary school at Inverness inched a step forward this week with the sale of state bonds.

Included in the $60 million bond issue sold by the State of Alabama last week is the sum of $1,185,635 for construction of the Inverness school in north Shelby County.

The need for the school has been apparent for several years, and Ted Lansford, assistant superintendent of Shelby County Schools, told the Reporter that the architect's plans will be ready to submit to state authorities this weekend.

He said it takes about a month for the plans to go through the nine different offices in Montgomery that must approve them.

Lansford is now working on the task of lining up additional funds. He indicated the bond issue will fall far short of paying for the entire building. He is studving different sources, including the possibilities of a loan from the Farmers Home Administration and the issuance of bonds by the Shelby County school board.

School bonds include Inverness

He said he cannot predict when the board will be ready to issue bids for the construction.

additional facilities. Thurston Sumners Associates of Columbiana is the architect.

Only three schools in the state received the promise of more money from the state bond issue than Inverness. They are Brewbaker School in Montgomery County, over $4 million; Clay-Trussville in Jefferson The school is designed with 23 County, $3 million; and a school actual classrooms, and the usual in Walker County, $1,201,000.

Hwy 280 made safer; two years' work ahead

The state highway department has beefed up safety precautions on highway 280 at Oak Mountain where two traffic fatalities have occurred in recent weeks. Construction work on the road, however, will not be completed for another two years. The safety problem originates where the new four-lane section of road over the mountain bottlenecks into old, two-lane sections of road to the east and west.

According to division engineer Gary "Mack" Roberts, raised pavement markers and advisory speed limit signs have been installed at the eastern bottleneck near the intersection of highway 41. The highway department reevaluated the safety situation there and installed the measures after talking to state troopers and at least one citizen who called to complain.

Roberts said that the missing 5.7 miles of base and paving through the area known as "The Narrows," however, would not be complete for "almost two years."

The $6.4 million contract to complete the project will probably be let in February or March, and work on the project will begin in late March or early April.

The missing .8 miles of fourane on the Birmingham side of Oak Mountain will possibly be opened before the stretch through The Narrows is finished, he noted.

The four-lane stretch over the mountain and the grading and drainage of the stretch between highway 41 and highway 47 in Chelsea was completed in May by Harbert Construction at a cost of $11.4 million.

The delay, Roberts explained, is due lacking funds and the inability to tie up a lump sum of $18 million for a complete project. Therefore, the project work is let over a period of time.

Roberts said Governor Fob James and highway director Bobby Kemp have given the Shelby County section of highway 280 high priority.

When questioned by the Reporter concerning completion of the four-lane from Harpersville across the Coosa River to Childersburg, Roberts said preliminary engineering work was already underway, but that the construction start was as far off as six years.

"There's not but one thing short and that's money, Roberts said, explaining that the new four-cent gasoline tax had not been in effect long enough to generate adequate construction

Dangerous road

Two recent fatalities on highway 280 at the eastern foot of Oak Mountain have prompted the state highway department to install speed limit advisory signs and raised road reflectors. But it will be two years more before the four-lane at the left ties in with the graded roadway in the background.

Beer tax in Calera draws ire

Beer distributors do not like Calera's new tax on beer. As a result, four major beer companies are boycotting the nine stores in Calera that handle the beverage.

Only one distributor has agreed to the new tax, and as a result, the stores are stocking up on Budweiser, the brand handled by that distributor. All other brands of beer will be off the shelves in Calera when present supplies are exhausted.

Mayor Carl Prichard said at last work's council meeting, "Calera will not submit to this type of blackmail." The council has refused to rescind the tax, which they voted into effect on October 12 to take effect December 1. The tax is for 2 cents per can sold within the city limits, and one cent per can sold within the police jurisdiction.

The beer distributing companies have told the city it is too much of a problem and an expense to attach the separate tax stamp to each can or bottle of

Calera unites to straighten Hwy 25

It will cost somewhere between one and two million dollars to reroute Highway 25 through

That ballpark figure was given to Calera's Highway 25 committee at a meeting last Friday night by Joe Holley, engineer with the Alabama State Highway Department.

Holley said at the public meeting, the re-routing is "very workable." He noted that most of the right-of way is already acguired, since the route would be mainly on dedicated streets.

The proposed route would straighten out the highway, bypass the high school, and avoid two 90-degree turns. It is proposed that the new route run in front of city hall, cross Highway 31 and re-join the present Highway 25 near Interstate--65.

Holley said that on January 13 he will return to Calera with a detailed map outlining the proposed route.

No one at last Friday's meeting opposed the route change. In fact, everyone at the public meeting endorsed the idea, including several trucking companies that are heavy users of Highway 25.

A spokesman for Matlack Trucking said his company trucks make 16,600 trips through Calera per year on the present highway. He said the straightened route would cut down on wear and tear on his trucks' springs and axles by eliminating the two sharp

According to state highway district engineer Gary "Mack" Roberts, the 15-mile missing link of I-65 will open in late March or early April.

Pelham considers flood plain zoning

Matters of zoning took up most of Pelham's city council meeting Monday night.

Requests were made for the rezoning of two parcels of land on old highway 31 which have been zoned for agriculture since the area was annexed into Pelham some two years ago.

The first request by owners William R. and Carol Kinnebrew was for rezoning to R-3 (multi-family) for 8-9 acres on which Indian Wood Apartments are located. It was pointed out that some of the land was still undeveloped, but Kinnebrew said he had no plans for changing that.

That request was passed, but when the Kinnebrew's second. parcel came up for consideration, it drew a negative reaction from five residents who attended the

The second request called for a change to B-2 (business) and the residents protested that they wanted no further businesses located on the western side of old highway 31.

Past rezoning requests for that area have been defeated by Indian Hills citizens who fear the encroachment of businesses into their predominately residential area. The request by the Kinnebrews met a similar fate, even though the parcel of land already has several light businesses which were operating there before annexation.

The denial for rezoning was approved unanimously.

In related matters, the council approved the appointment of three new members to the nineperson planning and rezoning board, headed by councilmen Ray Hamilton.

Approved to as yet unspecified terms were Bill Finley, nominated by mayor Burk Dunaway, Doddie Dotson, nominated by Hamilton, and Sybil Johnson who attended the meeting to protest the Kinnebrews' rezoning request. Johnson volunteered for the position.

The names of Ron Saxon and Martin Brannon were considered for the three vacant seats, but were not approved.

A flood ordinance introduced during the meeting will be acted on this Monday night when the council meets again. The ordinance will mark the 100-year flood plain area for Bishop Creek and establish a floodway zone in which no buildings can be built.

several months. Principals seek help on discipline problems

by Bert Seaman

Minor problems that occur repeatedly can cause a big headache.

And the 746 missed days of school in Shelby County have caused enough distress among high school principals, that they met recently to look for a cure.

Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles mentioned the rash of discipline problems at the November meeting of the Board of Education.

And he deplored the fact that suspensions had robbed students of their opportunity to learn.

meeting, which he attended, Knowles told the Reporter the major concern of the principals was the loss of instructional time.

He related that most of the suspensions given during the first two and a half months of school were handed out for such infractions of the rules as leaving the campus without permission or disrupting a class by late arrival.

However, Knowles stressed that it's only a small percentage of the students in the system who are causing the bulk of the pro-

One way administrators hope to cut down on problems involving violations of standard operating procedures, is to get parents involved.

Knowles said that "Our relationship with parents isn't as close as it should be."

By soliciting parent cooperation before the students' behavior results in a suspension, administrators hope to cut down on time lost from the classroom, Knowles said.

"We've been trying to handle the problem too long by ourselves," the superintendent admitted.

Middle school principals have been asked to join high school principals at their next meeting on Jan. 7 because they are dealing with the same type problems, the superintendent reported.

"The methods we're using today aren't effective," Knowles remarked, adding, "we need to look into current practices and see if we can't come up with some new thing."

Anticipating that teachers and parents will join principals in an ongoing approach to developing effective procedures, Knowles is hopeful the problems will

$60 million bond issue passed for schools

by Fob James

In June I reported to you that I was authorizing the sale of some $90 million in bonds for improvements in our primary and secondary schools. As you know, the bond market, like many other financial markets, has been very unstable.

Because of this instability, we were unable to sell the original authorized issue. But I am proud to announce that we completed transactions last week for a $60 million bond issue. Every dollar of this sale will go towards improvements in the physical facilities of primary and secondary schools across Alabama.

As I have discovered through this administration's "War on Illiteracy", opportunity for learning is greatly enhanced by a school's physical condition. Money from this bond issue will go for purchases of essential items like desks and gym equipment. Also included are room additions, cafeteria expansions, roofing, and bathroom renovations. I have no doubt that money spent in these areas of education are necessary and fundamental to aid in providing the best education available for the tax dollar we have to spend. The one drawback from this bond issue is that like all borrowed money, it must be paid back, and there will be an interest payment, too. These bonds will be retired through the Special Education Trust Fund (SETF). SETF is funded each year through earmarked revenues collected from various tax sources. This year, SETF is aleady in proration - meaning there has not been enough growth in the revenue sources to fulfill the budgeted needs of education.

Problems of growth to fulfill the education needs, along with retirement of this bond debt and others seems to point clearly to some of the basic problems I have addressed since taking office nearly two years ago. We must seek sound solutions to these funding problems.

Above all, our "War on Illiteracy" is working. Our test scores were at or above the national average for the first time in Alabama's history. Our Basic Skills Teams are continuing their fine efforts to determine where and for what reasons problems areas exist. Our teachers, and school administrators are working diligently to see that the school-aged children of Alabama are getting the best education they are able to provide.

As time passes, I will recommend additional steps aimed at improving our education funding needs to insure that education gets its fair share of your tax

Take pride in Alabaster; clean up town by Christmas

To the Citizens of Alabaster:

Now that we are nearing the season of Our Dear Savior's birth - in making preparations let us start by cleaning up and picking up all litter and junk and have it hauled off.

The Town is still picking it up the first and third Tuesday of each month. But you have to call them (663-7401). Let us be truly thankful for each other and take pride in our town by supporting all the good things it has to offer. Each one of us will be greatly benefitted by what each individual does.

With our Faith and Trust in God and all of us working together, our town can accomplish great things. We have our Chamber of Commerce, our new Mayor, Mr. H.C. (Doc) Rubin, and our new city government backing us - so let's get busy and let our town be a shining example of "Togetherness".

"Happy Holidays" to each one of you and may our resolution for the New Year be to have a beautiful, clean town and a healthy place in which to live.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you withthe good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

I planted my peas the last week in July and watched 'em grow through the months of August and September. When October got here I had a pea patch worth looking at.

I looked at it on a Sunday and said to Leona: "We'll have our first mess of peas tomorrow."

But we didn't. The deer came during the night and ate every pea on the vines. That was why today, when the boys took their deer dogs and started out, I tagged along behind, hoping I'd get a

A deer is like a bobwhite and a bobwhite is like a turkey and a turkey is like a dove and a dove is like a squirrel and a squirrel is like a rabbit--you've gotta find 'em before you can shoot em. Even if you can shoot as well as Daniel Boone and Davie Crockett.

But shooting 'em, sometimes, can be something strange.

The first hour came and slipped away, and the second and the third. There was just the sound of a squirrel barking in a hickory and a bunch of bluejays fussing in a wateroak and far off, maybe a half quarter, a house dog barking at the sun.

"Maybe we should o' ordered one from Roebuck," I said.

"Maybe we should have," the guv on the next stand said.

He was an old deer hunter. He could sit on that stand and look in every direction and spit now and then and never say a word from the time the sun humped over the hill until it sank out of sight in the west, setting a bunch of ragged clouds on fire.

Then it happened. From down the hollow a little red and white bitch started making enough noise to start a band. The old hunter got as still as an oak tree. He was leaning against a pine with just his head stuck out and it covered with a camouflage hat that looked more like the woods than the woods did.

Other noises joined in as two red-bone hounds struck the trail They were coming straight up the

I waited, holding my breath. And then they came in sight, two bucks in front and three does behind.

I shot and one fell, and then the other fell. The old hunter said something that I couldn't make out. From over a little rise another buck came in sight. I raised by gun and got him in my sights. If I got him that would make three with just two shots.

But I didn't get 'im. Just as I started to pull the trigger, Leona shook me and said: "Wake up, mister, your breakfast is ready."

Scrambled Bert Seaman

I've been getting the darndest phone calls lately.

One day a man called up and wanted me to meet him in the cemetery the next morning at 8

A few minutes later, another man wanted me to take a picture the day after my cemetery rendezvous and wanted to know what kind of car I'd be driving.

Trying to figure out why he'd need to know that bit of information, it crossed my mind that he might have thought I wouldn't know enough to get out of the car and he'd have to come looking for me.

I'm still not sure why he wanted to know - I guess just so he could come rushing out to greet me when I drove up.

Anyhow, when I told him the vehicle I drive is sort of like a pickup, blue in color, he told me with enthusiasm that he had a brown pickup. You know - I could hardly wait for us to meet.

Anyhow, back to the cemetery. My caller wanted me to photograph him and a couple of other folks with some gravestones.

What pleasanter assignment could I ask for on a Saturday morning?

However, when I arrived, quite a bit past the appointed hour, there was my friend all by himself.

'Oh, oh," I thought, "the other folks must have gotten tired of waiting and gone back home." So I was apologizing all over the place when Mr. Stone (I'll call him), explained that no one else had shown up. I guess people just don't like to meet in the cemetery early in the morning. But I'd take the cemetery any time in place of the dark, swampy field where I found myself a few nights ago. Hearing there was a fire on a particular road I wasn't familiar with, I rushed off into the night in search of it. Of course, it took me so long to find the place, the fire department had come and gone.

But there was still some smoke rising from the structure that had burned, and I followed it to this marshy area.

Leaving my car, I struck out on foot. But before I reached the smoldering ruins, I heard one of the men standing there shouting

There was some thought in my mind that I might not be pursuing the wisest course of action. And I almost retreated.

But having come so far and gone to so much trouble to find the place - plus the fact we were going to be short of pictures that week - I forged ahead.

Since I'm here to tell the tale, you know the adventure had a happy ending.

Even when I told the gentlemen that I didn't think my little vehitcle could make it through the swamp to jump off their stalled car, they were still cordial.

Oh yes, I must mention the man who called and told me about his aversion to shovels.

This was in connection with a groundbreaking and he had come up with a better idea, he said. He wanted me to come and take a picture of a bunch of folks pulling a bulldozer, or something like that. Well, I'll tell you - I can hardly wait to find out what requests are going to come in this week.

Montevallo eyes spending cut

The first of two public hearings on how to spend revenue sharing money in Montevallo was held in conjunction with the Montevallo City Council meeting Monday night.

Fourth quarter revenue sharing funds available to Montevallo amount to $30,404, but requests from various municipal agencies totaled $46,050.

Among the agencies asking for funds: Fire Department, $12,050; Water Board for repairing fire plugs, $10,000; Library Board $2,500; Park and Recreation Board, $6,000; Streets Department $10,000 to repair sidewalks; City Administration, $3,500 for a new copying machine.

Monday night's hearing was a proposed use hearing. The city's finance committee will meet next Monday night to hammer out a proposed budget. On December 22 another hearing will be held to adopt the Revenue Sharing budget.

Recreational vehicles and arguments against granting the where to park them was another license. When the vote came, the topic of discussion. Strict rules council voted unanimously to on the parking of RVs are on the city's ordinance books but have never been enforced. The ordinance pertaining to RVs was adopted before such vehicles became popular.

Council members agreed to rewrite the ordinance relaxing the rules. The proposed changes will be sent to the city's planning commission before changes are adopted.

Another application from Dr. John Rude for a proposed lounge was brought before the council. A previous application for an onpremises liquor license, was turned down by council members.

Monday night's application was for an on-premises beer license. Another delegation from Montevallo's First Baptist church, led by Rev. Tom Manzell was on hand to present

Police chief collapses

Members of Columbiana's police commission went into a closed door session at Thursday night's council meeting following the collapse of Police Chief Howell Horn.

Policemen who were present at the meeting gave the chief emergency treatment and transported him to Shelby Memorial Hospital.

Horn was diagnosed as having gastritis and he was said to be hyperventilating. He was released that night and at presstime was expected to be at work Wednesday.

The closed door meeting was reportedly to handle a personnel problem that had occurred in the police department that day.

But the three commissioners would make no comment on the nature of the problem. Mayor Buck Falkner and Councilmen Bill Seales and Lewis Walker serve on that commission.

Most of the people who had filled the council chamber had departed before Horn was stricken.

Approximately 50 church members attended the session to protest the recycling operation Benny Davis had proposed at his business on Hwy. 25.

The council has been considering Davis' request to handle the city's garbage after he explained his plans at the last meeting.

Members of the two churches near Davis' operation made up the delegation expressing opposi-

It was pointed out that Davis' present operation needed to be cleaned up and it was also noted that property values would be lowered if the new operation was approved.

No action was taken on the matter, but the mayor thanked the group for expressing their opinion.

A letter from the State Highway Department stymied the council's effort to get a traffic light on the street going to the middle school.

It appeared that the state was unwilling to put in a light unless some serious accidents occurred at the intersection.

"The city has been trying to get a light there for ten years," Falkner noted, "but it looks like five or six people will have to get killed before they'll do anything."

Councilman Harold McCord's mention of a request for the installation of a pipe in the ditch north of the Baptist church's Family Life Center, brought a quick response from Councilwoman Jessie Jones. "I object to it simply being a trail." Jones declared after Mc-Cord said residents living in that area wanted a way to walk to Voicing the opinion of families living near her on streets in the vicinity of the jail, Jones said, "We think a road should be opened."

Mentioning that the city had given the church permission to close off Lauderdale St. when the Family Life Center was built, the mayor noted that it was aggregavating now for people to get to town.

The matter was put on the January agenda and Jones indicated that a delegation from the area would show up to express their feelings.

Library beat

by Phil Clark

This is the time of the year when many of our graduating students are thinking about college, careers and vocations. Our libraries have many items to help students make the right choice in deciding their future. Particularly in today's crazy world, it is so important for students to decide early and then develop the skills and knowledge necessary for them to obtain their goals in life.

The Columbiana Library has acquired a collection of college catalogs from colleges and universities from across the Southeast region of the United States. These catalogs on microfiche enable students to examine the schools, the courses they offer and give an idea what college life is like. Now is the time to come into the library and begin deciding on the right college. Students not going on to school after graduation are also beginning to think about the workplace and the many careers and vocations open for their choosing. Again, the library has materials available that will help these students in deciding on their careers. A few titles include the Encyclopedia of careers and Vocational Guidance, Careers for Women After Marriage, Careers in the Armed Forces, Secretarial Careers, occupational Outlook Handbook, Your Career if You're Not Going to College, and Occupations For Men and Women After 45. One outstanding book that has been well received by all job seekers is What Color is Your Parachute, a practical manual for job-hunters and career-changers. Plus there are many other items on vocations and vocational training.

It is the library that holds the key to a bright and a better future.

Pelham officials attend League

Five city officials represented Pelham last week at the National League of Cities convention.

Mayor Burk Dunaway, Councilmen Ray Hamilton, Bob Cleveland and Ken Maynard, and city clerk Willie May Dennis were in Atlanta for the annual meeting from Sunday, November 30 through Wednesday, December

The mayor said some 4,800 city officials from around the country attended the meetings, workshops and banquets to discuss the handling of municipal problems. Workshop discussions ranged from retirement programs and grant applications, to labor relations he said.

"I learned most cities have more problems than we do, but I've known that all the time,"

Dunaway said. "What I get most from (the convention) is meeting other mayors and councilmen and talking about mutual problems to see how they attempt to solve them," Dunaway said his wife attended the meeting with him at his own expense.

Calera's annual Christmas chamber, John T. Weant, Jr., Associate District Executive of the Birmingham Area Council of the Boys Scouts of America outlined plans for organizing a Calera Scout Council that would serve boys from Cubs through Eagle Scouts.

A spring clean up campaign is now in the planning stages. It will be the next major event on the chamber's agenda of meetings.

Walking tree

A Christmas tree, clowns, a roller skater and Tigger were some of the walking floats in the Helena parade. This is the first year for this type of entry and more are expected in next year's event.

Helena Christmas parade features 24 units

Inviting a weatherman to judge your parade seems to bring good

In past years, Helena parade sponsors have encountered both freezing and rainy weather as they put on the annual event.

But Saturday the weather was ideal as TV weatherman James Spann took his seat in the reviewing stand.

The parade was emceed by Scott Palmer, sport's announcer from the same TV station. Other judges were Probate Judge Tommy Snowden, Helena Mayor Sonny Penhale, Alabaster Mayor and Mrs. H.A. Rubin, and Shriner Don Hart, Potentate of the Zamora Temple.

Floats, firetrucks, and bands were among the 24 units that participated.

Mrs. Santa Claus and her class of elves was the winning entry of the Helena PTA.

Dearing Downs' float which featured children from around the world took second place and the Helena Baptist Church float was selected as the third place winner.

Several miniature floats were entered for the first time this year and the Shriners sent their fleet of unusual vehicles as they have for almost every parade.

Music was provided by

Pelham's band and the all black Patterson, Calloway, Moore

Spectators, most of whom lined the street near the Baptist church where the reviewing stand was set up, also saw floats from Gobblers Knob and Fox Haven, the YMCA and senior citizens vans, and Helena, Calera, Pelham and Montevallo fire trucks.

The National Guard's armored division at Calera sent a personnel carrier to be in the parade and traveling the route on foot were Tammy's Twirlers, Helena's Webelos Scouts and the Millbrooks mascot, Snoopy.

Mayor Penhale and the council rode in the back of a pickup, and the alternate Junior Miss, Connie Hayes, and talent winner Laura Yawn, each rode in a convertible.

Grand Marshalls Mrs. Virginia Tucker and Mrs. Emmie Davidson led the parade through town

Alabaster youth hold drop-shop

The youth group at the First Baptist Church of Alabaster is sponsoring a "drop and shop" day this Saturday to enable parents to Christmas shop without Junior tagging along.

The service will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and will be for three-year olds through the third grade. A small, light snack will also be provided.

For reservations call 663-3531, or just come by the church Saturday.

Maylene club sells decorations

The Woodland Hills Garden and Craft Club of Maylene recently decorated 90 mailboxes in their subdivision with "Gingham and Greenery".

The club charged a fee for the cost of the ribbon for the bows, and spent the weekend searching in the woods for greenery to complete their project.

"The decorations seem to unify the subdivision," stated Club member Karen Reaves, "We were very pleased to have a 95% response."

Coaches name All-county gridmen

A .44 magnum handgun and a .300 magnum Winchester rifle pack high calibre punches. And if the the Shelby County Coaches Association All-county Football Team ever padded out and lined up against an opponent, you can bet they'd pack a high calibre magnum punch, too.

The 21 athletes representing Shelby County are the stuff from which football dreams are made.

Any high school coach in the state would be tickled absolutely pink to see so much talent show up on the practice field in August. And any student body, booster club or community vaguely interested in following football would have a heyday-make that a heyseason-supporting such a "dream team."

On paper, the football talent represented here is at least awesome. What this team could accomplish playing together can only be guessed at, but it would have to be impressive.

Each head coach from the eight schools represented by the coaches association submitted a list of players he thought to be deserving of all-county honors.

The coaches then voted on these players and came up with both an all-county team and a team of alternates.

Leading the pack of talent is Thompson's Arthur Johnson, the only player receiving the unanimous vote of the association. The sophomore running back broke the school rushing record with 1377 yards.

Also representing Thompson on the all-county team are senior quarterback Chuck Woody, senior fullback Randy Anderson, and nose guard Billy Lawley, also a senior.

From Vincent, senior tightend Rodney Driggers, senior quarterback James Oden and linebackerguard Bobby Howard are named to the all-county squad ..

Shelby County High School's representatvie to the dream team is junior running back Daron Burns.

From Chelsea, junior middle guard Jack Shaw and senior halfback Kelly Cooper are named all-county.

Briarwood's contributions to the all-county squad are senior guard Scott "Moose" Moorer and senior running back Mike Schor.

Representing Montevallo are senior end Scott Studdard, junior center Rex Wallace and junior running back Tim Jones.

Calera placed three players on the all-county team, senior tight end Raymond King, senior linebacker Kirk Ross and fullback Tim Loftin, also a senior. Rounding out the allcounty team are Pelham's senior tackle Tommy Roy, senior linebacker Chris Cutcliff and senior tackle Ron Domian.

Sixteen players made the alternate all-county football team, or honorable mention.

Vincent's Garrett honored as top coach

Although Vincent's Harold Garrett was voted by the Shelby County Coaches Association as "Coach of the Year," he says the award truly goes to his whole

"I'm real pleased and real happy," Garrett told the Reporter. "But a lot more went into the winning of the award than the things I did."

"The way I look at it, our staff won the award."

Of Garrett's three assistant coaches, only one, Richard Crumpton, returned from the previous year. Crumpton coached the defensive ends and the run-

Kenny Wright, whom Garrett knew casually before hiring him, coached the receivers and defensive backs. Mike Blake, whom Garrett never met before last summer, was hired to coach the offensive and defensive lines. Garrett handled the linebackers and quarterbacks.

Apparently the combination worked.

In Garrett's first year as head coach, the Vincent Yellow Jackets racked up a 9-2 and made the first round of the state playoffs.

"I couldn't have been more pleased with the jobs they did," Garrett said.

An alumnus of Vincent's vintage class of 1970, Garrett attended Livinston University for four years. After a year and a half there, he signed up for football and "played a lot on Monday and Tuesday afternoon, but not much on Saturdays. I learned a lot, though," he added.

His brother, Gary "Goose" Garrett, who was making his debut as Vincent's head coach in 1974, hired Harold as an assistant. After six seasons and a 40-20 record with the 'Jackets, Gary retired to Florida last year and Harold slid into the drivers

"I felt like I had served my time and thought I deserved a shot at head coach," Garrett said. "I had some reservations, but I wanted to see what I could do."

"Some kids want to be firemen, but I never wanted to be anything but coach since I was a little guy."

Garrett lives in Harpersville with his wife Sue and four-year old daughter Amy. The Garretts are expecting their second child in March.

Look for Garrett, Crumpton, Blake, and Wright, and the Vincent Yellow Jackets, to be in the midst of Shelby County football action again next year.

Included in the record are two wins over both Stillman College and Talladega College, plus victories over Shorter College, Georgia Southwestern College, Covenant College, and Lee College. Montevallo has won both its tournaments, the Montevallo-Lions' Club Tip-Off and the Lee College Turkey Tournament.

The encounter with Birmingham-Southern will also mark the beginning of the Falcons' Southern States Conference season. Montevallo leads the conference with an 88.6 scoring average and a 16.3 scoring margin.

Although the Panthers are only 2-3 (pending the outcome of their game with Alabama State Wednesday), UM coach Bill Elder isn't taking them lightly.

"Southern has had a tough early schedule, which explains their record," the UM mentor noted. "I've seen them, and they're a very good ballclub. Perhaps they aren't quite as strong as they were, say, two years ago, when it always took a superhuman effort to beat them, but if we don't play better than we have in the last couple of games, we'll get beat. We're going to have to play very well as a team to have a chance."

Four Falcons will take doublefigure scoring averages into the 'Southern game, led by Birmingham senior guard Lester Brown's 19.7 mark. Others in twin digits are senior forward Mike Daniel of Phenix City at 17.3, senior center James Berry of Florence at 13.1 (and 9.4 rebounds), and senior guard Dennis Crutcher of Toney at 10.3.

The Birmingham-Southern game will be the Falcons' last until after the New Year, when they take part in the Tennessee Temple Invitational in Chattanooga,

Giving junior a gun as Christmas present calls for several serious considerations by Earl Franklin Kennamer Chugging from the nawth paul at full reindeer speed, Santa Claus will soon be here. I know many fathers, who still follow hunting as a healthy sport, are anxious to get their young boys a "hunting gun."

This potential decision is one of the most important for a parent -- and this is especially poignant for a mother if she is the single parent with dependent children. As a youngster who without a gun accompanied his dad afield for a couple of seasons, I was allowed to shoot quail with his shotgun when I was 13 years old.

You and I know some growing youths mature faster than some young adults. We know 40 and 50-year-olds kill themselves and others "accidentally" with

A parent simply has to make his own decision as to a boy or girl's gun ownership age. You would be surprised at the calls I get during this month as to what gun "would you suggest I get my son for Christmas?

What kind of gun -- calibre, gauge, action, brand -- is the confusion that clouds that issue of the proper Christmas gift. The day of the gift undoubtedly tags the occasion as the day a boy becomes a man (or a girl becomes a woman) and puberty or adolescence has nothing to do

First of all, a game species has a lot to do with gun choice. If you are living near the TVA waters in north Alabama or near Mobile Bay, duck and goose hunting is lightweight young waterfolwer should shoulder nothing less than a 20-gauge 3-inch magnum scattergun in full or modified choke. I'm in the minority, but I prefer the double gun -- over-and-under or side-by-side. The autoloader (there are no automatic shotguns) is probably the best buy. The "cornshucker" or repeating pumpgun is excellent, but this action has a lower popularity than the autoloader. However, the more mechanized the firearm, the more likely it may malfunction or jam. This is one reason I'm a double aficionade. Come to think of it, many persons have called me a double barreled something or other. Hunting squirrels is a great sport of many where bushytails are abundant in the oak bottoms and hickory ridges. The .22 is the. choice harvest tool of the specialist where it can be safely used because he must take his game with well placed head shots. The bolt-action rifle would be my choice. However, pump and lever action models are good choices. There are those who would lean toward the "auto." This is a poor choice in my opinion. (Did you war veterans ever see a machine gunner who fired a single shot to drop an enemy soldier?)

Biggest demand for rifles today is for deerhunting. Choose nothing smaller than .243 (6mm) calibre because this is the smallest calibre permitted for taking deer by current state regulation. You might select 7mm, .300, .303, the .270, 30-06 and others but stick often the most popular sport. A to most popular calibres. Again I'm for the bolt-action or the single shot Ruger, because the deer hunter seldom has a chance to get off more than one well aimed shot. Other available actions include pump, lever and autoloader.

> For turkey, rabbit, all fowl, the shotgun is the ticket. It is also good for squirrels and can be used for stalk hunting deer if you use rifled slugs. I suggest nothing less than the 20-gauge, but this gun chambered for the 3-inch magnum cartridge can also handle regular 2 and 34-inch cartridges. I'm a 16-gauge buff, but the ammo is often difficult to find in rural areas. The 12-gauge gun and ammo are still standard. The 28-gauge is an oddity. I have no use for the .410 gauge.

Before Santa hands over a powder burner for Christmas, have your son or daughter learn and demonstrate the proper rules of gun safety and handling.

Poaching remains problem

by Jack Hagopian Dept. of Conservation

There is probably no one person who stirs up the blood of hunters and other wildlife enthusiasts as the illegal hunter. That fellow, who disregards law, property rights, and management of wildlife usually has contempt for fairplay and his fellow man.

An accurate count of the wildlife illegally taken annually in Alabama is unknown, but estimates run in the thousands. Poaching has been and remains a major problem in the illegal taking of wildlife.

The Legislature has authorized some stiff penalties to discourage these revolting practices.

These penalties include a $25 to $500 fine for hunting on property of another without written permission. These penalties go up for those caught hunting in a closed season from $50 to $500 for the first offense, $100 to $500 for the second offense and $250 to $500 for the third or successive offenses, and at the discretion of the court a possible six month sentence for any of those offenses. Those who hunt deer at night, which is illegal, can expect fines of $50 to $500, and anyone actually taking a deer at night faces a $500 to $1,000 fine and probable confiscation of all equipment, including vehicles.

Today, enforcing these laws there are approximately 155 uniformed Wildlife Conservation enforcement Officers (CEO) equipped with boats, motors, and vehicles, including 43 new fourwheel drive pickup trucks. In addition, the Game and Fish Division is organized and capable of immediately deploying as many as 12 additional CEO's into a specific area requiring additional officers.

Columbiana argues

Should city float bonds for dentist?

by Bert Seaman

One Columbiana councilman wasn't in favor of bonds being issued to help a dentist build a clinic.

And another member of the panel said he thought it was foolish to hire a person to pump gasoline for city vehicles when someone already on the payroll could do it.

However, reactivating the medical clinic board and employing a parttime person to handle pumping duties had both received the council's approval at previous

J.I. Harrison, a former banker who is paving the way for the construction of a dental clinic Dr. Robert Thornburg wants to construct, brought the council new information on the project at its meeting December 4.

Several months ago, the council had okayed the medical clinic board being reactivated. But Harrison reported bond attorneys were not satisfied with the legality of the first board.

He explained that some of the board minutes were missing plus the fact Columbiana was a town when the first board was formed and now it's classified as a city.

For those reasons, he said, the attorneys recommended a new board be established.

But Walker felt that if the council approved the sale of bonds for tax exemption purposes to help Thornburg, the same thing should be done for every business.

Mayor Buck Falkner pointed out that an Industrial board had been activated to help Simsco begin operations, noting that the city wouldn't actually be involv-

In his explanation of changes that had occurred since the last time he appeared at a meeting, Harrison said that two of the three board members were new.

Gerald Fulton and Hank Spires had replaced him and Alvin Stinson because of conflicting interests, Harrison said. Former mayor Dick Ozley is still on the board.

Although Bill Justice, a member of the law firm that represents the city, has said all the papers establishing the board are in order, Walker thought there should be more investiga-

Telling Harrison the matter would be "thrashed out," Mayor Falkner said an answer would be given in five or six days.

In order to keep a better check on the gasoline from the city pump, Willard Cross was hired to work a maximum of ten hours a week with a maximum salary of $4 an hour.

Voting no on the finance committee proposal, Councilman Owen said that in his opinion it was "ridiculous."

Owen felt that someone already on the payroll could be given that responsibility.

Councilman Harold McCord brought out the fact that this method of keeping track of gasoline was being done on a trial basis for a year. He mentioned that methods being used by other municipalities were being studied.

The council was unanimous in approving the employment of a parttime secretary to help City Clerk Mary Largin issue business licenses and conduct surveys.

Her salary is to be $3.50 an hour. But the panel also agreed to pay only mileage for two Samford University students who will assist in doing a survey to determine who lives within the city

Studying the Christmas customs of other countries is opening up some new vistas to students in the LEAP class at Vincent Elementary School.

Now in its second year at VES, the focus of the enrichment program for high achievers is centered on the holiday season this month.

LEAP stands for Learning Experiences, Activities and Projects. And the small classes of students in grades 2-5 have made it possible for individualized exploration and study in areas of interest to each child.

Although parents, and educators have praised the program, it has come in for some criticism lately.

LEAP challenges students

The class is taught by 5th grade teacher Brenda Lowe. And when she takes participants on a field trip, Mrs. Bettie Valenti said she didn't think it was fair for LEAP parents to have to pay a substitute teacher.

Appearing at the last Board of Education meeting, Valenti also questioned whether 5th graders could teach.

A substitute was paid by the school the first time she and librarian Roger Ingram took LEAP students on a field trip, Lowe said, and the services were volunteered on the second occa-

When she mentioned 5th graders teaching, Valenti said she meant the three students who handled the library when Ingram was away. And she noted that they missed their own classes by being in the library all day.

However, Ingram maintains he cancels his library classes when he's away from the school on field trips.

The librarian noted with pride, that he does have eight well trained 4th and 5th grade students whom he uses as aides on a daily

Expressing her enthusiasm for the LEAP program, Alta Caddell, whose second grade younster is in the class, says her son wants to start working on projects as soon as he gets home from school.

"The program has really motivated him to learn," she declared.

Requirements for being in the class are: scoring 85 percent or above in two of the three main subjects (language, reading and math) on the most recent California achievement test; and having the recommendation of the classroom teacher and parental permission.

Mrs. Lowe says the purpose of the program is to provide opportunities to "develop creative thinking and problem solving skills that are too often deemed impossible to provide in a regular classroom setting."

Materials and methods, she explained, are designed to encourage use of basic research skills and individual creativity.

And sharing plays a big part in the program, Lowe noted. When a study is completed, she said that her students share what they've learned with classmates and other classes too.

"We explore a variety of subiect areas and career opportunities as well," the LEAP teacher remarked.

In addition to trips to a planetarium, an art and history museum and to the tennis courts of a local pro, students have also heard from local artists and a psychologist who visited their classroom.

The program also tries to come up with projects in which the entire school can participate, Lowe noted. One that she named was a mock election in which everyone voted by paper ballot. Voting demonstrations were also given on a sample voting machine provided by the county, the teacher related. She also mentioned that materials purchased by the Parent Teacher Organization for the program, can be used by other classes in the school.

The enrichment classes are held every afternoon except Monday with no more than 12 youngsters in the room.

Second graders meet on Tuesday; third, fourth and fifth grades meet together on Wednesday; just fourth graders assemble on Thursday and third and fifth grade participants have a session Friday.

"We been visited by members of the central staff from the Board of Education," Lowe reported, "and they've been pleased with what they've seen."

"In fact," the LEAP teacher beamed, "Special Education Coordinator Dr. Linda Nolen said she would like to see it in every school in the county."

1980 ANNUAL REPORT 2

Shelby County Soil and Water Conservation District

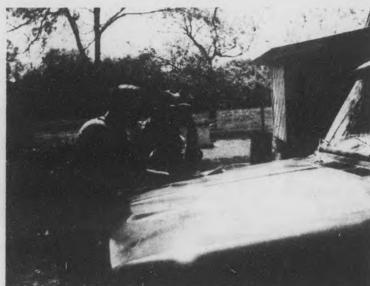

NO-TILL FARMING

Fewer trips across the field, increased yields, less soil loss, all with notill farming. To beat the high fuel cost and reduce erosion farmers all over Alabama are turning to this method of farming. It works especially well with soybeans, and may prove to be the only effective method of erosion control on our rolling limestone valley land. As pictured here, soybeans are planted directly into small grain or grass sod.

SUBDIVISION DEVELOPMENT SLOWS

Terrific increases in interest rates and cost of construction has brought subdivision development to a halt. Development projects such as the one pictured here may well mark an era of housing boom never again to be seen. High interest, run away construction cost and high land values makes it imperative that you know as much about the land and soil condition as possible before making an investment. Our office can provide you with such information for sound land-use and development

PLANNING IS "KEY" TO GOOD LAND-USE

You wouldn't think of building a house without a plan. Can you imagine what it would be like to build each room separately and then try to put them all together. Yet, as landowners and users we constantly plow up, clear, and work our land in fragmented pieces without any definite course of action. We should look at the whole picture examine alternatives and consequences and chart a definite course. Through our SCS staff, our District provides this service to you as a land-user and tax payer. Pictured here Mr. T.V. Peets of Dogwood and District Conservationist Robert Kelley discuss land-use problems and alternatives.

SO MANY DEPEND ON SO FEW

LAND USE - A Paramount Issue for the 80's

"Acres are Aces". A phrase so expressive of our modern times, and yet first uttered some 40 years ago by Hugh Hammond Bennett, first administrator for U.S.D.A Soil Conservation Service. Mr. Bennett went on to say, "that our land is a richer prize by far than the oil lands of the Caucasus, the Iron deposits of the Urals, and the gold veins of South Africa, our land is the most important of man's earthly possessions".

Protection of our food producing land from exploitation and erosion will receive more attention than ever before, as we move into this decade. Why so much concern? Everyday in the U.S. four square miles of our nations food producing lands are shifted to irreversable uses, such as urban development, highways, shopping centers and the like. Soil erosion is sweeping away 4 billion tons of food producing top soil every year. Enough soil to load a freight train 663,000 miles long. All of this soil is washing into our streams, lakes and rivers causing problems with water supplies, navigation, fish and wildlife.

During the past decade we in Shelby County have seen more than 20,000 acres of land go to urban development. We have seen erosion strip much of our Coosa Valley soybean and cotton lands down to red clay. We must work together, farmers and city dwellers; government and private citizens to turn this trend around before we find ourselves in a food shortage that will be much more disasterous than being without oil and gas. We have trained professionals to assist you with any land-use problems that you might have.

FIELD WORK ON COLUMBIANA'S TOWN CREEK DITCH COMPLETE

Flooding of low lying areas along Town Creek Ditch has been a serious problem for development within Columbiana city limits. In cooperation with the City Government, our District took on the task of doing field survey and elevation studies along the creek to pin point restrictions and flood elevations. All of the field work has been completed and information compiled and forwarded to the Soil Conservation Staff in Auburn for analysis and recommendations. Pictured here Mr. Sherrel McClure (in the background with tape) and Mr. Doug Mitchell (with rod) provide measurements and elevation readings on the last segment behind City Hall. Also, a similar project, is underway for the Town of Calera. Calera's study will be along Buxahatchee Creek.

SOIL SURVEY ALMOST COMPLETE

State Soil Scientist John Meetze (left), Jim Brown (right) and County Soil Scientist Harold Neal (standing) examine soil conditions for naming and classifying the many different kinds of soils in Shelby County. We are only about 3 months away from having all 512,000 acres of land mapped and described. When complete, this information will provide all landusers, from developers to farmers, with detail information about any piece of property in the county. The report will contain such information as depth of rock, permeability rates, flood hazard, depth to water table, strength, clay content, crop, pasture and woodland production capabilities, and many other factors that effect land-use decisions.

WATER - ESSENTIAL FOR GOOD LAND-USE MANAGEMENT

On land where no reliable source of water is available, a man-made pond or lake could be the answer. A properly constructed pond that is well managed can be a great asset to any piece of property. Ponds usually have many uses such as livestock water, recreation, fish production and wildlife water. But, they need to be properly constructed, safe and pleasing to the eye. Pictured here is a newly constructed pond just beginning to fill with water. Notice the properly cut waterline, wide dam with good slopes, properly installed pipe and earthern spillway for emergency overflow. Also, you can see that the dam has been seeded and mulched with hay to prevent erosion problems.

F.F.A. STUDENTS LEARN LAND-USE MANAGEMENT

Students from all over Shelby County get first hand experience in making land-use decisions. Our District Board sponsors an annual land judging contest where Future Farmers of America students study soil conditions and best land-use management practices. Each school competes in a county contest and the winner progresses on to a multicounty and then state contest where they match skills with students on a statewide basis. In this picture students study a woodland site.

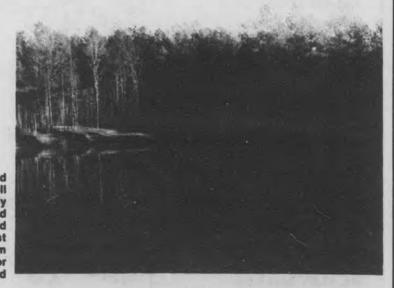

PASTURES NEED IMPROVEMENT

Mr. Starling Baker of Montevallo, along with hundreds of other cattlemen over the county recognizes the need for good pasture management. High fertilizer cost, low beef prices and dry weather brought on improper fertilization, poor weed control and poor quality forages and hay. Many cattlemen had to sell part of their herd just to make it through the dry summer and fall. Fertilizer, lime and grazing control are the key elements to good pasture management. You must soil test and apply recommended amounts of lime and fertilizer to produce

BETTER WOODLAND MANAGEMENT NEEDED

Shelby County has approximate 388,000 acres of woodland, of which about 220,000 acres belong to small private landowners. Pulpwood and related wood products contribute about 3 billion dollars per year to our economy. As a whole, private landowners do very little woodland management. Along with the Alabama Forestry Commission, Extension Service, private timber management specialist and timber companies, our District is making all out efforts to assist private landowners in management techniques that could double productivity per acre. In this picture SCS Forester Jerry Johnson gathers site index information to help woodland managers do a better job of growing trees.

As a team, our District Board and our Soil Conservation Service personnel assigned to Shelby County, have accomplished much during 1980 and been involved in hundreds of activities to improve our natural resources through sound and practical soil and water conservation measures. These cover a wide range of activities from erosion control, to engineering surveys and designs of ponds, terraces, waterways, ditches, waste lagoons and total land-use planning, just to name a few. In providing these services, we have worked with over 600 different landowners and rendered approximately 950 different technical services encompassing some 30,000 acres of land on hundreds of land-use problems depicted in the articles and pictures above. Any and all of these services are available to you as a land-user in Shelby County. For further Information or assistance call our Shelby County District Office at 669-7136. We are here to serve you!

Merry Christmas!

A Happy and Prosperous New Year to All!

Vickrey heads heart drive

Dr. James Vickrey, Jr. was named chairman of the 1981 fund raising drive in Shelby County, according to Rex Lysinger, president of the Jefferson-Shelby Heart Association.

As chairman, Vickrey will coordinate volunteers in communities throughout Shelby County. These volunteers will distribute heart information and raise funds during February, which is heart month.

Dr. Vickrey, President of the University of Montevallo, said, "Last year 3,111 citizens of Jefferson and Shelby Counties died of heart disease, our nation's and state's number one killer. The Jefferson-Shelby Heart Association is fighting to reduce early death and disability from these diseases with research, professional and public education and community service programs."

CAN WE UNDERSTAND THE BIBLE ALIKE?

Some say we can't. They say we can agree only on the "basics". Everything else must be left to individual interpretation. Of course, "essentials" are determined by what people prefer, so we actually agree on very little. But- can we really not understand the Bible alike, or is this just a smekescreen we use to convince ourselves that God will allow us to de things because we like them, and not because He

If we cannot understand the Bible alike, then: Why were Bible preachers allowed to teach only CNE message? (Galatians 1:7-9)
How can there he just ONE faith to accept? (Ephenians 4:5)
Why are we forbidden to add to or take from the gespol? (Revelation 22:18,19)
Why should the same obedience he required of all? (Mark 16:15,16)
How can we all he mitted in the same mind and Jadgment? (1 Corinthians 1:10)
Why did all converts obey in the same way? (Ac'ts 2:41; 8:12; 18:8)

Who can believe that God could not write a Book everyone can "see" alike; and who can explain why He did not if He could? Fits greatest desire for us is that we may be one (John 17:21), and "can two walk tegether, except they be agreed?"

Seasonal rise in crime not appearing this year

by David Moore

Christmas. It may be the season that children entertain visions of sugar plums and expect a visit from St. Nick, but for law enforcement officers, Christmas marks the season they usually experience a sharp rise in crime, especially burglaries and thefts.

But from the viewpoint of most law enforcement agencies at work in north Shelby County, it just doesn't seem like Christmas this year.

And that's good news.

Helena, Pelham and Alabaster police report that they have not experienced the usual season rise in crime this Christmas. And the sheriff's department reports that all has been unusually quiet on the north Shelby front between highways 280 and 31.

Only the Hoover police, who have patrolled Riverchase since its recent annexation report the expected rise in crime. But their figures reflect criminal activities on the north side of the county line as well as Riverchase.

Sheriff's investigator Reed Smith, noting the lack of burglaries in north Shelby County says he hopes it is due to the department's doing a good job.

"We made several arrests on two groups last month and got some of our regular customers off the streets. That stopped a lot of (the burglaries)," he says.

"Usually October, November and December are heavy months," the investigator explained. "But it's down and we're going to work hard to see that it stays that way."

Alabaster Sgt. Larry Rollan notes that area is witnessing a small growth in crime, but not

"Up to this point I'd say it's less than previous years," Rollan states. "Maybe the good judges have put some (burglars) away and scared them off. Also, we're on the road more and try to make more rounds this time of year."

Allan Wade reports Pelham's situation is similar, though "there's a better chance of a person finding something they want to steal this time of year.'

Although he admits he can't prove the slump in crime is due to the efforts of his department, Wade says he thinks that intensified patrols in Pelham have played a part.

Helena hasn't had a burglary since November 6, reports assistant chief Ray Rollan. The last theft was reported November 13.

"It's unusually quiet. We had all our burglaries back before Thanksgiving," the Helena officer says. "Maybe the burglars are somewhere else doing their business. But if we stay on top of it, we can maybe discourage some of them."

If in fact the burglars are doing business somewhere else instead of just taking a vacation, that somewhere else might be Hoover.

"It's definitely up in Riverchase," reports Lt. C.F. Spielman of the Hoover police. "I don't think it's any worse, but with inflation, the value (of stolen goods) is greater."

With the annexation of Riverchase, Hoover doubled its size from six square miles to 12 square miles and added some 240 dwellings to its population. To help handle the added burden of patrolling the area, the police department added two men per shift. They are also trying to establish neighborhood watch programs like they have started in other parts of Hoover, Spielman added.

Hoover police request residents to report any suspicious activities in Riverchase by calling the 822-5300 emergency number.

Police in all four of the towns, as well as deputies with the sheriff's department, also request residents who intend to go out of town, especially over the holidays, to call or come by the station and fill out a patrol re-

In Alabaster

Garbage contract undecided

Two firms are claiming they should be given the contract to pick up garbage in Alabaster.

McCray Gingo told members of the city's governing body Monday night, that he expected them to accept the low bid which was submitted by his firm, Shelby Sanitation.

But Robert White from Hoover Sanitation pointed out that he was the only one of the three bidders to post a $50,000 certified check.

It was Gingo's contention that the city had specified that a bid bond be posted and that no bonds of that type were available.

"What's better than cash?"

White asked. Telling the council that he had the experience and the equipment to do the job, Gingo stressed that he could save the city money. But the council wasn't ready to make a committment until the bids could be studied thoroughly.

"There are a lot of factors to be- considered," Mayor H.A. "Doc" Rubin pointed out. "You can't go on the premise that because you're the low bidder you'll get the contract."

The bid submitted by Shelby Waste was $2.85 per home; Whitfield Sanitation's figure was $3.05 per home and Hoover Sanitation bid $3.30 per home and $3.55 per business.

According to City Clerk Dot Henry, the city provides pickup service for 2,300 homes and 145 businesses.

The committee appointed to study the bids is composed of Glen Naish, Cal McCune and L.O. Farris.

Hoover Sanitation now provides service for the city and their contract expires Dec. 31. However, the city has a grace period of 30 days to award the new contract if the situation re-

Two other matters that will also receive further study are the utility tax on the Water and Gas Board and an ordinance requiring developers to put in sidewalks.

Both had been proposed by Councilman Jack Reagin at previous meetings.

The cost for builders to install sidewalks in new subdivisions would be around $350.00 per home, Reagin reported.

Even though he finds it hard to believe the Wilton mayor's job is his again, Mickey Henson says he's anxious to make up for lost

Mayor Pro Tem David Thomas, who was also running for the office, abstained from

He received 44 votes in the weekend balloting and Henson got 67.

Referring to the people who went to the polls, Henson said it showed the town was still active

The new mayor hopes to be sworn into office in the next day or two and says he may then have a called meeting of the council.

"My first priority," he told the Reporter, "is to find out how we stand on all phases of city business and then we'll proceed from there."

Wilton has been without a mayor since the resignation of Will Little, the candidate who defeated Henson in the fall elec-

Thomas and a former mayor, Troy Mims, were nominated for the post, but the council deadlocked in their voting.

Station closing

in Columbiana

The application of Southern Railway Company to close its agency station at Columbiana has finally been approved.

For the past several months the request has been going through the long process of public hearings. It was approved by the Alabama Public Service Commission on December 9.

The Southern is permitted to discontinue its station at Columbiana and to open an agency station at Yellowleaf, which is the railway's designation for the stop at the SEGCO plant near Wilson-

The new station will be called Columbiana-Yellowleaf. It will be the governing agency for Columbiana and Wilsonville.

The application stated that 99 percent of the total revenue at both Columbiana and Yellowleaf was from operations at Yellowleaf for the year ending Continued on page 7

Davis still faces charges in Shelby County resulting from a raid on his house which was carried out by local law enforcement officials the day he was arrested by UNDO. Investigators from the Sheriff's department and the Pelham police department confiscated some 20 guns, approximately 70 pounds of marijuana and additional quaaludes when they raided Morris' residence on the Helena Road, about a mile from Tobacco World, his place of business on highway 31.

Not only does Davis still face charges in Shelby County stemming from that raid, but according to assistant district attorney Bob Williams he also has another set of charges pending. In October, when Davis was served his indictment on the federal charges, of-

Trade group talks at Alabaster meet

Foreign Trade Commission met last Tuesday in Alabaster.

One of the subjects discussed during the meeting, was the plan to help a Nigerian chief who is interested in bringing financing into this country.

Commission Chairman, Guy Burns, reported that the commission's office is being moved from Mobile to Montgomery. Bob Felman is the new director

Members of Alabama's of the commission, Burns said. He takes over the job held by Joe Givhan who was the six year old commission's first director.

Some of the countries commission members have visited in an effort to establish trade relations have been Russia, Scotland, England and Venezuela.

The primary purpose of the commission, Burns stressed, is to promote Alabama made products abroad.

Radio hams eye SCARES plan

A group of amateurs talked "scare" tactics Saturday in Columbiana and the professionals listened and like what they heard.

A group of 19 ham radio operators held an organizational meeting for SCARES (Shelby County Amateur Radio Emergency Service) at the Civil Defense building. Also attending the meeting were represenatives of the Red Cross, sheriff's department, Fire Chiefs' Association and Civil Defense.

According to SCARES spokesman Joe Myers of Pelham, the discussions focused on the communication benefits that the new group could provide for the various agencies who would be involved in handling any massive emergency situation which might arise in Shelby County.

As of now, no emergency programs exist to deal with massive disaster situations.

Myers said that SCARES would be able to perform such helpful activities as mobilizing reports from floods, tornadoes or fires, and to keep up communications between all the agencies which would be activated to deal with a given disaster.

Carl Weeks who is coordinating the organization of the group, noted that there are 72 ham operators in Shelby County. Nineteen of them attended the Saturday meeting.

"Our impediment is that more public officals don't realize we exist and have the capability to help in emergencies," Myers

The meeting apparently helped the problem.

"It's got a lot of possibilities," Chief Deputy James Jones said after he attended the meeting. "I can visualize them helping in a lot of situations. Their mobile units could assist us in our law enforcement if they are properly organiz-

Said Civil Defense director Bill Tucker, "I can see where it'll be lot of help to us. The best part is radio units to gather damage that they have their own sophisticated equipment, because the county doesn't have the money for it. We'll take all the volunteer help we can."

"You can hardly do anything without communications," he Pelham Fire Chief Bill Bryars said he was impressed with SCARES' potential.

"Hopefully I can utilize them and their equipment in Pelham's emergency preparedness program. I'm impressed with what they can do. They're not doing it yet, but they're trying to set it up and I think that's great."

Besides just Pelham, Bryers said that SCARES could be a benefit to the whole county in a disaster situation.

Backing up Weeks as coordinator are Bill Bradley of Wilsonville and Jim Blackman, a Columbiana businessman.

Both Myers and Weeks said they were pleased with the meeting, the turnout and the

From what I can gather, postal authorities say they need the expanded zip codes so that many of the letters now read by postal workers could be read by a machine called an Optical Character Reader. They argue that after the initial $1 billion cost for equipment, the nine-digit zip would save money in the long

However, there has been little or no evidence presented that a shift to this confusing and expensive expanded zip code would save money or speed mail delivery.

Further, the nine-digit zip is designed to affect busines customers and not to improve mail service to the average American taxpayer. Yet the Postal Service has not examined the start-up costs for businesses,

I am strongly opposed to the nonprofit organizations of government organizations necessary to convert their mailing lists or make other changes necessary for the nine-digit zip. These costs could easily top another $1 billion--a cost which would ultimately be paid by the American people.

I believe it is possible for the Postal Service to improve mail delivery service and to cut costs without resorting to this confusing nine-number zip code plan.

For example, the Postal Ser-In order to implement the nine- vice could use new automated mail sorting equipment to read the current, simpler five-digit zip codes. Further, the Postal Service could offer incentives to business customers to imprint special barcodings on their billing and reply mail to increase efficiency.

Beyond the practical and rational objections to the new ninedigit zip code, there is the issue of strong negative public reaction. The Assistant Postmaster General has said the nine-digit zip plan cannot work "without the help, confidence and a degree of patience" on the part of the American people.

If that is the case, then the plan is doomed from the start because public reaction to the proposal has been universally negative. Most Americans have adjusted well to the current five-digit zip but have said they will not accept the longer zip code.

I have received a great deal of mail from Alabamians on this subject and almost every letter has been against this expensive and wasteful proposal.

"Deck the halls with boughs of holly."

That's the way the song goes. But I'd like to know where you find the time to do it.

When the season to be jolly arrives, the activities to be covered just seem to snowball.

With the plays, beauty contests, parades and other functions consuming so much time, I was beginning to wonder if I could even find time to shop.

So when Saturday rolled around and there were only two events on my calendar, I agreed to accompany my daughter on a whirlwind gift buying trip.

I thought surely we could finish in time for me to make my mid-afternoon event. However, we ran into a slight snafu which threw our ETA a few hours off.

What disrupted our well laid plans was a missing pocketbook. No, neither of us lost our purse; it was the one my daughter had selected as her Christmas present, which had vanished from the shelf.

Since everyone has their own ideas about the size, shape and color of the container in which their possessions are carried every day, I was glad to have her pick out the one she wanted.

We anticipated no problems since she knew exactly the one she wanted. But guess what? The store didn't have that purse any

And it was at that point that our trip bogged down.

She went through all the purses in the department trying to find a substitute. And I joined in the search, pointing out the ones that appealed to me.

But none of them seemed to capture her fancy. So I wandered to another department while she looked on every counter, shelf and rack.

Finally deciding that it was hopeless, we moved on to another store. And then she spotted it - the perfect pocketbook.

It seemed that fate had smiled on us at last. But the clerk didn't. She firmly declared that my gasoline credit card just wouldn't do as identification when I presented my check.

Not about to give up her gift, my daughter asked what kind of identification would be acceptable. So, the dear lady got out a long list and read through it.

She finally hit upon an item I could come up with, so the purchase was made.

As we headed toward home, I calculated the meeting I had intended to cover was probably winding up.

I did make it to the evening event though. And the next day, I took in an afternoon home tour and a play in the evening.

At least I have a little shopping done. But when, I wonder, am I going to find time to decorate the halls?

Governor to eye defense during European vacation

by Fob James

On December 19, I plan to wave for Europe for a Christmas acation with my family. During y vacation I have scheduled everal days for a first hand look a some of our American military astallations in Germany.

When I was in Europe earlier this Fall on the industrial trip to England, Germany, Denmark and Sweden, I took time to visit briefly with some of our soldiers in Frankfort. At that time I decided to plan another tour of American installations during Christmas.

In previous weeks I have mentioned to you my interest in our state militia. Our Alabama National Guard is at 100 percent strength. It stands ready to assist as a backup support unit to this nation's first line military defense. But our Guard has not always been as well prepared as today's group. In World War II called into action in the European theatre. On December 29, I will arrive at U.S. Army Headquarters in Heidelberg, Germany. There I will be briefed by Commanding Officers, and will be guided on a tour of equipment storage sites. I will personally inspect vehicles, and organizational equipment which are provided for use by any personnel called into action. Later that day I will fly to the border of East and West Germany and visit also plan to see U.S. patrol units along the Czechoslovakian border. On December 30, I will conclude my tour with a trip to Nuremberg, Germany, with a review of American soldiers. Again, by basic purpose is to review the equipment situation that our Guard troops would be facing should they be called up for active service in Europe. I want to know if the equipment stored will work. I want to know if the operational support units are a tight organization and can be depended on for carrying out military strategy necessary to properly control our Guard units.

The last thing I want to see happen is a crisis situation that requires activating Alabama's Guard. However, I expect to be satisfied that should activation of our units be necessary, efficient support, and operating equipment will be on the ground in Europe waiting our Guard's arrival.

Helena talks zoning

A proposed change in Helena's zoning ordinance to allow mobile homes in Liberty Heights was tabled Monday night. No one present at the council meeting knew the legal aspects of the matter. Mayor Charles "Sonny" Penhale said the city attorney and the city engineer would have to be consulted on the matter.

The mobile home issue was first brought before the council in early October.

Councilman Jim Kwater requested that the city redefine its zoning ordinance and that matter was also tabled due to uncertain legal aspects.

Another matter discussed was a request for speed breakers on Tenneyson Drive. Councilman Bill Harris and Ron Erwin said they wanted to talk to residents reaccreditation

UM is awarded

Reaccreditation has been awarded to the University of Montevallo one year early from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS).

Reaccreditation through 1990 was awarded to UM early after the University completed a SACS-approved non-traditional approach to the reaccreditation study, according to Dr. Russell G. Warren, vice president for academic affairs at UM.

The non-traditional approach was based on the University's now nationally recognized Mission and Goals Commission report, which was completed in 1978. UM's overall mission and 24 specific goals were spelled out in the report. The year-long reaccreditation study assessed the extent to which UM is achieving the commitments listed in the report--commitments which a state statute describes as "unique in Alabama high education."

A SACS reaccreditation team which visited the campus last spring said UM was well on its way toward accomplishing the commitments, and the team made a number of recommendations and suggestions to help further implement them, Warren said.

SACS presented the reaccreditation award to UM vice president Friday in New Orleans during its annual convention.

Mayor Penhale said he had sent a letter to the Seaboard Coastline requesting that flashing signals be installed at the Cunningham Drive railroad crossing in Liberty Heights. Penhale reported that a building permit had been issued for construction of the Shelby Bank operations center going up in Helena.

It was also reported that work was again underway on the Charles Penhale Recreation Center ballparks.

Fire chief Doug Sprouse made a request for several fire and electrical codes which he said were needed in the city. That request too was tabled until its legal aspects could be checked.

ed to start somewhere in assessing future needs. Reagin said that the proposal had been turned over to the city's planning commission for further study.

When the utility tax proposed for the Water and Gas Board was brought up, Councilman Roger Wheeler said a decision wouldn't be made until their audit was returned.

"We need to get an idea of where the city and water and gas board stand," noted Wheeler, who serves as board chairman.

Reagin, who had suggested a 4% tax, mentioned that the figure would be adjusted after a study of the audit.

Carrying out a proposal to announce board openings several weeks in advance, Mayor Rubin said that the terms of four board members would be up in January.

The Planning Commission and Board of Adjustments will each have two places to be filled.

In other business, the panel agreed to submit a bid on a road grader the county is selling.

It was pointed out that the machine the city owns is too big to scrape some streets and it's also in need of repair.

That machine would probably be sold, said Councilman Naish, if the new grader is acquired.

Reagin reported that he was working with the state to get guard rails put along the road next to the playground at the elementary school.

And giving his monthly accounting of the city finances, Farris said receipts were $65,934.06, expenditures, $67,181.21, leaving a balance in the bank of $45,451.95.

Historical commission gets grant

A $10,000 grant has been awarded by the Alabama Historical Commission for a planning project which will result in the restoration and conversion of an 1885 building on the campus of the Alabama Institute for Deaf and Blind in Talladega.

The building, which in recent years has housed maintenance materials and personnel was at one time used as a vocational training area and later as a gymnasium. It is built of red brick and has the unique feature of round-arched windows and doors with double parapeted towers of turret fashion on the front.

Dr. Jack Hawkins, president of AIDB said of the project, "The Alabama School for the Deaf has an acute need for additional dormitory space. The restoration of this building will preserve our heritage and is cost effective, but to be successful will require the support of Institute legislature."

Dr. Hawkins recognized the possibilities immediately upon his arrival on the Institute campus late last year and foresees it as a residential hall for approximately 20 honors students of the Alabama School for the Deaf. He pointed out that additional suites could be established in the building for visiting alumni, parents of students and other guests of the Institute.

It is his hope that Alabama citizens will rally to this project with furnishings of period date so that the proper setting may be had for "stepping back into the past," while stressing the advances being made by the sensory-impaired through increased educational opportunities at the Alabama Institute for Deaf

Williams said that a January court date has been set in Shelby County for the subsequent charges against Davis.

During last week's court proceedings, Davis testified that he was working as an informer for the Drug Enforcement Agency when he was arrested in March by UNDO.

"It was a novel defense," commented Barnett, who counted the claim by calling DEA agent Jimmy Williams to the stand. Williams testified that Davis had in fact worked as an informer for the DEA in the past, but had been "deactivated" since August Birmingham attorneys Arthur Parker and John Cole represented Davis in the case. Davis is now free on bond pending his appeal of the federal indictment, which Barnett said would probably not come up for 6-9 months.

ATTORNEY SUSPENDED

William E. Swatek, a Pelham attorney, was suspended from the practice of law for sixty (60) days, effective December 5, 1980, pursuant to an order of the Disciplinary Board of the Alabama State Bar. UNDERSTANDING THE BIBLE

"Be ye not unwise, but understand what the will of the Lord is" (Eph. 5:17) You CAN understand the Bible-if you are willing to pay the price of diligent study.

Certain basic principles determine our understanding of any written message. It is no different with the Word of God:

1. Observe the time frame within which instructions are given. The Old Testament has been replaced by the New (Heb. 10:9). We are saved today by terms of the gospel of Christ (Rom. 1:16), which came into force AFTER Jesus' death (Heb. 9:16,17). We must "rightly divide" the truth (2 Tim. 2:15) and obey Ged's NT plan

2. Determine to whom commandements are directed. Some apply to sinners, others to saints. For example, lost men are required to be baptized to be saved (Acts 2:38; 22:16), while saved men who stumb le are told to pray so as not to become lost again (Acts 8:22). This order is never reversed.

3. Respect the authority of any duty Imparted through direct statements 'Mark 16:16', approved examples (Acts 20:7), or necessary implications. Service based on anything else is by opinion and not by faith (Rom. 10:17).

4. Allow for the completeness of Bible teaching. No single passage describes man's entire duty. All statements on given subjects are essential to full understanding. Hence, we are saved by faith (Acts 16:31), but only when faith has led to Following these simple rules and using common good sense, we can agree: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (Jn. 8:32).

Septic tanks can lead to contamination

by Robert E. Kelley District Conservationist

Septic tanks are high on the list of potential threats to public health through groundwater contamination. This is the conclusion of a recent study published by the Enviornmental Protection Agency.

Realizing that central treatment facilities may not be practical in sparsely populated areas, several alternatives are now under study to reduce or eliminate the use of septic tank systems.

We in Shelby County are especially vulnerable to ground-water contamination. We have seen extensive use of septic tank disposal systems throughout the county during the past ten years. As most of us realize, our major housing development patterns are based on septic tank waste disposal systems.

The biggest concern at present, is contamination of our ground-water through sinkholes or limestone cavities. The county Health Department has taken a firm stand to reduce this hazard

Phone rush anticipated

There's no place like home for the holidays, and this year South Central Bell will have 221 operators working in Birmingham to help friends and loved ones place long distance calls on Christmas Day. An estimated 270,000 long distance calls are expected to be made in North Alabama and 21,000,000 are expected nationwide, which is 1.3 million more than were made last Christmas. Of that number, 665,000 calls are expected to be made overseas.

Christmas Day usually tops all other holidays in the number of calls made according to Walter S. Sechriest, Jr., district manager for the company.

"While most calls will get through without delay," Sechriest said, "there may be times when some calls will be delayed because of the great number being made."

Sechriest explained that there are several steps a caller can take to make it easier to get their calls through on this day.

First of all, customers should obtain the telephone numbers they need several days before Christmas and then dial the calls direct to avoid possible delays.

"Then," he continued,

"Christmas greetings by telephone could be spread throughout the holiday season to avoid possible delays."

If calls are made on Christmas day, Sechriest urges customers to make their calls when calling volumes are expected to be low. This will occur between 7-10 a.m. and 4-6:30 p.m.

"Finally, if the lines are busy when you place your calls, please wait a few minutes before trying again," Sechriest concluded.

by not allowing spetic tanks to be installed within 300 feet of a known "sinkhole" area.

However, since most of the residential development is through the limestone valley extending from Montevallo through Alabaster, Pelham and on the Cahaba Valley Road (Highway 119), we know that we have several disposal systems over unknown limestone caverns or "sinkholes". The thing in our favor is that most of the drinking water in these areas comes from closely monitored water systems as opposed to individual wells.

Another point well worth mentioning is, the many old "sinks" out in rural areas that I have seen filled with trash, household garbage and dead livestock. If you or your neighbor gets water from a well, you should be very careful with what you dump into these old "sinkholes".

The best solution to any form of groundwater contamination is prevention. Once contaminated, it is extremely difficult to clear up the problem. Landowners, homeowners, developers, engineers and governmental agencies should work together to insure that we have an ample supply of clean drinking water.

Panthers beat Vestavia to keep winning edge

The Pelham Panthers gave themselves a moral shot of confidence Friday night by upsetting 4-A Vestavia 62-55. Bobby Sutton led the scoring with 16 points in front of the home crowd, followed by Jeff Adams with 13, Jeff Butler with 10 and Buddy Champion with 10 points and nine rebounds.

Speaking for coach Tony Taylor, B-team basketball coach Ron Griggs noted that Adams' ability to break Vestavia's man to man coverage and Sutton's strong play were the keys to what he called a "confidence" win.

Griggs went on to say that the team is learning to take advantage of turnovers and has improved its transition game. Also, he said, Brian Hughes is proving his worth with strong play off the bench, and the ninth grader should be seeing more action as the season progresses.

The win ups Pelham to 4-3 on December 10 against Vincent, however, Pelham did not fare nearly so well. The visiting Yellow Jackets tied up the inside and shot effectively from the outside to down the Panthers 68-61. Nonetheless, Adams hit for 20 points that night, followed by Champion with 11 and Butler

Bit of history made

Wins change Chelsea outlook

Chelsea upped its record last week from 0-3 to a promising 2-4, making a bit of school history in the process.

December 8 in Montevallo, the Hornets beat the Bulldogs for the first time ever by the count of 47-45. Russell Roberts, who led the shooting with 18 and rebounds with 10, made the game winning bucket with a lay up in the last two seconds. Kent O'Shields scored 11 points.

Thursday night, despite 16 points by Victor Smith, 14 points and 10 rebounds by Roberts and 12 points by Mark Howard, Chelsea fell to the Briarwood Lions 58-53. The Hornets got down by a couple points and were never able to get out front, although they were in the game until the end. Maybe that close loss fired them up because Friday on the road they executed St. Clair County 62-47, taking control early and never giving it up. Randy Kennedy led the shooting with 14 points, followed by Roberts and Smith with 12 and 10. Roberts and Smith also led in rebounds. Coach Mike Sims attributes the two wirs and the fact that nobody has really blown his boys out, to a greatly improved defense and better hustle and aggressiveness.

"I think we're coming together," said he. "I've been pretty much pleased with them so far. If we keep improving, we'll be all right."

As for Chelsea's first win over Montevallo, Sims said, "I sure hope it's not the last!"

Is Thompson back on the track?

After Thompson's first loss of the season two weeks ago, coach Eddie Williams was wondering if his team would ever pick up win number five. It almost happended December 9 when they played Vestavia--but not quite.

But Saturday against Montevallo the Warriors got back on what Thompson fans no doubt hope is a winning track. The Warriors beat the 'Dogs 60-41. Leading the way was Arthur Johnson with 20 points and Bobby Bivins with 10 points and 9 rebounds.

Despite the strong win, Williams is concerned because in the last three games his Warriors have hit only 36% from the floor. "We have kids who are better shots than that. Then again, Montevallo always plays good defense. You have to give some credit there," Williams said.

Thompson's main problem this year is that three of the top six players are sophomores and have had little playing time together. "The kids just don't know each other well enough. But we are getting gradually better," the coach noted.

Against Vestavia, THS, down by seven points with 30 seconds left, cut the lead to 60-58 and had the ball when the game ended.

Tuesday the Warriors put their 5-2 record on the line against an improved rival from Pelham. Tonight they face B.B. Comer in "Poor passing and poor shooting are our main problems," van Horn said. "We're not playing good defense either. We were losing by 20, now we're losing by 30."

Part of ISS's problem is that

"There's not much to write most of its opponents have come in the form of larger classification schools, not to mention sized larger players. "Everybody's bigger than we are," the 1-A coach added.

Snow what?

Becky Redding had never seen a pair of snow goggles before Sunday. She's never seen a snowmobile, either. But that's not stopping the adventurous Pelham senior from entering a 100 mile snowmobile endurance run next month in Canada. (Photo by David Moore)

Billed as the Barrie Sno-Do 100 ("do" is pronounced "dough," as in "money"), the annual event is sponsored by Civitans International to raise funds for the Junior Civitan/Association for Retarded Citizens Prevention Campaign.

As governor of the Alabama Central District Junior Civitans, Redding will hit the endurance course along with some 30 other Junior Civitan governors and Senior Civitans. Each contestant will be sponsored by local merchants, businessmen and area Civitan clubs who are pledging money for each mile of the course completed.

"It would be nice to come in first, but we're just trying to get everyone to finish," Redding told the Reporter. "It's not a race."

The seven hour course will be laid out through fields, forests and small villages, with check points set up at various locations along the challenging route. The temperature during last year's marathon dropped down to a cool -20° F.

"I hope it's as funny when I get up there as it is right now," says the 16-year old blonde. "I love the summer, but I don't like the winter. Maybe I'll just go into a state of shock and reach the point where I won't feel the cold anymore."

"I think everybody's goal will be just to finish!"

She says she's planning on giving the run a good try, but explains that finding her way through the woods may prove to be somewhat of a problem. She could end up driving her snowmobile 200 miles instead of

"I'm bad at directions. That's the truth. I can get lost anywhere. I don't know north from south. I got our Civitan group from school lost once for an hour and a half. We were going camp-

She notes that her father has been "coaching" her on just getting to Canada and not getting lost in the Atlanta airport.

Redding says she was sent a quiz on snowmobiles recently which asked questions such as." What type of engines do snowmobiles have?"

"I flunked royally," she con-

Has she ever had any experience with a jet-ski, with snow skiing or any sport which might help her on a snowmobile?

"Well, I have water skied before--tried to water ski, that is. I do play tennis."

At Pelham High School, where she was president of the Junior Civitan Club last year, Redding says her friends "think I'm a little crazy. But I don't mind. I'm hoping maybe I'll get snowed in and miss a couple weeks of school."

Redding leaves for Canada on Friday, January 23. Saturday will be a day of intensified practice with the snowmobiles. The Sno-Do 100 will be held Sunday, January 25. "Face it," Redding says, philosophizing on her impending encounter with the wild Canadian winter and the strange machines called snowmobiles. "It's going to be cold and there'll be a lot of snow. It's going to be hard to finish--especially since I don't even know where I'm going. But I'm looking forward to it. If nothing else, it'll be an experience. I'm sure I'll learn something. I don't know what, but I'll learn something."

"My major question is, will I indeed make it back home?"

So far Redding has secured about $1800 in pledges, but is striving for $2500. In all, the Civitans are hoping to collect more than $50,000 to aid the ARC in the publication of pamphlets on the prevention of mental retardation.

Anyone interested in helping in this quest can contact Becky Redding through Pelham High School at 663-2600. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald C. Redding of David Drive in Pelham.

Third period hexes Montevallo

Third periods are proving to be hexes to the Montevallo Bulldogs who fell to 2-5 on the year after losing to Chelsea and Thompson

In their 47-45 loss to Chelsea, the 'Dogs gave up 21 points in the third stanza while scoring only three. And in a stinging 60-41 loss to arch-rival Thompson, MHS, down 24-19 at the half, slipped to a 42-29 deficit during hex time.

"Thompson played a good game," said MHS coach Kurt Pnazek. "They pressured us in the third and got away with it. Chelsea is vastly improved and we shot only 30{ from the floor against them.'

"We haven't played up to our capacity and I haven't done a good job of preparing the guys. We're weak in rebounding and other areas need improving,

Against Chelsea, Eric Tolbert,

Montez Thrift and Rodney Thrift all hit for a dozen points. Tim Jones led the Bulldogs in shooting against Thompson with 12 and Yuell Gilbert grabbed 10 rebounds.

Montevallo is currently dressing out only seven varsity players, which is probably helping make things tough.

Tonight (Thursday) and Friday Montevallo plays in the Calera Tournament.

Vincent downs Pelham

"We could very well be 3-0, or 0-3," commented Vincent coach Richard Crumpton of his roundball boys.

What they were in the record book after last week's action was actually 1-2.

On December 9, the Yellow Jackets beat Pelham 68-61 behind 18 points hooped by Dennis Datcher. Mike Kelly was good for 15 against the Panthers and Elton Datcher hit for 14 and led Vincent's rebounding with 14. The game was tied 33 at the half before the Jackets pulled ahead by three in the third.

The ride home from Lincoln Thursday night, however, proved which may emerge Thursday with 10. Datcher grabbed 12 rebounds and blocked nine shots in the losing effort. "We should have won against Lincoln," Crumpton reported. He put the blame on his coaching and the Jackets' 8-18 foul shooting.

"We're not playing real good as a unit, yet. We've got some kids who still have a lot of football in them. We've got a long way to go, but we're going to be a good team. We're improving and that's the main thing.'

Calera roundball team hits hard time streak

So far this year Calera basketball has hit upon hard times. Three losses last week dropped Mark Lovett's Eagles to 0-7.

December 9 it was Jemison winning a 55-54 squeaker in which Calera shot not one free throw. Eric Lacey and Larry Johnson were the Eagles' top scorers with 14 and 10 points

Last Thursday Maplesville had six players shoot in double figures, bombing the basket from the outside to blow out the Eagles 97-52. Lacey led Calera with 21 points. Raymond King shot for a dozen.

And Friday, Shelby County bested the Eagles 62-43 over 15 Lacey points and 13 points by Larry Johnson. King led rebounding in all three games with an average of 12.

"I'm not discouraged," Lovett maintained. "If we keep plugging away things can turn around. A couple lucky bounces and we'd be 3-4 now.'

"We're shooting for the end of the season," the coach continued. "We're looking to improve enough to make a showing in the area tournament."

One probable change in store for Calera is doing away with its the Calera Tournament. "We are capable of beating them," Lovett stated.

Winter fishing is best for catching big 'uns between fishing in the summer and fishing in the winter.

1) In the summer you take steps to stay cool; in the winter you take steps to stay warm.

2) In the winter, if you follow the second step listed above and don't turn into a popsickel, you stand a better chance of catching

Number one is not to hard to figure out, but number two may need some explaining. The rain and cool weather not only cause the fish to become more active, but winter weather also drives the bigger fish from the deeps into more shallow water.

For those willing to button up and brave the weather, the fishing at area lakes appears to picking up and making a comeback after a blistering summer's worth of mediocre results.

Crappie fishermen can take heart (or get jealous) in knowing that Ronnie Brown of Alabaster had a heyday last week on Lay using his own homemade jigs. Fishing deep treetops, Brown pulled in 50 crappie, making the trip well worth his while.

These are just some of the stories and bits of useful information that got to circulating around the room Saturday night at the Indian Valley Bass Rangers' annual awards banquet. The party met at Connie Standifer's place on Lake Woodmere off highway 26.

Kelly was awarded this year's prestigious trophy for the most pounds of tournament bass caught, with 1024 points (one point per ounce), or 64 pounds. He edged out Ron Genry for that top honor by only four ounces.

Kelly noted that even though the hot summer stifled bass fishing in the area, his total was just a little under the award's average for the last few years.

SA record looks up

Shelby Academy is already 57-56 win. Crabb scored 15 threatening to better last year's points and Billy Eiland picked up dismal record. At the week's end, the Raiders stood 3-2, compared to only four wins all last season.

"I hope it's not just one of those good starts," said coach Dewayne Kervin. "But we've really come a long way. We're doing much better than I thought."

Both the losses came from Bessemer. The last loss occurred December 9, when Shelby missed three layups to remain scoreless in two overtime periods and fall 51-50, the victim of a freethrow. Terry Crabb and Allen Terrell led the scoring with 16 and 14 points respectively, followed by Dirk Carson with 10. Keith Lawler led in rebounds with eight.

December 10 the Raiders jumped on Cahawba 66-48, cruising easily after a 14 point halftime lead. Carson was good for 18 points, followed by Crabb with 16 and Keith Knowles with

Special recipes for the holidays

by Peggy A. Prucnal Assoc. County Agent

The holidays will soon be here with the family get-together and parties. Along with the parties comes holiday food.

Many persons with diabetes and those on weight-reducing diets dread this time of year because they feel they must be left out of the holiday eating. Some think that to enjoy themselves, they must go off their

This doesn't have to be so! Even though the diabetic and others on restricted calories should refrain from eating rich cakes, pies, desserts, and candies (just as he should throughout the year), there are many foods he can still enjoy.

In fact, he may actually look forward to the season because of the opportunity to enjoy the foods that he ordinarily does not

Make a garland

Boxwood, cedar, juniper and red-berried holly form an eyecatching garland wound around a pole, says Sara Nell Lightsey of the University of Montevallo Home Economics Department.

The focal point of the composition may be a white azalea plant made festive with red velvet ribbon and pine cone trim.

Its staging is then shared by juniper, cedar, re-berried holly and pine cones arranged around a cluster of pillow candles of different heights. "You need to be sure to clear the burning candles of any greenery or native materials," Miss Lightsey added.

The beer distributing com- have agreed to pay the city's tax of two cents per can on beer sold within the city limits and one cent per can on beer sold within Calera's police jurisdiction.

Tax stamps will not be affixed to the cans or bottles. Rather, the new system agreed to by the Shelby County Commission will be copied by the beer distributors in paying the Calera taxes.

Under that system computerized records are kept, and the companies provide the list of beer quantities sold to the county so taxes can be figured. They will use a similar system with Calera.

Lt. retires with 29 years service

Lieutenant Thomas B. Barden, Jr. will retire on January 1, 1981 after 29 years with the Department of Public Safety. Lt. Barden is a district commander in the drivers license division, and responsible for all phases of drivers licensing in Jefferson,

THOMAS B. BARDEN, JR.

Shelby, Walker, Sinclair and Blount counties. He began his career with the Department of Public Safety in 1951 when Gordon Persons was Governor. He has served under every chief of the drivers license division in the State of Alabama, beginning his service under Chief James Barden began as a highway patrolman (now called State Trooper) and came up through the rank as corporal, sergeant and lieutenant. He has served in some capacity of the Birmingham district since 1952 but has been the district commander of drivers licensing in the five counties since July 8, 1970.

He has seen many changes during the past 29 years. He recalls that in the early fifties, he rode a Greyhound bus to a certain county seat to perform his duty because there were not enough state vehicles. He remembers opening the door to the driver's license office at 8 a.m. only to find that more applicants were already in line than the office could accommodate before the office closed at noon for the lunch hour. At 1 p.m., when the office re-opened, it was the same, a long line waiting for tests. Some applicants had to return the following day to get a test.

As years passed, the situation improved when the state was divided into districts and each district was commanded by a lieutenant, sergeant and corporal. Gradually, the force was increased. During AEA holidays, Lt. Barden has seen the Birmingham office give 2600 tests in one week.

Several years ago, he and his wife Cleo, built a home on Lay Lake in Shelby County with retirement in mind. "Dreams really do come true" says Lt. Barden. "We're just thankful to have reached this plateau in life."

On the county library beat

by Phil Clark

County Shelby Bookmobile will be off the road for two weeks from Dec. 19 to Jan. 5 to change their collection, do a little general maintenance and to take care of patrons' special requests.

Many of our community staff members can enjoy the season with their families. Listed below are the libraries and the day they will close for Christmas: Alabaster-Dec. 25, 26; Caleraclosed for renovation; Columbiana and Regional Headquarters, Dec. 24-27; Helena-libraries will be closed so that Dec. 24, 25; Montevallo-24-27; Pelham-Dec. 24-27; Vincent-Dec. 25; Wilsonville-Dec. 25.

> The regional library staff, the community libraries and all the county's library boards join together in wishing you a joyous and wonderful Christmas.

unty reaches 64,000

in new census report

by Marcia M. Sears -

New figures released by the Bureau of the Census this week show that the population of Shelby County is 64,196.

This figure is up considerably from the earliest preliminary figures of the 1980 census, released by the Bureau in July, which showed a county population of 61,955.

The new figures are still called 'preliminary' by census officials, who state that the counts will undergo further processing and review before the final report is made. The official count is expected by next spring. However, the field operations are finished and the Birmingham office of the Bureau of the Census, which handled the Shelby County count, is now closed. Further reports will come from Atlanta.

Shelby County's total population in the official 1970 census was 38,037. By 1978, when the county hired the census bureau to conduct a special census, the total population had grown to 56,081 which was an increase of 18,044 persons. The latest figures for the 1980 census indicate that the total county growth for the past two years has been 8,115.

The preliminary number of housing units in Shelby County is listed at 23,979. Each house, each condominium unit and each apartment is counted as a separate dwelling by the census.

The figures show that Alabaster is the largest city in Shelby County with nearly 7,000 people. Pelham is second with 6,702. Montevallo ranks third, with just under 4,000.

Both Pelham and Alabaster have annexed several acres of territory including subdivisions, since the 1978 census, which accounts for part of their fast growth. But the influx of new residents has been heaviest in those two cities and accounts for the major part of their growth.

Pelham has become seven times bigger than it was ten years ago. Alabaster is two and half times the size it was in 1970. Helena has nearly doubled.

Columbiana okays medical clinic board says no to recycling

A new clinic will go up in Columbiana but a recycler won't be getting the city's garbage.

The council met in a called meeting and approved the incorporation of a medical board.

This allows Dr. Robert Thornburg to proceed with plans to build a clinic on the Highway 25 by-pass.

But Benny Davis was turned down on his request to recycle the city's garbage. A delegation of residents had protested the operation because of proximity to two churches.

Davis' present recycling because of smoke, odor and messy appearance.

Action on both requests had been delayed for further study.

Councilman Lewis Walker had not been in favor of setting up the medical board so bonds could be sold, giving the dentist a tax

He indicated that it would be unfair not to help other businesses.

However, the council had already approved the board being set up before Walker took office. So he went along with other council members in approving its incorporation at the Dec. 5 meeting.

Members of the board are Dick Ozley, Hank Spires and Gerald Fulton.

101 year old man spends night lost in woods

by David Moore

Nonnie Keith was chilled to the bone Friday morning and his daughter thought she'd never get him warm again.

But Sinnie Cross was thankful her father was still alive. The north Shelby County man had spent the night lost in the woods near her house.

The story could have ended in tragedy. Nonnie Keith is 101 years old.

"I cried all night and called you, but you wouldn't answer," Mrs. Cross said the elderly gentleman told her as the family tried to get him warm.

"I told him I cried all night and called him, too, but he couldn't hear me, either," she related to the Reporter.

"He said he got tangled up in some vines and fell. I think that was early in the morning, because the place we found him was where everybody had searched the night before," she explained.
"Everybody" who made up the search party included eight deputies and reservists, 20 North Shelby County Fire District firefighters and volunteers, 25 Boy Scouts from Troop 5, sponsored by Christ Church United Methodist, and numerous friends, neighbors and family members.

"He has a knack for going out to find fire wood," Mrs. Cross said of her father. "He'll get to going and forget about turning around, and end up getting lost."

Apparently, that's what happened last Thursday. Keith went out for a walk that afternoon and was last spotted by a neighbor on a dirt road off Valleydale highway 119 near Briarwood High School. Keith lives nearby with his daughter at 5242 Keith

When her father didn't return, Mrs. Cross got worried. Shortly after dark she called the authorities. Chief Deputy James Jones organized the search party.

The woods were combed. The ditches up and down highway 119 for five or six miles were searched. Spotlights danced through the chilly night air as voices called out for the lost man. There was no sign of him.

The next morning at 7:30, as the posse was being organized to resume its search, Keith's son William and his grandson Walter Battle found the old man. He was tangled in some vines about 100 yards in back of neighbor Abe Green's house.

Keith was wearing a long, black heavy coat and the warmth of it may have helped save him. But Jones said the color certainly didn't help the search party.

"He's a pretty lucky old guy," Jones said.

Mrs. Cross said her father went for a walk "just following his mind" about a year ago and got lost that day, too. He was finally found in the Helena area about eight or nine miles away.

"He just can't stay still," Mrs. Cross said. "But we think it's a blessing he's lived to be this old."

"We appreciate what everybody did trying to help us find him," the daughter noted. "Everybody was just so good."

Of attempted murder

Chelsea man found innocent

A jury found a Chelsea man innocent of attempted murder last week when his case was tried in Shelby County Circuit Court.

The state tried to prove that Daniel T. Carter had intended to cause trouble when he and his wife went to McManus Shell Service Station to settle a bill.

Both he and McManus were wounded in the shooting spree that followed an argument at the service station on the afternoon of April 25.

It took the jury 45 minutes to bring in their verdict Thursday after the conclusion of the two day trial.

Charges are still pending against Carter's wife Peggy and the couple's 16 year old son Larry who were with him that day.

Defense attorney Richard Burton admitted that Larry had fired the first shot which wounded McManus who then returned the fire.

The family said they had gone to the service station only intending to get Mrs. Carter's car out of the compound where it had been stored since an accident Mar. 1.

But it was brought out in testimony that Mrs. Carter thought the bill was too high and told McManus she had heard he deliberately ran the bill up on customers.

She had tried, she said, to get the car on one or two other occasions, but could not find McManus at the station.

Carols Ham, who testified for the state, said he had been at the Carter home prior to their trip to the service station and had seen Larry with a shotgun.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter both took the stand but their son was not called to testify.

Mrs. Carter and McManus both said they argued when Mrs. Carter went into the station with the money while her husband and son stayed in the car.

There was name calling on both sides, they admitted, which resulted in Mrs. Carter spitting in McManus' face.

Angered by that act, McManus' wife Linda then slapped Mrs. Carter and McManus stepped in to separate the two women, according to the testimony.

When she ran from the station, the shot was fired from the car, Mrs. Carter said.

Even though he was wounded by the blast which shattered the window in the service station, McManus told of drawing the pistol he carried inside his shirt and firing at the car. District Attorney Billy Hill and Assistant DA Mike Campbell contended that McManus was defending himself.

After emptying his gun, McManus said he ran back into the service station and reloaded. When he returned to the car, he reported Carter was lying on the floor and begged him not to shoot.

At that point, McManus said Carter pulled a pistol from underneath him and fired, hitting him in the head.

When he went into the service station for more shells, McManus reported that Mrs. Carter jumped in the car and the family sped away.

Carter claimed he was unaware his son was going to fire the shotgun until he heard the blast. And almost simultaneously, he said, the car windshield exploded from McManus' shots, some of which hit him.

The prosecution pointed out that it would have been hard for the older Carter not to have been aware of his son's actions.

They showed that the barrel of the gun had to go past his head to be fired out the front window of the car.

And Hill also stressed that evidence produced by the shotgun blast proved McManus could not have been chasing Mrs. Carter out of the service station as she claimed.

Besides McManus, his wife and Ham, the prosec ution also called Sheriff's Department investigator Sgt. Bill Davenport and the doctor who operated on McManus to give testimony.

Hotline stays hot

The Department of Pensions and Security's welfare fraud hotline has been used fairly frequently since it began operation on December 1, Commissioner Gary Cooper said this week.

The special toll-free telephone line installed to enable state citizens easily to report suspected cases of weifare fraud and abuse has handled an average of 16 calls per day since it was installed. The number is 1-800-392-8048.

Tallacoosa award

J. Claude Smith, right, presents Jim Inscoe with the Distinguished Service Award made annually by Tallacoosa Highland Lakes Assn. for "outstanding service to Alabama." Smith, who is executive vice-president of the Tallacoosa Assn., said the award was made to Inscoe and his wife Elmore, owners of Jasmine Hill Gardens, for developing the 17 acre property into a "major tourist attraction."

Auburn president Philpott urges quality education

All parts of public education in Alabama today are equally important, former Auburn University President Harry M. Philpott said during the University of Montevallo's fall commencement

Philpott said that some Alabamians have been wrongly saying that one level of education is more important than other levels. "Some say kindergarten is the key," he said. "Some say elementary schools are of the greatest importance, and some secondary schools are the most important."

"But inevitably," he added, "they say that higher education is doing okay. That's tragic, because no one part should be favored.

"If we are to have good education in Alabama, it needs to be quality education at all levels," he said. "We citizens of this state should devote ourselves to the enhancement of the quality of education at all levels."

Speaking to some 130 degree candidates and their guests, Philpott said that the old saying, "What you don't know won't hurt you," is damaging. "What you don't know can hurt you a lot," he said, reminding the graduates that they were only beginning their educations.

Philpott received an honorary doctor of humanities degree from UM during the ceremony. His is the second honorary degree awarded at UM in the last 20 years, UM President James F. Vickrey Jr. said.

Calera becomes a city

Calera is now officially a city. The U.S. Bureau of the Census notified the mayor and council that the population in Calera had exceeded the 2,000 mark and therefore qualifies as a city.

The tabulations of the 1980 Census show Calera with a population of 2,013 with 740 homes within the city limits.

In other business, the council discussed the possible financial effects of a rate hike levied on the city's natural gas system. Southern Natural Gas Company has informed the city that Calera will experience a 21.79 percent increase in rates effective January

The council reported that the city's gas engineer is studying the increase and the effect it will have on Calera's customers. The council delayed any definite decision on the issue until a report from the engineer is in hand. That report should be before the council at its January 5, 1981 meeting.

According to a budget comparison statement, the city has been biting the bullet on spending in the first two months of the fiscal year. The council budgeted $105,442 for October and November and only $86,322 has actually been spent. The council attributed the cushion to a sharp reduction in the city's expenditures and hopes further belt tightening can be done without imposing any hardships to any of the city's departments.

The council discussed a proposal from the Planning and Zoning Board of Appeals. At present, all appeals are referred to the Circuit Court in Columbiana. The Zoning Board ex-

In another zoning related matter, the council said it was looking into the possibility of hiring a qualified building inspector for the city. The council noted that some of the city's employees are already spread thin and the need for a designated inspector is at hand. Further discussion on the matter will take place at the first

Police Chief Harry Deal said the police department is stepping up patrols in the city by 100 percent. Chief Deal said the move is being made because of the historically high burglary and robbery rates in the holiday season, Calera, however, has had an absence of major crimes in recent months. The chief credited the recent lull in major crimes in the area to the hard work of his Councilman W.B. Watts said that he thought the monument that is to be erected in front of the new fire hall could be done without cost by volunteers. The council took that into consideration and voted to scratch the monument from the blueprints of the fire hall now under construction. The move should save the city approximately $1800.

The council voted in favor of purchasing property behind the present fire hall for $20,000. When the deal is finalized, a home that is now on the property will be removed to facilitate a possible parking lot.

Beer tax clarified

The wording on the Reporter's story last week about the Calera beer tax has apparently led to some confusion.

The beer distributing companies do not pay the tax as some of our readers thought we meant. The general beer-buying public must pay the tax at the time of purchase. But the beer distributors must collect the tax and then pay it to the city governent the same way they collect and pay other beer taxes to Shelby County.

Most of the distributors had rebelled against the extra paper work of collecting the new Calera tax, keeping records on it and then paying it to the city government, and had at first refused to sell their beer to the nine beer retailers in Calera.

But all distributors have now decided to go along with it.

If Sheriff Buddy Glasgow doesn't accept the three names the Personnel Board submitted following the sergeant's examination, the panel feels they will have blown over $2,000.

The board had already paid part of their bill to the firm that drew up tests for sheriff's department employees. And Thursday evening, Board Chairman Teddy Brasher reported the balance due on the bill would be $2,296.

Tests had also been drawn up and given earlier for new employees and for a dispatcher who had been a CETA worker.

Brasher told the three members present that the sheriff had rejected the names of deputies submitted for advancement to the rank of sergeant without giving any explanation.

The sheriff had asked for other names from the board's list of seven to consider, Brasher said.

Twelve deputies who had been with the department a minimum of two years had taken the competitive examination for promo-

But the board agreed the sheriff must have a reason to disqualify the men who had made the highest scores in order for other names to be submitted.

"We'd be defeating the purpose of the tests if the results are ignored," board member Mickey Johnson noted.

During their brief meeting, the board also screened applications for a new secretary and came up with three they thought were best qualified.

It was decided the new employee would work Monday through Wednesday from 8 a.m.-4 p.m. at a salary of $6 an hour and be asked to attend the monthly board meetings.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member of the FDIC.

Between the 15th and 24th of December a fellow can get in a dozen rat races a day without even trying. We get the paper at our house and try to decide which race we'll join today.

But it's a problem. Everybody, from the little store on 59th street to the big warehouse on 5th avenue, has but one thought in mind-they just want to save you money, a lot of money, maybe because you have curly hair.

On Sundays we pick out the whole sections of advertisements and put 'em in a pile, as far away from the rest of the paper as we can get 'em without opening a door or raising a window. That leaves a little stack about as high as a mockingbird's instep that we'll try to digest when we get back home from church, about 12:20.

Once, when life was simpler, a fellow could go to the store the last day before Christmas and spend from four to twelve dollars and slip in after dark and leave his toys on the floor in front of the log fire and go to bed and wait for the noise the next morning to tell him Santa had found his house again.

And if some guy five or six or a dozen miles away had the same things he had just bought, the folks who lived five or six or a dozen miles away would buy what they needed and take 'em home and forget all about it until another Christmas.

That was the way it was. Nobody was trying to save you a bundle because your hair was curly, and folks were satisfied to sell to folks in their own town and folks were satisfied to buy from folks around the corner, and everybody was happy, and Santa Claus was just as fat and sassy as he is today.

I have just finished separating the news from the advertisements, and if He'll spare me another hour I'll try to find out what's going on in our humptydumpty world.

And there's one other thing. Never, never in the history of the world, have so many people tried so hard to save one little baldheaded man so much money.

State sets social study book hearing

The State Textbook Committee has made its recommendations for adoption of textbooks for the subject area of Social Studies. The recommendations of the committee will be considered for adoption by the State Board of Education on January 22, 1981. A list of the recommended books is available from the State Department of Education.

In accordance with Section 7 of the Free Textbook Law, Act 221, Special Session 1965, a public hearing concerning the books listed will be held on January 22, 1981, at 10 a.m. and will be held in Room 480 of the State Office Montgomery, Building, Alabama.

Juries now drawn from state driver records fice of Courts is utilizing Alabama's computerized driver's license list to assist jury commissions in 37 counties in qualifying persons for jury service. Shelby, Talladega, St. Clair and Bibb counties are included in the 37.

Chief Justice C.C. Torbert, Jr. said that using the computer process for random selection and mailing juror qualification questionnaires in these counties will significantly reduce the $300,000 it cost in 1978 to manually operate the system of filling master jury boxes in each county of the state.

Under state law the master jury box in each county must be emptied and refilled every two years.

Some 90,000 state citizens in these 37 counties have received the qualifying questionnaire. They were randomly selected from persons age 19 and above who hold a valid Alabama driver's license or a non-driver identification card. Alabama law no longer allows for any class exemptions from jury service or automatic exemption for those over age 65.

The state's driver's license list has been determined to be the best source list available in most counties for selection of an acceptable cross-section of persons to be called as prospective jurors. It is updated in full every four

The computerized process was implemented to provide a more manageable system for local jury commissions and to reduce the administrative expense of refilling the master jury boxes. During the previous qualification period

What could go wrong? I knew where the place was - there wouldn't be any problem with getting lost - and I envisioned a Christmas tree, Santa Claus, kids and presents.

There would plenty of good picture possibilities I thought.

And I reminded myself over and over of the day and time. Because unbelievable as it sounds, I have failed to show up at one or two occasions because they just were not registered firmly enough in my mind.

Writing things down doesn't always do the trick. For example, I see a notice of a meeting I was to attend on the bulletin board in front of me. It was held two days

But this Christmas party I remembered. The day, time and place.

When I arrived, I marched into the building where I thought it would be. But only silence greeted me.

I went from room to room, thinking I'd finally open a door and there everyone would be. But they weren't.

It finally occurred to me that the festivities might be going on where the business offices were located.

So I tramped over there. But I couldn't even get in that section Exasperated, but not about to give up, I continued the search. And then I spied an open door in another of the large plant buildings.

And I didn't have to go far before I heard the sound of merriment.

"We've had all our fun contests and now we're going to eat," the person in charge told me, as I investigated picture possibilities.

Well pictures of people eating aren't all that bad - but it's not my favorite way to photograph

"How about Santa Claus giving out some gifts?" I asked. Presents had been exchanged the day before, I learned so Santa hadn't been called on to put in an appearance.

"Isn't there anything Christmasy around," I inquired? "Well, we decorated the fuse box," someone chirped.

Resigned to the fact nothing relating to Christmas would be in the picture, I finally settled on the plant manager presenting awards to employees who had been with the industry for a number of

Glad that I had accomplished my mission, even though it hadn't been quite as I'd anticipated, a dreadful thought struck me as I walked out of the building.

I simply could not remember whether or not I had turned on my flash.

Distinctly I recalled checking on my f stop, and looking to see if my sensor was on the red setting and if my flash was extended to normal.

But I had no recollection whatever of flipping the switch that would mean the difference between a picture or some dim images on the negative.

So back in I went and asked the folks who had been in the picture if they remembered seeing the flash go off. Three out of four said no and one thought they might have.

Since the majority seemed to go along with my feeling that the flash had not been functioning, we did a retake of the award presentations. But I found out when the film was developed that memory is a funny thing.

No one remembered seeing a flash, but every picture I took turned out.

So obviously I had flipped the switch without even being aware I had, and there had been a flash of light that the partying folks didn't notice.

Oh well, since it's the Christmas season, maybe the best explanation for everyone's memory loss is the fact that there's too much going on to remember every little thing that happens.

Does that sound all right? Merry Christmas, y'all!

Public asked to help

Patient needs breathing machine

Dorothy Etress is having trouble drawing her next breath. And the laws of the land are written in such a way she cannot get any help from the usual government sources.

Beulah Whatley, director of vocational rehabilitation for Shelby County has asked for donations from the public to help Mrs. Etress through a very difficult time. Mrs. Whatley says she searched everywhere, tried every government source, and simply cannot find any resources to supply Mrs. Etress' needs other than appealing to the public

Mrs. Etress, who lives east of Harpersville, near the Coosa River bridge is suffering from "bronchial asthma with chronic pulmonary insufficiency and respiratory insufficiency.'

She requires oxygen at various times every day so she can breathe.

With the help of her treating physician, Mrs. Etress had an arrangement worked out for renting an oxygen machine. However, her house burned to the ground last month, destroying the machine and almost everything she had.

She is staying alive now by using bottles of oxygen, but they cost more per month than her total income.

A breathing machine costs in the neighborhood of $2,000 but in the long run is much less expensive than bottled oxygen. Mrs. Whatley thinks the machine is the only solution for Mrs. Etress' long term breathing pro-

Mrs. Etress is caught up in a gap between government regulations.

She went to work at Avondale Mills at the age of 16 and worked there continuously until she was unable to work because of her asthma. She took disability retirement recently, and is now 50 vears old.

If she had not worked, she could qualify at once for the SSI program and get medicaid benefits to help her with medical costs. However, because she worked all her life, she has to wait 24 months before she can qualify for medicare.

Mrs. Whatley terms the sitution urgent and asks anyone who can to contribute funds to buy a new breathing machine for Mrs.

A fund has been established, and anyone wishing to do so may send a contribution to the "Dorothy Etress breathing machine fund' at the City Bank of Childersburg, Box 359, Childersburg, AL 35044.

ARE YOU SAVED?

The New Testament was written that you may know how to be (1Jn. 5:13). True believers need not doubt the reality of their salvation (Heb. 10:22). However, we must be sure we KNOW we are pleasing to God and not just THINK so. We can trust in error rather than in truth and be lost rather than saved (2Thes.

Foolish indeed is the man who approves himself by standards of family religion, conscience, or comparisons with his fellows (2Cor. 10:12). Equally dangerous is the practice of following human teachers instead of divine (Mt. 15:14).

God assures us through the NT scriptures that we are His (1Jn. 5:13). He promises that all who obey Him will live (Heb. 5:9; Mt. 7:21). We know we have been saved when we have submitted to His will be believing in Christ, repenting of our sins, and being baptized in water (Mk. 16:16; Acts 2:38).

God is faithful (Heb, 10:23). If we have met His requirements, then we KNOW we are saved! The truth supports our confidence. Though disobedient people may profess salvation, the facts belie their profession.

Vincent plays Jekyll-Hyde role

Vincent may be up to its old trick of playing Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. On December 16 the Yellow Jackets played perhaps their best game of the year, handily downing Shelby County 75-50. But on the 18th they changed masks as Childersburg physically whipped them 73-58.

"It was our best game so far. Period," said coach Richard Crumpton on the home game against the Wildcats.

Leading the effort was Dennis Datcher with 16 points and 11 rebounds. Elton Datcher scored 13 points and Vernon Keller added another 11.

But of the Childersburg game, Crumpton reported, "They completely took us out of our game. We didn't play as well as we have been and they had a lot to do with that. They whipped us. Plus we got kinda' frustrated with the officials..."

"The only place we beat them was rebounding. But that's because they didn't miss shots." Tigers Mitchell Chaney and Steve Sain accounted for 37 points for Childersburg. Elton Datcher was Vincent's only man in doubles, with 18 pints and 13 rebounds. The Yellow Jacket subs did show good strength coming off the bench in the last period, however.

After Christmas, Vincent jumps back in the fire as it entertains Lincoln for a January 6 grudge match, then travels to Sylacauga to play "the team." Vincent is 2-3 on the year.

Naugher told the Reporter last week that he was leaving his post after one and half years due to financial reasons.

"There's no problem. This is the best school you could work for," he explained. "They made me feel at home before I ever walked through the door. It was hard to leave."

So far this season, Naugher's basketball team has posted a 4-2 record. After the holiday break the Rebels return into action the week of Jan. 5 against Bessemer, arch-rival Shelby Academy and Burney Points.

CVA headmaster Terry Roberson, head coach Mark Green and other officials at the private school in Harpersville are currently interviewing applicants for the job in hopes of finding a replacement prior to January. In the event a new coach is not hired by then, Green is expected to coach the basketball team.

Besides basketball, Naugher was an assistant football coach, head baseball coach and taught two history classes.

The Warriors picked up wins against Pelham and B.B. Comer last week to take a 7-2 record into the Christmas break.

The loss sends Chelsea into the holiday break with a 2-5 record.

"They were just better Monday night than we were," Sims said. He went on to add that the Hornets will be working over the holidays on "general everything" as they prepare to come back and do battle January 6 at Winterboro. January 9 Chelsea plays at TCTS.

Briarwood sighed a collective, 70-68 sigh of relief.

"I'd rather watch those kinds of games than coach them," said roundball boss Steve Franklin. "But I'd rather win close than lose close, too!"

Schor scored his high game to date with 22 points against AC. Kirkpatrick hit for 18, Mike Mc-Crary scored 10 and Mark Byers pulled in 13 rebounds.

Briarwood returns from the holidays for a tough home match against a greatly improved Cathedral Christian team.

A first for Pelham

Jax State signs Domian

The all-county tackle has become the first football player from Pelham High School to sign a full athletic scholarship. Next year he will be swapping the green and gold of his high school alma mater for the red and white of the Fighting Gamecocks of Jacksonville State University.

Domian was listed among Jax State's ten most wanted recruits. And he signed aboard in a New York minute when assistant coach Bubba Gibson visited him and his parents in Pelham on December 11.

"I'm real excited about it," beamed Domian when the Reporter asked how he felt about playing for Jax State.

This year, led by coach Jim Fuller, the Gulf South Conference Gamecocks finished in the top four in their division with an 8-2 record.

"Next year they'll be number one if I have anything to do about it," the senior stated. With an attitude like that, it's little wonder Pelham head coach Steve Rivers will be missing Domian next year. But recently Rivers has been too proud of his star lineman to care--yet.

"I think Ron and Jacksonville will be real good for each other," Rivers said, sounding a little like a proud, new father. "You could tell he was doing well this year because the other coaches were commenting on him and they respected him."

Standing 6'6" and weighing in at 240 pounds, Domian's size alone was enough to earn him the respect of many area coaches and players. But it was his lateral movement and blocking ability that earned him such honors as Ron Domian made a bit of the WBYE lineman of the week and Pelham's most valuable offensive player award.

"He's worked very hard for this," Ron's father, Frank Domian, told the Reporter. "I don't take credit for it. He did it himself. But I think coach Rivers had a good effect on him." Ron's mother, Laureen, is quick to echo Rivers' part in her son's athletic achivements, too.

And, agrees Domian, "Coach Rivers is the one that got me on the road. I wouldn't have made it without him and Coach (Ron) Griggs (Pelham's line coach)."

"Work-that's the secret." Rivers said. "Ron's really worked hard ever since I've known him. We're real proud of him."

"That he signed off this team is great, too," Rivers pointed out. "It'll be good for the other athletes in this school. Pelham High is getting recognition. They'll know that if guy works hard he can get a scholarship."

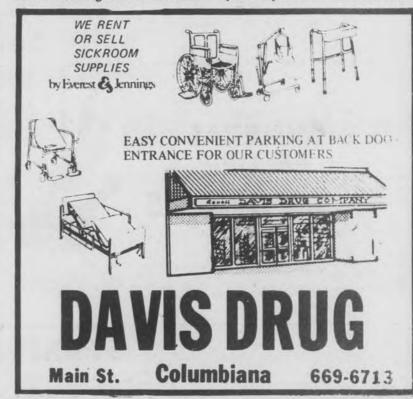

It's a long ways off, but what does Domian plan to do after college?

"Coach, probably. It all depends...'

The 17-year old senior moved with his family to the Royal Oaks subdivision from Atlanta two and half years ago. He has three sisters, one at the University of Georgia, one about to start Auburn and another in the second grade.

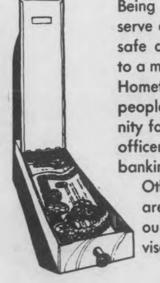

No, Ron's parents say, there's not another like him around our

An unidentified Calera Eagle made a quick swipe at a passing Jemison player, came up with this steal and turned downcourt toward his own basket. But overall Calera has not been able to put it together yet this season and took a winless record into the holidays.

Montevallo owns four-six record

"We're picking up," stated with 11 and Rodney Thrift with Montevallo basketball coach Kurt Pnazek. To prove the point, he noted that "4-6 is a lot better than 2-5."

"I feel pretty good," Pnazek added. "I think we'll be ready for the county tournament."

That 2-5 record is what Pnazek and his team faced going into last week's action. They bettered it by edging West Blocton on the road by 48-47, and by trouncing Calera in its own tourney 62-38. But in the opening game of the Calera series, Maplesville bettered Montevallo 63-48.

The problem with Maplesville was "poor rebounding and poor shooting at the line," Pnazek explained. During that Thursday game Yuell Gilbert hit for 17 points, followed by Eric Tolbert Gilbert led the action against West Blocton with 19 points and nine rebounds.

But against Calera, Gilbert played his best game of the year, gunning in 23 points, grabbing 12 rebounds, and getting named to the all-tourney team. Tim Jones and Montez Thrift both scored 10 against Calera.

"Everybody did a good job," the coach said, noting, too, the defensive work of Robert Lightfoot. "I'm learning what we can and can't do and the guys are responding better. We are improving."

Just how far MHS can pull itself up with its hightop shoestrings will start showing January 6 when it travels to Jemison. January 10 MHS plays Holy Family.

Shelby Academy chalks season's fourth win

After a one point halftime lead, the Shelby Academy Raiders turned on the afterburners and quickly pulled away from Talladega to pick up their fourth win of the year by 64-53

"I was pleased with the winning but not the way we did it," coach Dewayne Kervin said. "I thought we played sloppy. We gave up too many points, especially on the inside."

If a team gives up points, then it'd better make sure it scores some, too. And that's what the Raiders did during the Thursday night home game.

Leading the scoring was Billy Eiland with 16 points. Keith Knowles hit for 13 points, Terry Crabb for 12 and Dirk Carson hooped in 11. Despite the defensive breakdowns, Kervin did say he was proud of the Raiders' shooting.

One more win this year and Kervin's roundballers will have already topped last year's win column. "We've already tied it, but I don't know how much higher it'll get," Kervin said, eyeing his schedule.

Now 4-2, Shelby returns to the floors January 6 at Minor, who is undefeated in the district. Later in the week SA tangles wth rival Coosa Valley, then returns home to play Faith.

Calera Eagles remain winless

"This is a nightmare. We need to wake up."

That's what one of the Calera

8 point

Danny Bearden of Montevallo killed an 8 point deer, Saturday, Dec. 20 while hunting at an undisclosed place in Shelby County.

basketball players told coach Mark Lovett after the Eagles finished last in their own tournament. Thursday night they lost 76-47 to Maplesville who won the tourney, and Friday Montevallo jumped on the Eagles with a 74-45 count.

Christmas vacation couldn't have come too soon for Lovett and his crew. They're sitting on a dismal 0-9 record.

"We need to get away and take a break," the coach confirmed. "We're not playing anywhere near our capacity and we're not playing with the same intensity, either."

"I think it's mostly psychological right now. But if we ever get a win, it'll be okay."

The only real bright spot for the hosting Eagles during the two days of games was that Eric Lacey was named to the alltourney team. Lacey totaled 35 points against Maplesville and Montevallo.

Lovett said his team would not start back practicing until January 3. Three days later Calera plays host to Thorsby, then entertains Briarwood on Lovett is hoping "next year" will be a new story for his team.

Working the ball

Working the ball inside against Talladega, Shelby Academy's Billy Eiland (10) passes off to Dirk Carson (11). Allen Terrell (42) holds down the center post position.

Countians celebrate Christmas

Shelby Countians have been celebrating the holiday season with a wide variety of activities in all the traditional ways and many of the non-traditional ways.

Leading the list for everyone is the generous giving of time, effort and money to spread the joy of the Christmas season.

Groups throughout Shelby County have been collecting money and toys for children whose lot in life is not as prosperous as we all would wish.

Almost all organized groups in the county have found Christmas projects. Some of these projects continue throughout the year in fund raising efforts.

Churches, employee associations, youth groups, industries and policemen are among the groups who have looked for and found worthy causes.

Bazaars are a favorite way of money raising for several groups. Others organize special sales of items that range across the board

Live nativity scenes have become increasingly popular for churches to organize. This year for the first time, Oak Mountain State Park presented three nights of Christmas programs with nativity scenes, using the animals at their demonstration farm. Nine churches from Shelby and Jefferson Counties provided choirs and actors for the scenes.

The poem, 'Visit from St. Nicholas' was written as Christmas present

by Marjorie Miller

"Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good-night."

These heart-warming and familiar words, so dear to all, complete Clement Clarke Moore's beloved poem, A Visit from St. Nicholas.

Dr. Moore, a classical scholar and part-time poet, wrote his immortal and whimsical poem on a cold Christmas Eve in 1822, as a present he had promised to his Clement Clarke Moore is best remembered for having created the now popular image of Santa Claus, that happy, portly, white bearded figure, dressed in fur, smoking a pipe, and carrying a bulging sack of toys over his shoulder. It is thought that an old Dutch handyman who drove Dr. Moore's sleigh the night the poem was written was the model for the cherubic Santa figure.

Imagine how delighted the Moore children must have been with this colorful tale. How captivated, as their father read, "Now Dasher! now, Dancer! now, Prancer and Vixen! On! Comet, on! Cupid, on! Donder and Blitzen.

The young family memorized the poem they loved so, although Dr. Moore thought little of it and relegated it to a desk drawer.

Sometime after the holiday, a family acquaintance, intrigued with the fascinating and spellbinding tale, sent a copy to her local newspaper, where it was reprinted. Unfortunately, she forgot to say who had written the delightful poem, and for some years it was reprinted "anonymously" in other papers and magazines.

Later, in the 1860's, Thomas Nast, an American political cartoonist, created the rotund, kindly Santa we know, in his furtrimmed red suit.

A collection of verse printed in 1837, called The New York Book of Poetry, carried Dr. Moore's poem with his name. And it was also included in a volume of Dr.

There is no estimating how many people have read or heard it in the dozens of languages in which it has appeared.

Dr. Clement Clarke Moore has been likened to the kindly, humorous figure he gave to the world, a man who brought joy to others and whose own reward was the happiness he left as his legacy.

Although better known for his political cartoons, Thomas Nast also drew this charming scene of Santa Claus waiting for the children to go to bed on Christmas eve. The drawing appeared in Harper's Weekly, January 3, 1874. Courtesy of the New York Historical Society, New York City.

Holiday superstitions

For thousands of years man was troubled by incidents and mysterious events which he believed were caused by good or evil forces. Many of these beliefs have been cast aside as man has come to understand the world about him. Others have persisted.

Some odd and amusing superstitions are identified with the Christmas season, an appropriate time for forecasting and fortune

The, weather on each of the 12 days of the holiday observance is supposed to foretell what the weather will be in each of the months ahead.

Good health is assured to those who eat an apple at midnight on Christmas Eve.

It's bad luck to let any fire in your house go out during the Christmas season...and woe unto those who let their evergreen decorations fall or who throw them away. You should burn them or feed them to your cow.

In Sweden, trolls are reputed to roam the countryside at dawn on Christmas morn. Best stay in-

You'll lose a friend before next Christmas if you don't partake of the traditional holiday plum pudding. And to refuse mince pie is to court bad luck for the following

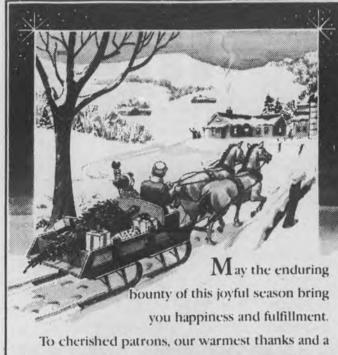

In Greece, old shoes are burned during the Christmas season to prevent misfortune in the coming

In some countries, a child born on Christmas Day or Christmas Eve is considered lucky. In Poland, however, it is believed the child will turn into a werewolf, and, in Greece, that the new baby will turn into an evil, half-human monster called a Kallikantzaroi.

A more familiar superstition is that on Christmas cattle kneel facing the East, that animals can speak, that bees hum and that all water turns to wine.

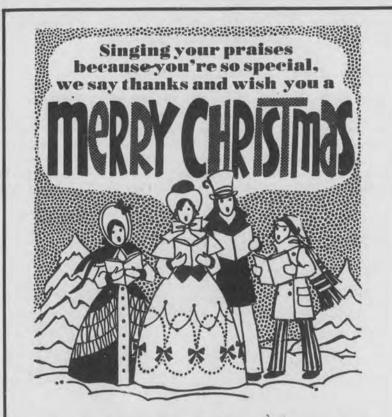

It is believed that a cherry tree branch, standing in water, will bring good luck if it blossoms by Christmas.

You'll have as many months of good fortune in the coming year as the number of houses in which you eat mince pie during the festive holiday.

How 'Xmas' started

Many people take offense at the term "Xmas," suggesting it is an attempt to take Christ out of Christmas, when actually it is merely an abbreviation of the word itself. In modern times the letter X is a way of crossing out unwanted information . . . and so, the misconception.

The X in Xmas is the Greek letter Chi. the first letter of Christ's name when written in that language. It has always stood' for Christ . . . without any bad intentions.

This simple abbreviation dates back to about the 12th century and continues to be used to this day.

Children in foster care

Department of Pensions and Security

Christmas is a joyous season for most children, but that joy can be dimmed on Christmas morning if there is little under the Commissioner Gary Cooper of the State Department of Pensions and Security said that there are approxmately 4,200 children in Alabama foster care, and that their Christmases may not be as bright as they should be without the generosity of Alabama

"Our foster parents provide warmth and affection and the necessities of life to the children in their care," said Cooper, "but few of the foster parents can afford the additional costs of Christmas purchases."

Cooper pointed out that children usually stay in foster family homes only temporarily until permanent plans can be made for the children. These permanent plans might include returning to their natural parents or relatives or placing them for adoption.

Most county Departments of Pensions and Security help foster parents in providing gifts for the children during the holiday season. Christmas projects vary from county to county, but they include accepting cash donations, or toys and clothing.

In some counties, projects are conducted by the foster parents themselves who have formed their own organizations.

"If you want to help or learn more about the needs in your community, I urge you to call the Department of Pensions and Security in your county," said Cooper. "The county departments also know of children and families other than foster children who need help this Christmas."

Cooper added that private citizens can make contributions directly to county Departments of Pensions and Security or foster parent associations. The gifts will be distributed to children who might not otherwise enjoy a very merry Christmas.

Holly occupies an important place in the legends and lore of Christmas, as well as being credited with having magical and medicinal powers.

It was believed in England, long ago, that prickly holly with its spiney leaves was "he" holly and that the smooth leaved holly was "she." Whatever type of holly was brought into the house first at Christmas would determine who would head the household-"he" or "she."

Another legend observed that if holly was brought into the house on a fair day, the wife would rule, but if the weather was bad, the husband would be the master.

And curiously, holly was believed to cure toothaches, banish rickets and possibly foretell the name of a future husband to a questioning young woman.

Nearly two thousand years ago in an obscure village, a child was born of a peasant woman. He grew up in another village where He worked as a carpenter until He was thirty. Then for three years He became an itinerant preacher.

This Man never went to college or seminary. He never wrote a book. He never held a public office. He never had a family nor owned a home. He never put His foot inside a big city nor traveled even 200 miles from His birthplace. And though He never did any of the things that usually accompany greatness, throngs of people follwed Him. He had no credentials but Himself.

While He was still young, the tide of public opinion turned against Him. His followers ran away. He was turned over to His enemies and went through the mockery of a trial. He was sentenced to death on a cross between two thieves. While He was dying, His executioners gambled for the only piece of property He had on earth — the simple coat He had worn. His body was laid in a borrowed grave provided by a compassionate friend.

But three days later THIS MAN AROSE FROM THE DEAD — living proof that He was, as He had claimed, the Savior whom God had sent, the Incarnate Son of God.

Nineteen centuries have come and gone and today the risen Lord Jesus Christ is the central figure of the human race. On our calendars His birth divides history into two eras. One day of every week is set aside in remembrance of Him. And our two most important holidays celebrate His birth and resurrection. On church steeples around the world His cross has become the symbol of victory over sin and death.

This one Man's life has furnished the theme for more songs, books, poems and paintings than any other person or event in history. Thousands of colleges hospitals, orphanages and other institutions have been founded in honor of this One who gave His life for us.

All the armies that ever marched, all the navies that ever sailed, all the governments that ever sat, all the kings that ever reigned have not changed the course of history as much as this ONE SOLITARY LIFE.
